Foreword

MY interest in Omar Khayyam dates back to the time when, as a young student I had read his famous Rubaiyat and their felicitous renderings into English by Edward Fitzgerald. From a student's admiration and a young man's fancy, I proceeded later, with all the enthusiasm of an admirer and devotee, to collect wherever I could old and new editions of the Rubaiyat and their different translations.

2. It was a pleasant surprise for me, therefore, when, towards the latter part of my period of work in the Finance Department of His Exalted Highness the Nizam's Government, I found that Mr. V. M. Datar, who was working as Personal Assistant to Sir George Casson Walker when I first came to Hyderabad and also later worked directly under me, was himself not only a scholar of Persian but a great admirer and a keen student of Omar Khayyam. It has been my good fortune since to see the present work develop, despite Mr. Datar's continuous occupation with his official work, and it speaks well both for his perseverance and his devotion to this particular study that he has been able, so soon after his retirement, to complete his book.

3. Among other things, Mr. Datar has set a noble example of what Indian culture at its best should include for a Hindu or a Muslim alike, the knowledge and appreciation of each other's language, traditions, literature and art. This has been made possible by the fact that Mr. Datar, who is now Swami Govinda Tirtha, has always been a mystic and has thus been inhabiting a plane where all can meet who believe in the worship of the Divine.

4. Mr. Datar has asked me to write this Foreword to his book, both in view of our common admiration of Khayyam and of our long association in work in one Department, and I am doing so gladly as it is always a delectable diversion to turn to Khayyam, and not only to Khayyam the Poet, but to Khayyam the Philosopher, the Mathematician, the Astronomer and the Astrologer as well. This book deals with his life and all the aspects of his work, and Mr. Datar's illuminating commentary is a pleasure to read.

5. Omar Khayyam's chief title to fame in the East was as an astronomer and his achievements in that science eclipsed his achievements in poetry in the eyes of his own countrymen. No Eastern poet has, however, acquired so great a fame and popularity in Europe and this is not only due to the fact that he found an interpreter in Fitzgerald who was himself no mean poet and who gave to Khayyam a place in English literature, but also because the ostensible ideology, which the English renderings of his quatrains reflected, appealed to the Western mind of that period in England, imbued as it was with the doctrines of Mill, Spencer, Huxley, Tyndale and Darwin.

6. That appeal was, however, based upon a misinterpretation of the Rubaiyat, for, to attribute to Khayyam the superficial philosophy of a simple hedonist or an ideology no better than that of "eat, drink and be merry for tomorrow we die" would be unjust. To those acquainted with Sufi poetry, with the immortal poems, for example, of Hafiz, references to wine are known to be allegorical. In his own days, Khayyam set his face against cant, hypocrisy and show in religion. His mysticism is that of the philosopher and his intoxication that of Divine love. In a world where life presented so many questions and was shrouded in mystery—"why, not knowing, nor whence..... I know not whither"—his search was for spiritual ecstasy so that he might reach Him who knew the answers, for, "He that toss'd thee down into the field, He knows about it all—He knows—He knows."

7. Fitzgerald's renderings are also not faithful translations of Omar Khayyam. What he did was he selected a line here and there largely from Omar Khayyam's but partly also from Hafiz. One great service he did was to give a certain order and sequence to his own quatrains so that the renderings have a unity absent from the original which, according to the traditional method, are arranged in purely alphabetical order.

8. The philosophical prose tracts of Omar Khayyam collected in Section xiii and the analogy of the quatrains discovered by Mr. Datar in the poems of Nasir Khusraw (Section xi) and Hakim Sanai (Section xv) and the epigrams of Panchatantra and Bhartrihari (Section xvi) show the plane of Khayyam's thought and form the basis of an æsthetic test of the quatrains. Mr. Datar has rendered signal service to the literature on Khayyam by unearthing some thirty MSS. of the quatrains hitherto unknown and concordng the quatrains with all important MSS. and has thus supplied the long-felt want of a fairly complete critical edition of Omar's quatrains. His arrangement of the quatrains under different subjects is of great help in understanding Khayyam's mysticism.

9. Mr. Datar has, in his own translation, endeavoured to convey, as far as possible, the mystical sense of the Rubaiyat and the translation from that point of view is, in many ways, interesting.

10. Among the results of Mr. Datar's careful study and laborious research is the fresh light he has been able to throw on some points, hitherto obscure, like the date of Khayyam's birth and of his death which has been determined now with precision. It is perhaps in the fitness of things that Mr. Datar should resort for this purpose to the methods of astronomy and astrology—for Khayyam the Poet was no mean astrologer and astronomer.

Ovation

To Thee I tender Thine and honour gain,

Tho' humble, happy at Thy feet remain,

O Guide ! to Thee I owe my all in plain,

But saying " I and mine " is only vain.

We offer here but really favours call—

Why should then seek a favour which is small!

Give us Thyself in sole Thy Truth in Soul . . .

And except Thee we should have naught at all

INTRODUCTION

I.

HOW THIS WORK BEGAN :

"The Lord's beloved ones abide in Him and He is found in their heart. All of one heart, they have imparted to the world, through all ages, the same light and life."

Thus remarked my Sri Guru on hearing some quatrains of 'Omar Khayyām, and desired a Marathi translation of all quatrains in 1917. The best edition I then found was Hw, printed at Hyderabad in 1311 H. containing 1030 quatrains. I turned in Marathi verse 1016 quatrains (omitting the repetitions). The work was sent to print in 1933 when I added 51 quatrains selected from other editions which had appeared after 1311 H. I named this Marathi translation as "GURU KARUNAMRITA," "The Nectar of Grace," because it was done through His Grace for which 'Omar Khayyām craved in many of his quatrains. Friends then required from me an English version with the Persian quatrains. To meet their demand I dressed the said quatrains in English verse and submitted for perusal to my patron and patron of learning, the Right Honourable Sir Akbar Hydari, Nawab Hydar Nawāz Jung Bahadur, Kt., LL.D., P.C., who considered the work worth publishing and promised to grace it with his foreword.

As I was preparing the work for the press, I unearthed in Hyderabad 26 MSS. of 'Omar Khayyām's quatrains and obtained copies of 10 MSS. elsewhere in India; and photographs of important MSS. in the Libraries of India Office, British Museum, Paris, Berlin and Vienna; I corresponded with Prof. Maḥfūz-ul-Haq (Calcutta), Sayyid Sulaimān Nadwī ('Aẓamgarh), Mr. J. E. Saklātwala (Bombay), Mr. A. G. Potter, compiler of 'Omariana Bibliography (London), and Dr. C. H. Rempis (Tubingen) who was engaged on the same task as myself. To Dr. C. H. Rempis I communicated the particulars of the MSS. I had unearthed and he has brought them to the notice of scholars in his books "'Omar Chajjam und Seine Vierzeiler" (Tubingen 1935) and "Beiträge Zur Khayyām Forschung" (Leipzig 1937). I profited considerably by exchange of views with Dr. C. H. Rempis who helped me also in obtaining copies of ‘Omar Khayyām’s quatrains which he had discovered in Stambul and elsewhere.

The present Persian-English version of ‘Omarian quatrains arranged subsectionally and concorded with the important MSS. in India and Europe, is submitted to his lovers in token of affection, by a Hyderabadi, a humble subject of His Exalted Highness Nawab Sir Mir ‘Osman Alī Khan Bahadur, G.C.S.I., G.B.E., Nizam of Hyderabad and Berar whose benign reign has uplifted education and created several facilities for oriental research in Hyderabad.

II.

ENVIRONMENTS OF 'OMAR KHAYYAM.

In pre-Christian centuries, Persia was the transmitter of Science and Philosophy between India and Greece. For centuries before Christ the followers of Zoroaster and Buddha had lived in Khorāsān the province where 'Omar Khayyām was born. After the advent of Christianity, to reconcile it with the religions of Zoroaster and Buddha, Manes came forward. His religion flourished in the Sāsānian period (226-750). The Manicheans took upon themselves the obligations of poverty and celibacy, were ascetic and unworldly, cosmopolitan and quietists. Before the advent of Islām in Persia Nūshīrwān the Just (531-578) invited to his court several Pandits from India, and welcomed seven Neo-Platonists exiled by Emperor Justian.

The Pahlawī was thus enriched by translations from Greek and Sanskrit works on Science and Philosophy. There existed in Persia Ḥakīms, (Wise men), devotees of Science and Philosophy, who abstained from wealth and world; votaries of various schools of thought, each seeker after Truth with his own torch. The sunrise of Islām however awakened Man in Arabia, North Africa and Persia to his supreme duty to realise and serve God, and gather round One Prophet. Islām strove not only for religious but political and social unity. The progress of Islām was however gradual and the old religions and schools of thought remained alive up to recent times (Dabistān-i-Madhāhib). The civilization of Islām became the inheritor of the ancient wisdom of Assyria, Babylonia, Persia, India and Greece (Browne). The study of the Qur'ān and Ḥadīth with the main object to prescribe the rules of conduct produced four schools of Shari'at, viz., Ḥanafī, Mālīkī, Shāfi'ī and Hambalī. The search for the basic beliefs of Islām produced the Mu'atazili school which was powerful in the time of Khalīf Māmūn and his son Khalīf 'al Wāthiq (847). It declined in the time of Khalīf 'al Mutawakkil, yet found adherents in the Dailamī kings till very late. The orthodox reaction against the Mu'atazili school began in the time of Khalīf 'al Mutawakkil and produced Ash'arī school from its founder Abu'l Hasan Ash'arī d. 324 H. (936), who preferred to rely on tradition than on frail reason. The love for the Fātimāid house produced the Qirmatī and Ism'īlī propaganda in 260 H. (873) which aimed at a political and intellectual upheaval in Islām and succeeded in founding the Fātimāid Kingdom in North Africa in 297 H. (909). Ism'īlī preachers, the Dā'īs, explained Islāmī dogmas philosophically and protected Islām against the attacks of the Khārījī heretics. Their system was esoteric and hierarchical (Dr. Hussain F. Hamdānī, JRAS. 1933). In Persia the Ikhwān uṣ Ṣafā, the Pure Brotherhood, by means of systematic tracts and treatises, tried to reconcile Science and Religion, Islām and Philosophy, and found till very late many adherents such as Fārābī, Ibn Sīnā and Nāṣir Khusraw. In philosophical speculations the Ikhwān uṣ Ṣafā were akin to the Isma'īlī Bātinīs to whom Nāṣir Khusraw has shown his fond attachment (see his 'Safarnāma' and Zād'ul Musāfarīn). But remote from castes and creeds, from parties and politics, there exist in all countries and climes, the mystics who hate none and love God for His Own Sake—not from hope of a Heaven and fear of a Hell. Such ardent lovers of God were among the early followers of the Prophet. Mysticism is the birthright of humanity. The insecurity of life creates in a waking soul the longing for the Eternal Truth. Before 'Omar Khayyām was born, Persia had produced many Islāmīc mystics or Ṣūfis such as Ibrāhīm Adham (d. 777), Ma'rūf Karkhī (d. 815), Junaid of Baghdād (d. 910), Shibli of Baghdād (d. 945) and Maṣṣur Hallāj (d. 922). The Khānwādās of the Ṣūfis trained the ardent seeker after Truth to cleanse himself and await Lord's grace. At the time of 'Omar's birth Persia was surcharged with the sayings of noteworthy Ḥakīms such as Ibn Sīnā and Nāṣir Khusraw and Ṣūfis such as Abū Sa'īd and 'Abdulla Anṣārī. Such were his environments.

III.

THE DATE OF 'OMAR KHAYYAM'S BIRTH IN DOUBT.

Several literary men bore the nisbat or household name of "Khayyām;" a traditionist Abū Šāleh Khalaf Khayyām of Bukhārā d. 361 H. (972) [Ansāb Sam'ānī. Gibb], another 'Abd Allah Muḥammad Khayyām Māzandarānī d. 410 'H. (1019) [Ansāb by Muḥammad Hamdānī Baghdādī] and a third one Mudhahab ud Dīn Muḥammad bin 'Alī al Khayyamī of Irāq d. 642 H. (1244) [Fawāt 'ul Wafiāt of Kātabī d. 764 (1363)]. Thus there were other Khayyāms before and after our hero "who patched the tents of learned lore" and whose full name and address is Ghiyāth ud Dīn Abu'l Fataḥ 'Omar bin Ibrāhīm Khayyām (or Khayyamī) of Nishāpūr.

His titles of distinction are: Ḥakīm, Dastūr, Philsuf (Tatimma Šiwān) and Imām-i Khurāsān, Malik ul Ḥukamā, Ḥujjat ul Ḥaqq [Chahār Maqālā]. Yet we find his name and address wrongly given:—His kunyat Abu'l Fataḥ turned to Abu'l Ḥifṣ [Mizān'l Hikam HSL. 125], his name twisted to Shahāb ud Dīn [BERa], his father misnamed Muḥammad [Ha] and his native place transferred to Lōkar [Glios and Dr. Rosen], and to Dahak [Sd].

The date of his birth is involved in doubt. For long the world believed the romantic story found in Wašāyā of Niẓām ul Mulk and Firdows ut Tawārikh (1405) that 'Omar Khayyām studied under Imām Muwaffaq (d. 1048) at Nishāpūr with Ḥassan Šabbāḥ (d. 1124) and Niẓām ul Mulk Ṭūsī (b. 1018, d. 1092). It was discovered that the Wašāyā was not compiled before the fifteenth century, and the story is not found in other histories such as Rāḥat uṣ Ṣudūr (1205), Jahan Gushāy (1260), Tārikh-i Waṣṣāf (1328), Tārikh-i Guẓidā (1330), nor other biographical notices such as Āthār ul Bilād (1275), Tārikh-i Ḥukamā of Qiftī (d. 1240), Nuzhat ul Arwāḥ of Shaharẓūrī (d. 1193). Prof. Houtsemā in his preface (1889) to al Bandārī's History of Seljuqs suggested that not the great Niẓām ul Mulk Ṭūsī but Anūshirwān bin Khālīd (b. 1066, d. 1139) may have been the schoolmate of Ḥasan Šabbāḥ—a suggestion beset with anachronisms. So the question remains as to when 'Omar was born. Sir E. D. Ross suggests 1040 A.D. [Introduction to Fitzgerald's Quatrains. Methuen London 1900] and Sayyid Sulaimān Nadwī 1048 A.D. ['Omar Khayyām p. 60].

IV.

THE DATE OF 'OMAR KHAYYAM'S BIRTH DETERMINED.

We can now find the exact date of 'Omar Khayyām's birth by solving an astronomical problem given in Tatimmat al-Ḥikmat, Biographies of Philosophers of Persia. This book was first noticed by Sir E. D. Ross [BSOS. 1929] and then by Dr. Qāri Kalīm ul lah [Osmānia College Magazine, March and September 1931] and thirdly by Prof. Muḥammad Shafī' [Islamic Culture, October 1932]. One MS. of this is in Berlin, No. 10055 MO 21 Arabic and two in Stambul at Mullā Murād and Bashīr Āghā's libraries. The author of this important book, (from which Shaharzūrī made up his Nuzhat ul Arwah) Ṣāḥib ud Din Abu'l Ḥasan Baihaqī (b. May 1106), had been taken by his father to 'Omar Khayyām in 507 H. (1113), studied at Nishāpūr from 1120 to 1122, and was a scholar of great repute [Yāqūt, Mu'ajjamul Udabā, Islamic Culture, Oct. 1930]. Baihaqī gives the time of 'Omar Khayyām's birth in the form of this astronomical problem.

"His ascendant was the Gemini. The Sun and the Mercury were on the degree of the ascendant in the third degree of the Gemini. The Mercury was "Ṣamīmī," and the Jupiter was aspecting (Nāẓar) both from triangulation (Tathlith).

"Ṣamīm," "Tathlith," and "Nāẓar" are defined as follows:—

"The astronomers call a planet Ṣamīm when the difference in its longitude from that of the Sun is less than 16 minutes, so that this much distance may pass before its centre reaches the centre of the Sun. Taṣmīm is the special aspect of a planet when it is most powerful and auspicious. It shows that the person will find his place in the heart of a King. Both Ṣamīmī positions of Mercury are powerful" [Istilahāt-i Funūn, p. 856]. Ṣamīmī is thus tending to be Ṣamīm. "When one planet is in the fifth sign of another planet such position is termed "Tathlith" because the distance between them is one-third of an arc" [Sī Faṣl, ch. 12]. "The limit for the aspect of an outer planet is between 9 degrees from behind to 9 degrees in front of it." [Sī Faṣl, ch. 27]. The data given by Baihaqī for finding the time and date of ‘Omar Khayyām’s birth are thus as follows:—

- (a) He was born at Sunrise.
- (b) The Geocentric Longitude of the Sun and Mercury was 63° (measured by the Persians from the point of Vernal Equinox 0° Aries).
- (c) The Geocentric Longitude of Jupiter was $63^{\circ} \pm 120^{\circ}$, i.e., 183° or 303° or within 9 degrees of this position.
- (d) Mercury was tending to be Şamīm, i.e., approaching towards the Sun so as to come within 16 minutes of an arc.

First we proceed to find the date and month. The construction of Malik Shāhī observatory was undertaken in 467 H. (1074) under the supervision of ‘Omar Khayyām and other astronomers [Ibn Athīr, 467 H.]. The Malik Shāhī or Jalālī year commenced from Friday 10th Ramaḍān 471 H. (15 March 1079) on which date the Sun entered the Vernal Equinox [Sī Faṣl, ch. 6, Zīh İlkhānī, ch. 5, Istilaḥāt-i-Fūnūn, p. 59]. The Sun takes 63 days to complete the first 63 degrees [Indian Ephemeris, Vol. I], and was in the third degree of Gemini 63 days after 15th March, i.e., on 18th May. We thus know that ‘Omar was born at Sunrise on 18th May.

Now to find the year. The Copyist of ‘Omar Khayyām’s Tract on the Corollaries of Euclid informs thus:—

“At the end of this tract the words in the writing of Shaikhul Imām ‘Umar bin Ibrāhīm ‘al Khayyāmī were as follows. “Finished copying this compilation in the Dārul Kutub of () on the last day of Jamādi al awwal of the year 470 H. Finished the above Risāla in the handwriting of Mas‘ūd bin Muhammad bin ‘Alī al Ḥalfarī on 5th Sha‘bān 615 H.” We know thus that ‘Omar Khayyām compiled and copied the above tract on 30th Jamādi al awwal 470 H. (20th November 1077). We know also that the Malik Shāhī observatory was founded in 1074 and the Jalālī year in 1079. We are informed by Baihaqī that he had seen ‘Omar Khayyām in 507 H. (1113), i.e., about 40 years after the construction of the observatory. We may safely assume his age in 1074, when the observatory was founded, to be between 20 and 55 years, i.e., he should have been born between 1019 and 1054 A. D. For the Jupiter to be in triangulation we have to examine its position on 18th May during each of these years and select only those when its longitude is either 183° or 303° or within nine degrees of both these positions.

The Geocentric tropical Longitudes of Jupiter calculated from Tables V-A and V-B of Indian Ephemeris are as follows:—

18th May of year	Jupiter's Long.	18th May of year	Jupiter's Long.	18th May of year	Jupiter's Long.
1019	133.3	1031	136.1	1043	140.9
1020	160.4	1032	164.5	1044	168.3
1021	*189.9	1033	194.5	1045	*199.0
1022	222.9	1034	227.7	1046	232.9
1023	258.8	1035	264.0	1047	269.5
1024	*295.9	1036	*301.0	1048	*306.3
1025	331.0	1037	335.7	1049	340.5
1026	3.1	1038	7.5	1050	11.8
1027	32.3	1039	36.2	*1051	40.2
1028	59.5	1040	64.3	1052	66.9
1029	85.5	1041	89.1	1053	92.8
*1030	111.2	1042	114.9	1054	118.6

It will be seen that only in four years which have been marked with a star (*) viz., 1021, 1024, 1036 and 1048 the Jupiter was in triangulation aspect of the Sun on 18th May. To determine the exact year Mercury should be in the 63rd degree on 18th May. Tropical Longitudes of Mercury on 18th May of these four years as calculated from the above Tables in Indian Ephemeris are as follows:—1021: Long. 82.2° , 1024: Long. 59.1° , 1036: Long. 48.2° , 1048: Long. 62.7° . The only year when Mercury was in the 3rd degree of Gemini on 18th May is 1048. Thus the problem is solved, and we find that 'Omar Khayyām was born at Sunrise on 18th May 1048.

VERIFICATION OF THE ABOVE SOLUTION BY DIRECT CALCULATION FROM ZICH-I ĪLKĦANI.

The above solution was obtained from the Tables in Indian Ephemeris, prepared from the beginning of the Kaliyuga (3101 B.C.) to 2000 A.D. by Dr. Swamī Kannu Pillai, on the basis of Ārya Bhatta and Sūrya Siddhānta known to the Persians as Ibn-i Baṭūta' and Sind Hind! I felt it necessary to verify the solution by direct calculation of the positions of the Sun, Mercury and Jupiter according to their motions known to the Persians in those times. The Zich-i Malik Shāhī by 'Omar Khayyām and Zich-i Sanjarī by 'Abdul Rahmān Khāzīn being known in name only, the next in time comes Zich-i Īlkhānī by Naṣīr ud Dīn Ṭūsī (d. 1259). The MS. of this [SML. Hyderabad] contains tables for computing the positions of planets for a hundred years commencing from first noon of the Yezdijardī year 601.

The period from first day of the Yezdijardī era (16th June 632 A.D.) to the epoch of Zich-i Īlkhānī is thus—2,90,000 days 12h. The period from 16th June 632 A.D. to the Sunrise [4h. 48m. A.M.] of 18th May 1048, the date of 'Omar Khayyām's birth as previously found, is 1,51,915 days 4h. 48m. The difference is 67,085 days 7h. 12m. or 183 Yezdijardī years 290 days and 7h. Calculating backwards from the elements of motions given in the Zich-i Īlkhānī the positions of the Sun, Mercury and Jupiter are respectively $62^{\circ} 23'$, $62^{\circ} 46'$ and 303° respectively, and the Mercury is in retrograde motion hence Šamīmī and Jupiter in exact triangulation as stated by Baihaqī. The calculations are given below:—

THE HOROSCOPE OF 'OMAR KHAYYAM ACCORDING TO ELEMENTS OF MOTIONS OF PLANETS NOW KNOWN.

Calculating from the Tables in Zich-i Ilkhānī, we have found the positions of the Sun, Mercury and Jupiter on the Sunrise of 18th May 1048 at Nishāpūr exactly the same as described by Baihaqī. Since the 11th century there has been great progress in Astronomy. Mr. S. R. Subrahmanya Shastry who assisted me in the above calculations and who is well-versed in the ancient as well as modern astronomy recalculated according to the Modern Elements, the accurate positions of all the planets for Sunrise on 18th May 1048 at Nishāpūr, Lat. $36^{\circ} 13' N$. Long. $58^{\circ} 45'$. East Greenwich. The positions of the planets, the horoscope he has cast, and the astrological interpretation as he found from the books of Allen Leo and Jātak Pārijāt are given below:—

It will be found that the readings remarkably coincide with the life and character of 'Omar Khayyām.

Note by Mr. S. R. Subrahmanya Shastry.—"The original calculations were first made correct to the second of an arc and finally reduced to a minute. The Heliocentric longitudes, etc., of the eight major planets were calculated from the Newcomb-Hill Tables (Astronomical Papers, Vols. VI and VII). As the Newcomb-Hill Tables do not provide completely to calculate the positions in such a remote period as the 11th century, the secular variations and long period terms were to be specially calculated by the elements given there. The Moon's longitude is according to Brown's elements; and Pluto's according to Nicholson and Mayall, without applying any of the perturbations, as if it was moving in a Keplerian ellipse. (Sd.) S. R. Subrahmanya Shastry."

1st House:—The ascendant Gemini indicates a kind, humane, intellectual and expressive disposition, and that his life will advance through intellectual and educational attainments [Allen Leo]. The Sun here indicates a dark complexion, good health, strong build, broad chest, strong teeth and strong memory; a nervous, irritable, quick-witted and impulsive nature. He will succeed in all work where other hands are employed, working singly he will leave his work unfinished [Allen Leo]. Mercury here indicates an inventive mind with power of clear thinking and freedom from bias and prejudice, and a fondness for travel and acquisition of knowledge [Allen Leo]. The combination of Sun and Mercury gives strength and vitality to the mind which remains active and powerful to extreme old age [Allen Leo]. The triangulation aspect of Jupiter on the ascendant indicates that he will lead an ascetic life and be honoured by kings [Jātak Pārijāt I-2-34]; with the Sun and Mercury it denotes religious and philosophical studies [Allen Leo].

2nd House—is aspected evilly by Saturn, indicates a poor parentage.

3rd House—is unoccupied by its Lords and evilly aspected by Mars and Saturn. This indicates that the native had no younger brothers or sisters.

4th House:—The Lords Sun and Mercury are in the ascendant. This indicates a long life to his mother [Jātak Pārijāt I-12-62].

5th House—occupied and evilly aspected by malefic planets. He will have no children [Jātak Pārijāt XIII-26]. The Head of Dragon here indicates a timid nature and poverty [Jātak Pārijāt VIII-74].

6th House:—The Lord of this house is in the 12th house, and the Lord of the ascendant is in the ascendant. He will have enemies but will be victorious over them. [Jātak Pārijāt XIII-81].

7th House:—The Lord Jupiter occupies Aquarius, a barren place. Venus is powerless. He will not marry. [Jātak Pārijāt XIV-2].

8th House:—The Lord for the first three degrees is Jupiter in Saturn's house, for the rest the Lord is Saturn, who occupies his house and rules it: the Lord of the ascendant occupies his house: he will have a long life. [Jātak Pārijāt XIV-52]. Death will be happy and calm. [Jātak Pārijāt V-73].

9th House—occupied by Jupiter. He will be a philosopher, observe the rules of his religion, and be honoured by Kings. [Jātak Pārijāt VIII-87].

10th House:—Lord for the first two-thirds is Saturn, for the last third Jupiter. Only Saturn aspects the house. This indicates a secluded life.

11th House—is not occupied or aspected by its Lords, but is occupied by Kētu [the Tail of Dragon]. He will be contented and abstain from luxuries [Jātak Pārijāt VIII-96]. Neptune here indicates acquisition of occult and mystic sight.

12th House:—Lords Mars and Venus are powerless. He will be devoid of wealth and wife [Jātak Pārijāt VIII-97].

VII.

THE ASTROLOGICAL LIFE-SKETCH OF THE ABOVE
HOROSCOPE.

Given the correct horoscope, astrologers forecast the life. I had previous experiences of the astrological forecastings by Pandit Narthar Shastri of Kharsī (Sātārā District), and requested him to forecast the life from the above horoscope. His forecast is given below, the statements capable of verification from historical testimony are marked with a star (*).

1. "On 18th May 1048, Jēshtha Shuddha 3 of Shaka 970, at Sunrise in Nishāpūr (Long. 58° 45' East Gr.) the Moon just enters the Punarvasū Nakshatra. The nativity commences with the Mahā Dashā of Jupiter which lasts from 18-5-1048 to 24-2-1064. According to the Jupiter's position in the horoscope the native has healthy childhood and acquires knowledge rapidly during this period.*

2. "The next Mahā Dashā is of Saturn from 25-2-1064 to 16-11-82. As Saturn occupies 8th house in the horoscope of nativity and 3rd house at the commencement of this period the native undergoes troubles and exertions during this period. At the very commencement of this period he would lose his father [Jātak Pārijāt XVIII-38] and suffer destitution during the Antar Dashā of Saturn which lasts till 11-2-1067. The next Antar Dashā which is of Mercury commences from 12-2-1067 and lasts till 7-10-1069. Mercury is well placed at the nativity and commencement of this period. In the year 1067 he gets religious instructions,* in 1068 finds a supporter* and writes a mathematical work.* During the Antar Dashā of Kētu (from 8-10-1069 to 10-11-1070) he encounters adversaries, and during the Antar Dashā of Venus (11-11-1070 to 24-12-1073) he has marriage prospects which would be frustrated. Before 24-12-1073 he obtains royal favours.* In the next Antar Dashā of Sun, from 25-12-1073 to 1-12-1074, he undergoes great physical exertion, followed by rise to position and rank during the next Antar Dashā of Moon (2-12-1074 to 23-6-1076). In the Antar Dashā of Mars (24-6-1076 to 27-7-1077) he has rather severe sickness which is followed by a change of ideas and turn in life during the Antar Dashā of Rāhu which lasts from 28-7-1077 to 18-5-1080. During this period he will apply himself to the study of Psychology and Mental and Moral Philosophy, which will continue during the next Antar Dashā of Jupiter (19-5-1080 to 16-11-1082).

3. "Then comes the third Mahā Dashā of Mercury which lasts from 17-12-1082 to 19-8-1099. Mercury though well placed in the horoscope, occupies 8th house at the commencement of this period. This indicates troubles. During the Antar Dashā of Mercury 17-12-1082 to 1-4-1085 he devotes himself to whole-hearted contemplation of God and turns to Mysticism from Philosophy. He composes poetry during the Antar Dashā of Venus 25-3-1086 to 7-1-1089. The other Antar Dashās ending 3-4-1091 are passed in comparative tranquillity. In the Antar Dashā of Mars (4-4-1091 to 25-3-1092) he is attacked by adversaries. In the Antar Dashā of Rāhu (26-3-1092 to 29-9-1094) he suffers from infamy and slander and incurs royal displeasure and loses his position.* During the next Antar Dashā of Jupiter (30-9-1094 to 23-12-1096) he obtains a new position.* But public slander continues during the Antar Dashā of Saturn (24-12-1096 to 19-8-1099).

4. "The next Mahā Dashā is of Kētu (Descending Node) from 20-8-1099 to 13-7-1106. The Kētu is well placed at birth and occupies the 7th house at the commencement of this period with Rāhu in the ascendant. During the Antar Dashā of Kētu (20-8-1099 to 13-1-1100) there is increase in Mysticism. During the Antar Dashās of Venus, Sun, Moon, Mars and Rāhu (14-1-1100 to 17-7-1103), he will go on long journeys from home mostly to holy places.* He will return home during the Antar Dashā of Jupiter (18-7-1103 to 17-6-1104) and retire to solitude as a hermit during the Antar Dashā of Saturn, (18-6-1104 to 21-7-1105) and will continue to remain in seclusion till 13-7-1106.

5. "The next Mahā Dashā commencing from 14-7-1106 is of Venus which is malefic at birth and the beginning of this period. During the Antar Dashās of Venus, Sun, Moon, Mars, Rāhu and Jupiter ending 7-3-1119 he will continue to remain as a mystic recluse. The last Antar Dashā for this horoscope is of Saturn from 8-3-1119 to 20-4-1122. Saturn occupies the 8th house in the horoscope and 2nd house in full opposition to its position at nativity and continues to remain till the end of the period. This period is fatal. At the commencement of this period Jupiter is in the 9th house and protects the native till it crosses the 12th house in the second week of March 1122. The most critical period commences from 7th March 1122 and lasts till 20-4-1122. The native cannot survive 20-4-1122.*"

VIII.

THE LIGHT WHICH 'OMAR KHAYYĀM'S WRITINGS THROW ON HIS LIFE.

Unlike others 'Omar Khayyām speaks so little of himself in his writings—and even these are few. It is proposed in this Section to examine what light his few works throw upon his life.

(a) The first tract that 'Omar Khayyām wrote, now found is in 5 folios, bears the title "Risālā Abi'l Fatah 'Umar bin Ibrāhīm Al Khayyāmī" and is in the possession of 'Abbās Iqbāl Āshtiyānī, Tehrān. Extracts from this have been translated into Persian in Sharq Magazine, Tehrān, Rabi'ul Awwal 1350 H. (August 1931). pp. 480-482. In this small tract 'Omar Khayyām says:—"We know nothing about what the ancient mathematicians said regarding Algebra except from Arabs. Among modern mathematicians, Mahānī (250 H.) was the first to attempt for solutions of three of these fourteen kinds of equations, failed to solve them by means of Conic Sections and declared it impossible to solve them. Abū Ja'far Khāzin (4th century H.) found the solution and wrote a tract hereon. Abū Naṣr bin 'Irāq of Khwārazm in finding the seventh part of a circle, (the problem of Archimedes) framed an algebraic equation and solved it by Conic Sections. The problem which engaged the attention of Abū Sahl Kōhī, Abu'l Wafā Bū Zajānī (d. 376 H.) and Abū Ḥamid Ṣughānī (d. 379 H.) was: To divide ten into two parts so that the sum of their squares plus the quotient of the major part divided by minor part will equal 72. For a long time these learned men were perplexed. The solution is obtained by solving the equation $x = x^2 + x^3 + a$. Abu'l Jardh solved this, and preserved his tract in the Sāmānīan Library." In this tract Khayyām says: "If I find time I shall write a book on the solution of equations."

The above small tract is a prelude to the 'Omar Khayyām's well-known work on Algebra, and was evidently written before he had found a patron or support.

(b) 'Omar Khayyām's Algebra. Four MSS. of this work are known to exist; London India Office No. 734 X, Leyden Cod. 14 II, BN Paris Slane 2461 and Slane 2457-7°.

Of these Slane 2461 is the oldest. Slane gives the date as 626 H., but on close examination I find the colophon reads "Finished this tract at noon Sunday 13 Rabi'ul awwal 527." 13 Rabi'ul awwal falls on Sunday in 527 H. and not in 626 H. The year 527 is written in Arabic contracted words which notation was in vogue during the time of Khalif Harun ar Rashid (d. 786) [See Tārikh-i-Waṣṣāf, Bombay Litho, p. 442 for one year's account of Harun ar Rashid's Treasury by his accountant Abu'l Warā 'Umar bin Muṭrif]. This notation (of Arabic contracted words) is in vogue even now in Hyderabad Deccan for monetary accounts. On the title page of the MS. BN Slane 2461, the words "Qaddas Allāh Ruḥahū" are used as a prayer for 'Omar Khayyām's departed soul. We have here thus a documentary proof that 'Omar Khayyām had demised sufficiently long before 527 H. (1132) so that the fact was known to an ordinary scribe.

In the preface to this work 'Omar Khayyām says:—

وانى لم ازل كنت شديد الحرص على التحقيق جميع اصنافها وتمييز الممكن من
الممتنع فى انواع كل صنف براهين لمعرفتى بان الحاجة اليها فى مشكلات المسائل

Translation.

“ I always desired to investigate the various classes of Algebraic equations and discriminate, by means of proofs classes which admit a solution and which do not, because I found that such equations occur in solving some difficult problems. But, on account of adverse circumstances, I could not pursue the subject. We are in the danger that learned men would all perish. The few that remain have to undergo great hardships. Owing to the negligence of Hikmat (Science) in these times, the really learned men cannot find the opportunity and means for investigation. On the other hand the pseudo-Hakīms of these days would represent the truth as false. They do not rise above deprecating others and self-show. They do not use what little they know except for the requirements of a wretched carcass. On finding a person who devotes his whole life to the acquisition of truth and repudiation of falsehood and hypocrisy, a person who shuns selfishness and cunning, these pseudo-Hakīms will only jeer and threaten him. God helps under all circumstances, and everything happens through Him. After I had lost all hopes to find a patron, God Almighty opened an opportunity to me to remain in the constant company of the Honourable our Leader the Great and unique Qādī of Qādis Imām Sayyid Abū Ṭāhīr. May God exalt him for ever and efface his enviers and enemies! I had not found any one like him, so perfect in knowledge as well as practice, efficient in learning, courteous, benevolent and ever ready to help his fellow-beings each and all. When I saw him my heart rejoiced. His company made me famous. My position was raised through the light acquired from him. His kindness and gifts strengthened my sinews. Then I had nothing to do but investigate the questions of Hikmat (Science) from which I was precluded by adverse times, so that I may be admitted to his assembly.”

The profuse praise indicates the intensity of distress in which ‘Omar was involved before he wrote his Algebra. The Abū Ṭāhīr to whom ‘Omar dedicates his first work has been identified by Sayyid Sulaimān Nadwī (Khayyām pp. 99-103) with 'Abd ur Raḥmān bin Aḥmad 'Alak Abū Ṭāhīr Sāria, born 430 H. (1039) [Subkī], d. 484 (1091) [Ibn Athīr]: He was a learned Shāf'ī Doctor rich and influential in Samarqand—[It is noteworthy that BN. MS. Slane 2461 writes "Fulan" in place of Abū Ṭāhīr. The other MSS. mention the name]. In 482 H. (1089) Abū Ṭāhīr came to Malik Shāh and invited him to the conquest of Samarqand which was being mismanaged by its unpopular ruler Aḥmed Khan. [Ibn Athīr. events of 482 H.].

(c) The MS. of "Muṣādarāt Kitāb Uclīdas" "Corollaries of Euclid" Leyden Cod. 199 VIII shows as noted above § IV that 'Omar Khayyām had fair-copied this Tract in his own hand at the end of Jamadī'ul awwal 470 (20 November 1077).

(d) Persian translation of Abu 'Alī Sīnā's Sermon.—From an article by Sa'īd Nafīsī in "Sharq" Magazine Rabi' ul awwal 1350 H. (1931) (pp. 449-459) it appears that there are two MSS. of this translation, one in the possession of Ḥāj Sayyid Naṣr ullāh Taqwī and the other in the library of Nāṣarī School (Sharq p. 470). The older MS. bears the title "Translation of Sermon by 'Omar bin Ibrāhīm 'an Nisābūrī al Khayyām. So says the Nādirat ul Falak 'Omar bin Ibrāhīm an Nisābūrī al Khayyām: Some friends requested me in Iṣfahān in the year 477 to translate the Sermon written by Ash Shaikh al Ḥakīm Abu 'Alī bin Sīnā. Hence I translated what he has said."

This shows that in 472 H. (1079) when Omar Khayyām was at the observatory of Iṣfahān his attention was directed to theology. In the previous year he had reformed the Persian calendar, and the new Malik Shāhī era commenced from 10th Ramaḍān 471 H. (15 March 1079). In the subsequent year 473 H. we find him in the region of Metaphysics.

(e) 'Omar Khayyām's Tract on "Koun wa Taklīf".—This Arabic tract is reproduced in Jawāmi'ul Badāya', Sa'adat Press, Cairo, 1300 H. from a manuscript dated 699 H. (1300) which was in the possession of Nūr'ud Dīn Bēg Muṣṭafā. It commences as follows:—

"Abu Naṣr bin 'Abd ur Raḥīm'an Nasawī who was a Qāḍī and Imām in the region of Fars addressed a letter in 473 H. (1080) to Ḥujjatul Haqq, the world-known philosopher, and leader of Ḥakīms of East and West, Abu'l Fataḥ 'Omar bin Ibrāhīm al Khayyāmī (may God purify his soul). The letter dealt with a discussion on the Divine Wisdom in the Creation and Chastening of Man. It contained many verses of which only the following are preserved.

“Prithee O Zephyr grant a boon to me,
Tell greetings to the Sage Al Khayyami,
And humbly kiss anon the dust of ground,
Thus meek devotees have a solace found.
For, if the Sage would sprinkle nectar pure,
My crumbling bones would get the needed cure.
Why is this World or Man, for aught we know?
And why should man a Chastening undergo?”

To this he (‘Omar Khayyām) replied in the following Risāla’:

“My learned and accomplished brother! (May God extend your life and increase your honour and avert all harm from you and yours!). Your knowledge excels that of our contemporaries and your accomplishments are far enhanced than theirs. For, you know far better than others how difficult the questions of Creation and Chastening are to those who have pondered on them. Each of these questions gets subdivided into several subjects in dealing with which there is a diversity of opinion among the Seers. And you know that both these questions are the final questions in Metaphysics (‘Ilm-i ‘Ala u Hikmat-i Ūlū) and opinions of those that have discoursed on them are conflicting. Such being the case, it is difficult to speak on these subjects. But as you have honoured me by bidding me to discourse on this subject, the only method which I can adopt is to determine the categories and explain them first briefly, as far as I have learnt, because I have no time and cannot discourse at great length. This is because I know full well that you are widely informed and are endowed with an intellect which grasps great subjects in a few words, and reaches from a hint to ideas conveyed in sentences. In both these questions my position is not of a teacher but a disciple, not of one who expounds but of one who gains, so that I may profit from your vast knowledge and quench my thirst from the Sea of knowledge that you are. (May God preserve your learning and may we never be deprived of your honourable protection. And may He ever guide us, for He is the Source of all Goodness and Justice).”

Then follows the discourse proper, translation of which by Prof. ‘Abdul Quddūs, Translation Bureau, Hyderabad will be found in § xiii below.

This Arabic tract was followed by other tracts which have been reproduced by Sayyid Sulaiman Nadwī. For translation of the tract named The Necessity of Contradiction, Free Will and Determinism by Prof. M. W. Raḥmān, M.A. see § XIII below.

(f) Persian Tract named "Kullīāt-i Wajūd" or "Roudat ul Qulūb."—We have not so far found any writings of 'Omar Khayyām between the above-mentioned Arabic tracts written in 473 (1080) or soon thereafter and 488 H. (1095). He must have been very busy with his observatory and duties as the Nadīm and Physician of Malik Shāh. After the demise of the wise minister Nizāmul Mulk and Malik Shāh in 485 H. (1092), 'Omar Khayyām seems to have lost royal support. His next prose compilation is addressed to Fakhrul Mulk son of Nizāmul Mulk, Sultān Barkiyāruq's Vazīr from 488 H. to 498 (1095 to 1105). This compilation named Kullīāt-i Wajūd or Roudat ul Qulūb may have been written soon after 1095.

There are three manuscripts of this tract (1) BM. London Or 6572, (2) BN. Paris Supp. Pers. 139 VII and (3) Majlis Shūrai Mille Tehrān No. 9072 written Shawwal 1288. Each differs from the others in readings. Sayyid Sulaiman Nadwī has reproduced this tract from the first two manuscripts. [Khayyām pp. 414-423] which contain two sections more than the manuscript at Tehrān. This tract commences as follows:—

"Thus sayeth Abu'l Fataḥ 'Umar bin 'Ibrāhīm Al'Khayyām that whereas I have the good fortune to serve the just Fakhrul Mulk, and whereas he has given me a special place near him in his exalted assembly, and whereas this great man always desired a memento from me I have composed this tract. If a philosopher pursues it judiciously, he will find this short tract more useful than volumes."

The following is the conclusion:—

"The seekers after cognition of God fall into four groups:

First: The Mutakallamīs who prefer to remain content with traditional belief and such reasons and arguments as are consistent therewith.

Second: Philosophers and Ḥakīmīs who seek to find God by reasons and arguments and do not rely on any dogmas. But these men find that their reasons and arguments ultimately fail and succumb.

Third: Isma'īlīs and Ta'limīs who say that the knowledge of God is not correct unless it is acquired through the right source, because there are various phases in the path for the cognition of the Creator, His Being and Attributes where arguments fail and minds are perplexed. Hence it is first necessary to seek the Word from the right source. . .

Fourth: The Šūfīs who seek the knowledge of God not merely by contemplation and meditation, but by purification of the heart and cleansing the faculty of perception from its natural impurities and engrossment with the body. When the human soul is thus purified it becomes capable of reflecting the Divine images. And there is no doubt that this path is the best, because we know that the Lord does not withhold any perfection from human soul. It is the darkness and impurity which is the main obstacle—if there be any. When this veil disappears and the obstructions are removed the real facts will be evident as they are. And our Prophet (may peace be on him) has hinted to the same effect.

‘Verily the Lord has bestowed on you His Spirit through all the days of your lives. Hence O men! realise this and evince your gratitude for the bounties He has bestowed on you by praising Him and leading good lives.’”

We see that ‘Omar Khayyām preferred the path of Šūfīs to those of others, i.e., to purify the heart and cleanse the soul from carnal engrossments and await the grace of Lord.

‘(g) ‘Omar Khayyām’s poetical writings.—We have five Quittas of ‘Omar Khayyām’s Arabic verses quoted by Shaharzūri and Qiftī and a Persian Qitta found in some MSS. besides the quatrains. They do not generally indicate ‘Omar’s age at the time of their composition. The following quatrains however help us in inferring the age.

After 30th year: 102: X, 35, Bad nāmī.

My evil fame has soared above the skies,
My joyless life above its thirty flies;
But if I could, I’d drink a hundred toasts
For life so safe and freed from wedlock ties.

Middle age about 40th year 485: IX, 30 Fardā.

For sorrows past, tomorrow I shall weep,
Today, for Him a loving heart I keep;
He beckons me, and days are full of hope,
If now I sow no bliss, when may I reap?

After 50th and before 60th year: 893: IX, 131, Andaza....

One lives to sixty years, but seldom more,
Thy feet should ply to only mystic's door;
And ere they mould Thy pan to serve as pot,
Lift up His pitcher, serve Him, scrub the floor.

Quatrain 102: X, 35, Bad nāmī.....mentioned above indicates that after the age of thirty 'Omar wrote poetry and was not in wedlock. Chapter X of quatrains will show how he satired his contemporaries, lost friends and felt despondent.

IX.

EYE-WITNESSES.

In this Section we examine the notices about 'Omar Khayyām by Abu'l Ḥasan Baihaqī and Nizāmī 'Urūḍī who had personally seen him.

(a) Tatimma' Şiwān al Hikmat of Baihaqī (see § iv above) contains the following account about 'Omar Khayyām:—

The Dastūr and Philosopher Hujjatul Haq (Proof of Truth) 'Omar bin Ibrāhīm al Khayyām.

He was born at Nishāpūr where his ancestors lived, ranks next to 'Abū 'Alī Sīnā (d. Ramaḍān 428 H. May 1037 in various branches of Philosophy, but was discourteous and reserved. Once at Isfahān, he read a book seven times and retained it in memory. On his return to Nishāpūr he dictated it. This copy, on comparison, was not found to differ much from the original. His ascendant was the Gemini. The Sun and Mercury were on the degree of the ascendant in the third degree of the Gemini, Mercury was Şamīmī and Jupiter was looking on both from triangulation.

He was sparing in composing books and teaching, wrote no books except a Brief Natural Philosophy, a Tract on Existence and a Tract on Creation and Chastening. He was a great scholar of Arabic, Law and History. They say that once Imām 'Omar came to Shahābul Islām 'Abd ur Razzāq bin Faqīh Abu'l Qāsim 'Abdullah bin 'Alī, the nephew of Nizām ul Mulk. Abu'l Ḥasan al Ghazzālī (d. 516 H. Yāqūt) the Imām of Qārīs was there. They were discussing the variants in the readings of a certain verse in Qur'ān. Shahāb ul Islām exclaimed, "Stop, here comes one who knows." When the question was referred to 'Omar Khayyām, he stated the various readings and reasons for each. He also stated the spurious readings and their reasons. Then he preferred one reading over all the rest. The Imām of Qārīs exclaimed: "May God increase men like you among the learned! Consider me a kin of your people, and be kind to me. I never imagined that even any professional Qur'ān reciter in the world knew and retained in memory all this! How could then a Ḥakīm known!"

He excelled in various branches of Philosophy such as Mathematics and Sciences found on reason. Imām Ḥujjatul Islām Muḥammad al Ghazzālī [lectured at Nizāmīa School 1107-1111] visited ‘Omar Khayyām one day and asked the question “Why a particular part of celestial sphere was determined as the pole when all parts were alike.” I have mentioned this question in my book named ‘Arāis un Nafāis. Imām ‘Omar then prolonged the conversation and commenced by explaining the categories of motion. He avoided the main issue at discussion, as was usual with that worthy sage, until afternoon. The crier called for Afternoon Prayers. Then said Imām Gazzālī “The truth came and falsehood disappeared”—and rose up. One day Imām ‘Omar visited the great Sultān Sānjar (b. 1078), when he was yet a child, and came out. The loyal vazīr Mujīr ud Dowla’ enquired: “How is he? What have you prescribed for him?” The Imām replied the child is in a critical condition. A negro eunuch understood and reported to the Sultān. On recovery from his illness, the Sultān hated and disliked Imām ‘Omar. Sultān Malik Shāh treated him as his Nadīm, and Khāqān Shams ul Mulk of Bukhārā [ruled on Bukhārā 460 H.-472 H. (1068-1079). Nadwī Khayyām p. 107.] treated him with great respect and seated him by his own side on the throne. Imām ‘Omar once told my father thus:—One day I was in the presence of Sultān Malik Shāh. A child, the son of an Amir, entered and paid his homage admirably. I was surprised at such an admirable behaviour from so young a child. The Sultān said: “This is no wonder. A chicken, as the shell cracks, picks up grain. A young pigeon cannot pick up grain unless taught by being fed with the bill, but becomes a courier, leads the way and flies from Mecca to Baghdād.” I was wonder-struck by Sultān’s remarks. Great men are inspired!

I visited the Imām with my father—May God have mercy on him!—in the year 507 H. (1113). He asked me the meaning of the following verse in Hamāsah’ (Baihaqī gives the verse and how he explained). After this ‘Omar asked me to enumerate different kinds of arcs. I replied there are four. The circle, the semi-circle, are less than a semi-circle, and the arc greater than a semi-circle. Then he said to my father, “Like father like son.”

His Khutan (son-in-law or brother-in-law) Imām Muḥammad Baghdādī told me as follows:—“‘Omar Khayyām was picking his teeth with a golden toothpick and reading Ash Shafā (Avicenna's book). When he came to the chapter dealing with "The One and the Many," he placed the toothpick between the leaves and said: 'Invite pious persons so that I may bequeath.' He bequeathed, got up and said his prayers. He took neither food nor water. After his last prayers at night, with his head bent on ground he said: 'O God! Thou knowest I perceive Thee to the utmost of my capacity. Forgive me, because my acquaintance with Thee is my Mediator to Thee,' and he expired.

Note (1).—Baihaqī has stated that Sultān Malik Shāh used to treat 'Omar Khayyām like a Nadīm. The qualification of a Nadīm stated by Niẓām ul Mulk in his Siyāsat Nāma, (ch. 17) are as follows: "A Nadīm should be respectable, learned, well-behaved, lively, reliable in confidential matters, pure in religious observations and belief, acquainted with history and stories, expert at chess and games, connoisseur in Music and Arts." [Niẓām ul Mulk Tūsī p. 276]. All these qualifications were centred in 'Omar Khayyām. Rāḥat uṣ Ṣudūr (cir. 1205) also states: "Nadīm should be a person fit to be a minister. He should be a respectable person, well-behaved and expert in various sciences and arts. He should know history of Kings and poetry [p. 406 Gibb New Series]. The meaning of this word has degenerated in modern times to "boon companion."

Note (2).—Imām Muḥammad Baghdādī was probably under Sultān Sanjar. Rashīd ud Dīn Watwāt addressed a letter to him from the camp of Hazār Asp. "Khutan" means any relation from his wife's side. Hence Imām Muḥammad may have been the husband of 'Omar's daughter or sister. Dowlat Shāh first mentions that Shāhpūr Ash'arī (d. 1203) was a descendant of 'Omar Khayyām. Ātashkada' states that Shāhpūr was the son of Umaidī Tehrānī. Tarabkhāna' emphatically states 'Omar neither married nor had any sons nor daughters. See below § xi d. story viii.

Tatimma' Ṣiwān contains other references mentioning persons whom 'Omar Khayyām met or saw. Thus Abu'l Ḥasan Ambārī explained Al Mijistī to 'Omar Khayyām [Item 53 T. Ṣ.]. 'Omar Khayyām's pupils were; 'Abdullāh bin Muḥammad Mayānjī author of Zubdatul Haqāiq [Item 67 T. Ṣ.], Muḥammad ul Īlāqī author of several philosophical works [Item 73 T. Ṣ.], 'Ali bin Muḥammad al Ḥajjāzī al Qāinī a physician [Item 83]. Among 'Omar Khayyām's contemporaries Tatimma' Ṣiwān mentions, Mohammad bin Ahmad Ma'mūrī Baihaqī author of Conic Sections; Abū Ḥātim Muẓaffar Isfizārī who constructed a balance for determining a quantity of gold in an alloy [Item 68], and 'Alāud Dowla' Farāmurz bin 'Alī Farāmurz Prince of Yezd whom Baihaqī met in 516 H. (1122). This Prince Baihaqī relates [Item 65] upheld the objections raised by Ḥakīm Abū'l Barkāt a physician of Baghdād [Item 93] expressed in his book Al Mo'tabar in refutation of Abu 'Alī Sīnā. 'Omar Khayyām said Abū'l Barkāt had not the talents to understand Abū 'Alī Sīnā, much less to criticise him. The Prince retorted that objections should be answered by arguments and not by abuse. 'Omar Khayyām then left.

(b) Chahār Maqāla of Niẓāmī 'Urūḍī. MSS. of this well-known book are very scarce. From a handwritten copy of Stambūl MS. 285 written in 835 H. (1431) and two MSS. in London BM. 3507 and 2955 dated respectively 1017 H. and 1274 H. Prof. Ed. Browne has published the text and translation. (Gibb Memorial Series). Two more manuscripts have since been found. One by S. S. Nadwī in Bombay Cāmā Institute written about 1194 H. and one by me in Nawāb Salar Jung's library written in 1158 H. According to the personal references in Chahār Maqāla the author of this book was at Samarqand in 504 H. (1110), at Balkh in 506 H. (1112), at Hirāt in 509 H. (1115), at Nishāpūr and Tūs in 510 H. (1116), and again at Nishāpūr in 512 H. He was hiding in Hirāt after the defeat of Ghūr by Sanjar in 547 H. (1152). Chahār Maqāla may have been written between (1152) and (1162), [L. H. P. Browne, p. 358], and relates three stories about 'Omar Khayyām's expert knowledge of Astrology:—

(i) When Sultān Maḥmūd bin Malik Shāh (1104-1117) wished to quell the rebellious Amīr of Sadaqā [Ibn Athīr 501 H. (1107)], the court astrologers could not augur an auspicious time. A charlatan augured and was rewarded. The Sultān returned successful from the battle and desired to punish the court astrologers. These astrologers requested the Sultān to ascertain the truth of what they had said by writing to 'Omar Khayyām who was then in Khurāsān.

(ii) In the winter of 508 H. (1114) the Sultān (Maḥmūd bin Malik Shāh) sent a messenger to Ṣadr ud Dīn Maḥmūd bin Muẓaffar (his vazīr) residing at Merv to request 'Omar Khayyām (who was there) to augur a time for hunting so that the weather may be clear. 'Omar Khayyām considered the question for two days, augured the proper time, and seated the Sultān (on horseback) at that time and told him to proceed. The Sultān marched for a furlong when a storm appeared. All laughed (at 'Omar Khayyām's augury). The Sultān did not wish to return. 'Omar Khayyām assured that the storm will subside soon, and for the next five days the skies will be clear. The Sultān went out hunting, and 'Omar Khayyām's augury came true.

(iii) The third story is important in fixing 'the date of 'Omar Khayyām's demise and runs as follows:—

حکایت - در سنه ۵۰۶ ست و خمسایه بشهر بلخ در کوچه برده فروشان در
سرای امیر بوسعده خواجه امام عمر خیام و خواجه مظفر اسقرازی نزول
کرده بودند و من بدان خدمت پیوسته بمیان مجلس عشرت از حجة الحق
عمر شنودم که گفت گور من در موضعی باشد که هر سال بر من دوبار درختان
گل افشان کنند مرا این سخن محال بنظر آمد و دانستم که چو او سخن
گزاف نمیگوید چون در سنه ۵۳۰ ثلاثین نیشابو رسیدم و چند (چندان)
سال بود که آن بزرگ روی بنقاب تراب کشیده بود و عالم سفلی ازان یتیم
مانده او را بر من حق استادی بود آدینه زیارت او رفتم و یکی را با خود
بردم تا خاک او را بمن نماید مرا بگورستان حیره بیرون آورد بر دست چپ
کشم در پائین دیوار باغی گور اوست و درختان امرود و زرد آلو ازان
باغ سر بیرون کرده و چندان برگ شکوفه بر خاک او ریخته بود که خاکش
در زیر گل پنهان شده بود مرا آن حکایت یاد آمد که اندر شهر بلخ ازو
شنیده بودم گریه بر من افتاد که در بسیط عالم و اقطار ربع مسکون او را
بهیچ جای نظیری نمیدیدم ایزد تبارک و تعالی بر او رحمت کناد بمنه و کرمه

"In the year five hundred and six Khwājā 'Omar Khayyāmī and Khwāja' Imām Muẓaffar Isfazārī had sojourned at the palace of Amīr bin Sa'd in the street of Slave Traders in Balkh. I was present there. In the course of the entertainment I heard Ḥujjat ul Ḥaq 'Omar say "My grave will be in a place where every spring the northern winds will shower blossoms." I was wonder-struck, but knew that he will not utter false. When in the "thirty" I reached Nishāpūr it was four [or some or fourteen] years since that great man had concealed his face under the veil of dust, and left the world an orphan. He was my teacher. On Friday I started to visit his grave. I took a person to show me the place. He took me out to the graveyard of Haira'. I turned to the right and found him buried near the basement of a garden-wall, guava and peach trees protruded from the garden and showered blossoms so profusely on the grave that it was hidden there-under. I then remembered what he had said in Balkh and began to weep. „Nowhere” in all the world I had found the like of him.”

Death’s news flies quick, ‘Omar Khayyām was a famous person, and Nizāmī Urūdī was moving in high circles. One cannot conceive how Nizāmī Urūdī remained ignorant of the demise of his famous master for “four or fourteen or some” years! or forgot him for twenty-four years “506” to “thirty”! The indecisive readings show that even the Stambul MS. may have not been properly copied.

Evidently Mr. E. Browne’s copyist could not decipher the Stambul MS. and wrote Chand (chand’an)—on the basis of this Maulanā Qazwīnī fixes the date of ‘Omar Khayyām 526 or a few years before 530 H. Sayyid Sulaiman Nadwī prefers to take 526 H. as the date of ‘Omar Khayyām’s demise (‘Omar Khayyām, p. 56).

OTHER IMPORTANT NOTICES REGARDING
'OMAR KHAYYAM.

In this section, I propose to survey some notices about 'Omar Khayyām or his quatrains in the early histories.

(a) Nuzhat ul Arwāḥ by Shaharzūrī (d. 1193), reproduces, (with slight changes) 'Tatimma' Ṣiwān of Baihaqī and adds 3 Arabic Qīṭa's, which have been reproduced by Dr. Rosen in the preface to his edition of "Quatrains of 'Omar Khayyām" (No. 1, 2 and 3). The Persian Translation of Nuzhat ul Arwāḥ done by Maqṣūd 'Alī Tabrizī in 1011 H. (1602) [HSL. MS. 33]. wr. 1032 (1623) quotes two Persian quatrains 506: X. 76 Gōyand ba ḥaṣhr, and 338: I. 30 Az wāqa'atē, instead of the Arabic Qīṭa's.

(b) Qiftī: Jamāl ud Dīn Abī'l Ḥasan, 'Alī bin Yūsuf al Qiftī (d. 1240) in his Tārīkhul Ḥukamā writes as follows:—

"'Omar. Imām of Khurāsān, and the most learned man of his age taught Greek Sciences. He maintained that men should attain the universal God by purification of bodily actions and refinement of the human mind. (See Omar's Persian tract, Kulliat al Wajūd). He also exhorted men, in accordance with Greek discipline to observe and obey all civil laws. (cp. Arabic Tract on Koun wa Taklif). The later ṣūfis understood some apparent purport of his poems and interpreted it to be in accordance with their own doctrines, and discoursed on them in their open assemblies and inner circles. (See Kulliat al wajūd). But the insinuations of his poems were a biting criticism on Shara', and a jumble of entanglements (See ch. X of 'Omar's quatrains). When his contemporaries slandered him regarding his faith and spread abroad his secret doctrines, he curbed his speech and pen, for fear of loss of life. He made a pilgrimage for his safety but not from ostentation. When he reached Baghdād his old disciples hastened to him with a request that he should discourse on the ancient philosophy. But he closed relations with them as one repentant, and not as a friend. He returned to his native place from pilgrimage. He retired to the praying place and there he spent his nights and days. He kept his secrets and did not reveal them. He was matchless in Astronomy and Philosophy and was considered famous 'in these matters."

Qifī quotes Arabic verses by 'Omar Khayyām.

(c) Under the town Nishāpūr, Zakīria Qazwīnī (1276) writes as follows, in his famous Geography called Athāru'l Bilād.

"From this place hails, among the Hakīms, 'Omar Khayyām who knew all the branches of Science, specially Mathematics. He was in the time of Sultān Malik Shāh Saljūqī. The Sultān had entrusted him with a large amount for the purchase of instruments and construction of his observatory. Then the Sultān died and the observatory was not constructed. (An inaccurate statement).

"They say that 'Omar had halted at a hostel infested by birds who proved a great nuisance. The people of that place complained to 'Omar. 'Omar placed a clay model of a bird on the roof of the building, and thus freed it from the infesting birds.,

"A certain jurist used to take lessons from 'Omar Khayyām in Sciences every morning, and used to slander him in public. 'Omar gathered drummers and trumpeters in his house one morning. When the jurist came to take lessons as usual, he ordered the drummers and trumpeters to beat and blow. When people gathered in the street 'Omar said: "Behold O men of Nishāpūr! This is your Teacher who comes every day at this time to learn from me and then slanders me when he preaches to you."

(d) In Rāhat uş Şudūr (cir. 1205) Muḥammad bin 'Alī Rāwandī does not mention 'Omar Khayyām. In a chapter on Wine he describes how it came into use, and then says "The kings of Persia have adorned their courts with wine (p. 423 Gibb). The poets have sung in praise of wine and even the cups and other utensils (p. 425 Gibb), and quotes the following quatrain ascribed to 'Omar Khayyām in many MSS.

929: IX. 32. Yak jur'a mayē kuhna' zi mulkē nau bih.

(e) Tārīkh-i Jahān Gushay (cir. 1260), gives an instance which shows that 'Omar Khayyām's quatrains had attained a publicity (Gibb XVI. I p. 128). "Sayyid 'Izz ud Dīn Nisabā a pious and learned gentleman counted the numbers of men massacred by Tārtār hordes in 618 H. and found that they exceeded one thousand and three hundred thousands and recited at that time this quatrain of 'Omar Khayyām which fitted the occasion "

125 V. 16. Tarkīb-i piyāla' rā ki dar ham paiwašt.

(f) In Jām'i ut Tawārikh Rashīd ud Dīn Faḍl ul lah (d. 1318) mentions that Nizām ul Mulk Ṭūsī was a school-mate of Ḥasan Ṣabbāḥ and 'Omar Khayyām.

(g) Tārīkh-i Waṣṣāf by Faḍl ul lah bin Aḥmad Shīrazī (d. 1328), quotes (p. 589) the following quatrain of 'Omar Khayyām.

147: V. 23. Khārē ki ba zeri pāyi har ḥaiwānēst.

(h) Tārīkh-i Guzīda' by Ḥamd ul Allāh Mustawfī (cir. 1330) states (Gibb. p. 517) that Ḥasan Ṣabbāḥ was the chamberlain (Ḥājib) of Alp Arsalān. After that as related by 'Abd ul Malik 'Attāsh he became a Shī'ī. He fostered an enmity with Nizām ul Mulk on account of the incident regarding the accounts mentioned above (Gibb. p. 429-31). He left the service of Alp Arsalān, went to Ray in 464 H. to Syria in 471 H. to Ālmūt in 483 H. and died on the night of Wednesday 6 Rabi'us Sānī 518 H. (21 May 1124).

This book notices 'Omar Khayyām as follows (p. 817).

"Khayyām. 'Omar bin Ibrahīm ranked foremost in his time in almost all branches of learning especially in Astronomy. He was in the service of Malik Shāh Saljuqī. He has written excellent tracts and fine verses. The following is one of them."

276: V. 22. Har dharra' ki bar rūyi zamīnē būd ast.

XI.

CRITICS AND FOLKLORE.

As 'Qiftī states the sūfīs interpreted 'Omar Khayyām's poems in accordance with their own doctrines and discoursed on them in their open assemblies and inner circles, but the insinuations of his poems were a biting criticism on Shara'. There was thus a diversity of opinions from the very outset. It is proposed to review in this section some of these opinions and the folklore which originated to explain 'Omar's Cryptic quatrains.

(a) Khāqānī (d. 1186) with reverence compares his deceased uncle, of unknown fame, 'Omār bin 'Othmān (d. 1131) to 'Omar Khayyām and the Prophet's Khalifah 'Omar Khaṭṭab (Kulliat-i Khāqānī, Nawal Kishore).

(b) Najmud Dīn Rāzī (Dāyā) the author of Mirṣād ul 'Ibād (1223) in recommending his book to Sulṭān Kaiq-ubad, to whom it is dedicated, writes as follows:—

"The reader of this book will be able to walk in the path joyfully, so that what he sees he may put into practice. For the fruit of sight is belief and the fruit of action is knowledge. The poor philosophers, materialists and naturalists—May God confound them!—are deprived of both of these stages and are bewildered and lost. Thus one who is notorious among them for learning, science and cleverness, namely Khayyām, and who may be said to have been imprisoned in the following two quatrains, has evinced his blindness from the depth of confusion."

181: II. 1 Dourē ki,

This cycle wherein thus we come and go
Has neither beginning, nor an end I trow,
And whence we came and where we next repair,
None tells it straight. You tell me yes or no.

153: V. 15. Dārinda',

As Keeper mixt our natures,—all the same—
Why call this bad and that as worse by name?
If good the mixture, why the pot would break?
If bad the form, on whom ye lay the blame?

It seems that philosophical speculations on 'Omar Khayyām's verses were gaining ground in Sufi circles and the pious author wished to denounce them. Here 'Omar Khayyām is called a "Philsuf" as an abuse to denote an adherent of Greek Philosophy. The same charge was apparently brought against him by his enemies to which he replies as follows:—

757: X. 133. Dushman.

They call me Philsuf, foes will so opine,
But Lord! Thou knowest really they malign;
For since I entered this Thy shrine of love,
I know not what I am, but I am Thine!

(c) Ilāhī Nāma:—We have another specimen of such criticism in Ilāhī Nāma [ch. 17 p. 893. Kuliat-i Farid ud Dīn 'Attār Nawal Kishore Press] cited as folklore:—

"A Seer was of widest fame,
And when he called the Spirits came,
So when he walked besides a tomb
He saw the dead in later doom.
A Sage to test how Seer sees,
Took him where Khayyām slept in peace,
And asked: "O Seer now to-day
What do you find beneath the clay?"
The Seer said: "I find, O Sage!
This man as raw and hemmed in Cage.
He turned to God and faced His Door,
But claimed acquaintance on that score,
Now finds to nought his knowledge came,
His soul is melting out of shame."

After thus relating the unknown clairvoyant's opinion about the post-mortem condition of 'Omar Khayyām's soul, 'Attār adds the following moral composed mostly from ideas of 'Omar Khayyām's quatrains:—

Moral.

"That Door is closed to seven spheres,
No claim to know have all the Seers.
No starting point, no end is found,
Effect and cause go round and round,
The Sphere's a ball, thro' nights and days,
To you no head or tail displays.
Who knoweth in this desert land
The way to go, and place to stand?
A hundred times I roamed around
The world, but then no help I found.
Of pain, remorse the world is made,
And Time's a sword with sharpest blade."

According to the last words of 'Omar Khayyām section ix (a) he claimed acquaintance with the Deity. Perhaps this was considered a piece of arrogance in pious circles and hence the folklore!

(d) Folklore in Ṭarabkhāna' or Dah Faṣl.—We have more instances of folklore for fanciful interpretation of 'Omar's cryptic quatrains in Dah Faṣl or Tarabkhāna' compiled by Yār Aḥmad Tabrīzī in 867 H. (1462). In nine sections of this booklet (Ha) the compiler proposed to arrange subjectionally 'Omar Khayyām's quatrains (in which attempt he has not succeeded) and the 10th section is devoted to folklore and incidents with the poet's life. The compiler takes no responsibility to attest the correctness of the narratives. It is proposed to examine them here to find the grain of truth behind the legend. The ten stories in the 10th section of Dah Faṣl run thus:

(i) "It is related in Ancient History (?) that Ḥaḍrat Abū Sa'īd Abil Khair was a contemporary of Ḥakīm Khayyām and between them there were discourses. Once upon a time Ḥakīm 'Omar sent the following quatrain by way of objection to Ḥaḍrat Shaikh, who sent his reply to it.

Khayyām's question 153: V. 15 Dārinda'.

As Keeper mixt our natures,—all the same—
Why call this bad and that as worse by name?
If good the mixture, why the pot would break?

Reply by Abū Sa'īd Abil Khair 150: IV. 60. Khayyām

Khayyam! thy body straight as tent it stands,
Thy soul is King, Nirvana he commands;
And Death is Laskar who removes the tent,
When King departs to conquer other lands.

Note:—Khayyām's question is the same to which the author of Mirṣād ul 'Ibād has taken objection. The retort to it is put in Khayyām's own quatrain, 150: IV. 60 which is found vagrant with quatrains ascribed to Rūmī and Afḍal. To put this quatrain as a retort by Abū Sa'īd who demised (as generally accepted) in 1048 A.D., i.e., in the year 'Omar was born is mere anachronism.

(ii) Second story, Tabrīzī states: "It is heard that the Ḥakīm was very fond of hunting, and went to country-side in the vicinity of Ustarābād as usual with his hound. The hound pursued a fox, but suddenly a boar came out and vanquished the hound. Ḥakīm said the following quatrain.

607: VII. 82. Afsōs azīn.

Alas! this cur it barked and raised uproar,
In running fast with winds a likeness bore;
But since it longed for chewing beastly bones,
It fared at last we see with tusks of boar.”

Note:—The quatrain was found cryptic by the inventor of the fox-hunt not mentioned there. ‘Omar compares the impure mind to a dog in the following quatrain No. 269: VII. 81. Nafsat.

Our lust, like house-dog, stands with bristling hair,
It barks, and whines, and snarls, at empty air;
It tricks us like a fox, and dreams as hare,
And tears us like a wolf, and hugs us as bear.

(iii) Third story, Tabrizī proceeds: “Some say that Ḥakīm ‘Omar Khayyām believed in Metempsychosis and allege that once the school of Nishāpūr was dilapidated. Persons rebuilding it engaged asses to carry bricks. One of these asses could not climb up the height and did not move an inch in spite of beating. Khayyām recited the following quatrain in the ear of the ass, when it stood up and walked away.

898: X. 128: , Ai rafta’

O you who went and now return as stale,
To men you seem a sorry fairy tale;
Your nails have rolled around in single hoof,
Your beard is sweeping ground a shaggy tail.

“The same story continues. When asked why the ass so behaved, ‘Omar explained that the soul pertaining to the body (of the ass) belonged to the teacher who lived here, but did not progress, and hence reverted to lower order, some hold that a hell is but a retrogression. Out of shame he did not step higher and progressed on hearing a friend’s word.”

Note:—The quatrain is addressed to a man who had returned from a long solitude. The inventor of the story takes the quatrain as addressed to an ass and adds to explain “Perdition is stationary” taken from ‘Omar Khayyām’s Persian tract on Kulliat-i Wajūd. For ‘Omar’s views see quatrains V. 18 to V. 23.

(iv) Fourth story, Tabrizī goes on: "It has been ascertained that Imām Muḥammad bin Muḥammad Ghazzālī wished to write a book on Philosophy, so that he may ascertain the arguments of philosophy and refute them to the embellishment of the Shara'. In those times Khayyām was the greatest philosopher. When Imām Ghazzālī visited, 'Omar Khayyām refused to teach for want of time. But it was arranged, after all, that every morning when still intoxicated the Ḥakīm may dictate some words and the Imām may write them as he understood. God knows! twelve years passed in this way, and after completing the book of Hikmat-i 'Ain the Imām took leave and prepared to depart to Mash'had. Ḥakīm sent (the following) quatrain on the doctrines of philosophers and astronomers, and ordered that a drum should be beaten on the roof of the house where the Imām had halted. When people gathered they announced that Imām Muḥammad is the disciple of the Ḥakīm, but wished only to refute the arguments of philosophers.

Quatrain 422: II. 4. Dar charkh.

What sundry views about this Wheel they keep!
 These waders try to gauge the oceans deep;
 But when thro' veil of Time they cannot peep,
 They cast an horoscope, and then they sleep."

Note:—Imām Muḥammad Gazzālī was at Nishāpūr for some years and has also written a book called Tahāfat'ul Filsafa' in refutation of the Doctrines of Ḥakīms of those times. 'Omar Khayyām was charged of being a "Philsuf" by his contemporaries. The story however seems to be a curious combination of the anecdotes given by Baihaqī [Section ix a.] and Qazwīnī [Section x c.].

(v) Fifth story, Tabrizī states: "It is well known that in those days Sayyid Nāṣir Khusraw had composed his book named Rōshnāi Nāma' and sent it to the Ḥakīm for perusal. Ḥakīm excused himself. He was again asked to give some tract or Qasīda' or Ghazal large or small. He excused himself from these three—but sent a few quatrains as Gift, saying that Providence has made me weak in speech. I cannot help. These quatrains have been given in another section which is well-known as 'Mouqūfāt' and need not be repeated."

Note:—The only MS. of Tabrizī's compilation marking section namely Sd. gives three quatrains under the title

“Mouqūfāt.”

773. XI. 21: Gar dar gīrī.

854. VII. 47: Zīn gumbad.

314. X. 31; Ānhan ki asās-i kār.

The other two MSS. of this compilation which contain the preface and the 10th section namely (Ha) and (Sc) do not mark properly the middle sections. Hence we cannot specify “Mouqūfāt” or Gift quatrains. This much is gathered that some quatrains of ‘Omar Khayyām were known in those days as “Mouqūfāt” or Public Gifts and were separated by compilers as an appendix to ‘Omar Khayyām’s quatrains.

Nāṣir Khusraw (b. 394 H., 1003 A.D.) was forty-five years older than ‘Omar Khayyām. The date of the composition of Rōshnāi Nāma’ is involved in doubt and discussion because the year in the various MSS. of Rōshnāi Nāma’ is given as 323, 343, 420 and 460 which do not tally with the positions of the Sun and Moon respectively as Pisces and Aries, and the month Shawwal, and day Sunday.

رسیده جرم خور در برج ماهی . گرفته در حمل مه پادشاهی

مه شوال از روز نخستین قران افتاده اندر برج شاهین

[Kulliat Nāṣir Khusraw, Tehrān, Preface, pp. 55-59].

In order that the Sun may be in Pisces with Moon in Aries, at least two days had elapsed after their conjunction. The date and day is thus 2nd Shawwal Sunday. I find Sunday 2nd Shawwal 442 H. (17-2-1051) fairly tallies with the description.

Anyhow it is pretty certain that Rōshnāi Nāma’ was composed long before ‘Omar Khayyām was capable of writing any verses thereon. We neglect the details of the story as improbable and search for the grain of truth therein.

Excepting Ismā‘ilī doctrines found in Nāṣir Khusraw and mystic trance found in ‘Omar Khayyām, we find much in common in both these Ḥakīm poets. Thus both speak in the same strain about the world and wealth, the whirls of the wheel of time, Man’s first duty to purify his heart, observance of silence and solitude, avoidance of sleep and sloth, resignation and contentment. Both satire in the same tone hypocrites and blind traditionists. The following verses selected at random from Nāṣir Khusraw (above-mentioned edition) remind us of ‘Omarian quatrains.

On the whole it is most probable that some quatrains of 'Omar Khayyām were inspired by the poems of Nāṣir Khusraw.

(vi) Sixth story: Tabrīzī proceeds:—

“Another story. It is well known that in Balkh the Ḥakīm had a pitcher for use. The Censor reached there and broke it. The Ḥakīm recited this quatrain openly. An hour later the censor reached a blind pit, fell into it by the decree of God and died.

941: X. 129. Az dūr.

The Vampire came from far, the ugly brute—

With smoke of hell he wore the darkest suit;

No man or dame—but then it broke my heart,

And marred my love—my learning, wits, to boot!”

Note:—A cryptic quatrain explained by inventing a story.

The poet here describes suspicion and hatred.

(vii) Seventh story: Tabrīzī goes on:

“We hear by tradition that the Ḥakīm went to Bukhārā and after some days visited the tomb of the most learned the author of Jama‘uṣ Ṣaḥīḥ (May God bless his soul!). There the Ḥakīm got spiritual ecstasy. For twelve days and nights he was wandering in the forests and repeating the following quatrain. 629: XI. 28.

I did not wear myself to serve Thy feet,

Nor swept with brows the dust to clean Thy street;

Yet from Thy door I go not in despair,

For what is One as two I never greet.”

Note:—This is the leading quatrain in some MSS. The author of Jama‘uṣ Ṣaḥīḥ, the foremost collection of traditions (Ḥadīth) is Moḥammad Ibn Isma‘īl Bukhārī [d. 256 H. (870)] whose tomb, a famous resort of pilgrims, is in Bukhārā [Tadhkiratul Ḥuffāz by Dhahhābī]. As stated by Baihaqī [Para. ix-a] ‘Omar Khayyām was once at Bukhārā, and was honoured there by the ruler Khāqān Shamsul Mulk (1068-1079). ‘Omar Khayyām acknowledges his indebtedness to this saint of Bukhārā in the following quatrain.

88: V. 9. Īn khak.

The Saint who graced Bukhara and this land,

Has helped me, thus as dust, in Path to stand;

Just bear in mind that as ye tread the Path,

There is some gallant knight’s supporting hand.

Many have obtained inspirations at the Tombs of Saints.

(viii) Tabrizī gives the following disjointed details regarding ‘Omar Khayyām’s life:

(a) “Thursday, 12 Moharram 555, at Dahak a village of Dehistān in the province of Ustarābād.”

(b) “The duration of his life 72 solar years.”

(c) “In the 17th year he had attained proficiency in all branches of philosophy. First he acquired his knowledge from Rāisul Ḥukamā wal Muḥaqqāin Nāṣirul Millat w’d Din Shaikh Muḥammad Maṣṣūr (God illumine his soul!) the teacher of Ḥakīm Sanāi who praises him in his Ḥadiqā as follows:—

With light we find the path in gloom,
And from the Moon that light I sought;
“The real Light is,” so the Moon replied,
“Bū Muhāmid Muḥammad Maṣṣūr.”

(d) “In early youth he (‘Omar Khayyām) lived in Balkh, and in later life at Nishāpūr.”

(e) “It has been found for certain that he was not inclined to marry and left no issues nor sons. All that remains of him are other well-known philosophical tracts in Arabic and Persian.”

(f) “Moreover it is well known that certain men were present at his death-bed and requested him to bequeath. He said the following quatrain.

How long with corpus worn this greed ye chase,
And round the world in vain ye run the race
They went, we go, and others follow soon,
But none will meet his object face to face.”

912: IV. 21.

Note:—(a) The hiatus in the beginning of this story has created confusion in the three copies of Tabrizī compilation, viz., Ha., Sc. and Sd. Persian Tadhkiras usually give the dates of demise of authors. If we add the word Wafātash in the beginning of the narrative the whole reads as follows.

“He demised on Thursday 12 Moharram 555 at Dahak a village, etc.”

The year 555 is obviously a clerical error according to the subsequent story, and also because 12 Moharram 555 H. is not on Thursday.

(b) The age is 72 (or 74) years in Ha. and has been obviously miscopied in Sc. and Sd.

(c) The teacher of 'Omar Khayyām was also the teacher of Ḥakīm Sanāī.

From Shazrāt uz Dhahāb by Hakri we find that Naṣir ud Dīn Abū Ḥāmid Muḥammad bin Maṣṣūr was a scholar of repute who demised in 497 H. It is thus quite possible that he was 'Omar Khayyām's first teacher.

(d) The statement that 'Omar Khayyām was at Balkh in early youth may be correct. We know that he wrote his Algebra when at Samarqand [§ viii-b] and he was at Bukhārā in the Court of Khāqān Shams ul Mulk [§ ix-a] before he was introduced to Malik Shāh.

(e) The statement that 'Omar Khayyām preferred celibacy and had no children is confirmed in some of his quatrains. Thus in qn. No. 102: X. 35 he states that his age has reached above thirty years and is freed from wedlock life;

Quatrains No. 446: X. 42, 552: VII. 79 and 56: VII. 160 are in praise of celibacy. In quatrain 941-a, XII. 42 he states his tree of life has borne no fruit.

(f) 'Omar's last words are stated by Baihaqī.

(ix) Ninth story. Tabrīzī states: "I saw in Sabzawār a manuscript in the handwriting of Niẓāmī Urūdī with the follownig endorsement:—

'In the year 512 I went to Balkh to present my respects to my teacher the source of Philosophy. I requested permission to proceed on pilgrimage to Mecca. In the course of conversation he said:

'On return you will find my grave in a place where the northern winds will shower flowers.'

'It took over three years till I could return: My mind was perturbed because I had never heard from that great person any untrue or contradictory words. When I reached Ustarābād I enquired after his welfare. I was informed that only recently he had reached the proximity of the Lord. I proceeded to Nishāpūr to visit his grave, and saw that he was buried by the side of a Garden. The fruit trees of the garden extended outside, and the wind had showered blossoms so profusely on the grave that it was hidden thereunder.'

Note:—The same story is found in Chahār Maqālā [§ ix-b iii] which states the year of meeting 506 H. instead of 512 H. and Nizāmī Urūdī's return in thirty instead of after three years.

The readings of the MSS. of chahār Maqālā are evidently incorrect. We know from the MS. of 'Omar Khayyām's Algebra [BN Paris Slane 2461] that in 527 H. when the MS. was copied the numerals were written in contracted Arabic words. It is quite possible that Nizāmī Urūdī wrote 512 in this peculiar notation which was misread by later scribes.

On the whole, the version given by Tabrizī from the MS. he actually saw may be accepted as correct. Nizāmī Urūdī met 'Omar Khayyām in the later part of 512 H., and returned after more than three years, i.e., in the early 516 H. to find that his master had demised recently. We may reasonably accept Thursday 12 Moharram 516 H. as the date of 'Omar's demise which Tabrizī meant to give. The date inscribed on 'Omar's tomb at Nishāpūr is 516 H.

(x) Tabrizī concludes Nizāmī Urūdī's statement.

'With a heavy heart, and helped by others I proceeded to my Master's house, and found the aged person ('Omar's mother) in deep mourning. She recognized me and enquired about my affairs. After the usual ceremonies of condolence and prayers, I related the reminiscences of the conversation between me and my master. While relating the past events she stated thus:

'On the ninth day after his death I saw him (in a dream) in an excellent state, and enquired as to how he happened to be in such a good state in spite of those sports and transgressions. I was ever praying O Lord! be merciful on 'Omar.

'At this time he was annoyed and in wrath said the following quatrain 899: XI. 59.

ای سوخته سوخته سوخته ۸۹۹ وی آتش دوزخ از تو افروخته
تا کی گوئی که بر عمر رحمت کن حق را تو که بارحمت آموخته

You glowed and blazed and now to ashes turn,
'Tis you that made a Hell and you that burn.
How long you say "Be kind to 'Omar Lord"
Can you then teach?—Has Master yet to learn?

‘When I woke up I remembered this quatrain. So I hope that Almighty Merciful Lord will not debar any of His creatures from His infinite Mercy and endless Bounty.’ ”

Note:—The above quatrain is the last in the unprefaced and first in the prefaced MSS. of ‘Omar’s quatrains, and must be considered as old because parodies of it are found since Khāqānī.

Khāqānī:

تا آتش عشق را بر افروخته همچو دل من هزار دل سوخته
این جور و جفا تو از که آموخته کز بهر من آتشین قبا دوخته

‘Attār [Mukhtār Nāma, Lucknow, p. 1039]

ای شمع اگر چه مجلس افروخته اما تن نرم و نازکت سوخته
تو سرزده برد هان گرفتی آتش نطف اندازی از که آموخته

Amīr Khusraw Dehlavī:—

ای یار مقام چرمه افروخته وادی زده و بنده را سوخته
ای دست چوسیم رانه دزدی بقار دزدیدن سیم از که آموخته

Bāwā Fighanī (d. 1516).—

من کیستم آتش بدل اندوخته در شعله عشق آتش افروخته
در مهر دتا چو سنگ آتش ترکم باشد که رسم بصحبت سوخته

Najīb Khān Qazwīnī [R. S.].

دارم صحنه چهره بر افروخته راه و روش عاشقی آموخته
او عاشق دیگرے و من عاشق او ای سوخته سوخته سوخته

It will appear that the older and accepted reading of this quatrain was

ای سوخته سوخته سوخته

But according to the story ‘Omar’s mother recites it as

ای سوخته سوخته سوختنی

We find in Rūmī a parody of this second form,

ای بیخبر از ساختن و سوختنی عشق آمدنی بود نه آموختنی
جان ست بهجر دوست اندوختنی شمع است دل مرا بر افروختنی

We have seen how a folklore story explains some cryptic quatrain. The following gossip mentioned by Mon. Nicolas in his edition of 'Omar Khayyām's Quatrains, is first recorded in Tadhkira'-i Hussainī (1163 H.):—

“Once 'Omar Khayyām was engaged in a drinking bout. By chance his cup broke. So he said quatrain Ibrīq-i marā (932: XI. 8.)

How unawares Thou broke my pot, my Lord?

And barred from every bliss my lot, my Lord!

Thou cast my life's desires in earth's decay—

I bite the dust—who plays a sot, my Lord?

For this disrespect, the Lord at once changed the colour of 'Omar's face into jet-black. 'Omar called for a mirror, saw his blackened face and said in repentance, Nā karda' gunāh. (No. 887: XI. 37).

Is there a sinless man on earth below?

And how can we live here and sinless go?

I sin and fail, but can Thy kindness fail?

I'm evil, could Thy Grace be even so?

At this the deity was moved to forgiveness, and restored the previous colour to 'Omar Khayyām's countenance.”

In this age of fiction “Marzabān Rāzī” has invented many more such stories in his humorous article named “Qismast Fukāhī.” [Sharq Magazine Jamādi ul awwal, 1350 H., pp. 606-615].

XII.

SUMMARY OF 'OMAR KHAYYAM'S LIFE.

We now summarise the facts found in previous Sections.

Ghiyāth ud Dīn 'Abu'l Fataḥ 'Omar bin Ibrāhīm was from a family of Khayyām or Khayyamī well known for literary occupations. [§ III]. He was born at Nishāpūr at Sunrise on Wednesday 18 May 1048 [§§ IV & V]. Endowed by nature with a healthy constitution, quick intelligence and strong memory he attained proficiency in all branches of learning at the age of 17 under a scholar named Rayīs ul Hukamā Abū Hāmid Nāṣir ud Dīn Muḥammad bin Maṣṣūr [d. 497 H. (1104)]. [§ XI d. viii]. His early years while under training were spent at Balkh. [§ XI d. viii]. He lost his father probably at the age of 18 and was in great trouble. [§ VII 2a]. He had to find the means of livelihood which interrupted his studies. [§ VII. 2a and § VIII. a]. Thus he was in search of a patron when he wrote a small tract on the solution of an algebraic problem. [§ VIII. a]. He may have written at this time a tract on the Extension of the Indian Method of extracting square roots and cube roots for extracting the roots of higher order. [Preface to Algebra]. These his early researches brought him to the notice of Qādī of Qādīs Abū Ṭāhir 'Abd ur Raḥmān bin Aḥmad 'Alak Sāria a rich and influential Shāf'ī Doctor at Samarqand. This gentleman patronised and placed 'Omar in a position to continue his researches. [§ VIII. b]. In gratitude 'Omar dedicated his Treatise on the Solution of Algebraic Equations to his first patron, who had brought him out of obscurity and probably introduced him to Khāqān Shamsul Mulk an 'Ailak Khānī Prince who ruled on Bukhārā [1068-1079] as a vassal of Saljuq Kings, and who was allied to Sulṭān Malik Shāh through his queen Turkān Khātūn. This Khāqān Shams ul Mulk used to respect 'Omar Khayyām greatly [§ IX. a] and probably introduced him to Sulṭān Malik Shāh. Like the great Mathematicians and Astronomers in the West [viz., Newton, Lalande, Lagrange, Laplace, Leverier, Newcomb] who came to prominence at an age between 25 and 30 years, 'Omar was at the head of observatory in Ispahān in 1074, at an age of 26 years. He wrote a tract on the corollaries of Euclid and fair-copied it in his own handwriting on the last day of Jamādi-ul-awwal 470 H. (20 November 1077) [§ viii c]. He is said to have written a treatise on Physics. His Calendar Reform came into effect from Friday 10th Ramaḍān 471 H. (15 March 5079).

He was reckoned in his time as second to Avicenna in Sciences. [§ ix a]. But he combined in himself other qualifications. He was the most informed Qur'ān reader [§ ix a.] and expounder of Hadīth Tradition (Shahrzūrī), proficient in history and languages [§ ix a], a combined astronomer and astrologer [§ ix b], skilled in mechanics and clay modelling [§ xi c]. These versatile qualifications combined with staunch observance of his faith raised him to the position of a Nadīm and the family physician to Malik Shāh. [§ ix a]. His occupations at the observatory, duties of the Nadīm and Royal Physician kept him secluded from the general public, so his disciples are very few. We know only four of them: Nizāmī Urūdī, author of Chahār Maqālā, 'Abd ullāh Mayānjī author of Zubdatul Haqāiq [§ x a] 1 Ḥakīm Sharfu'z Zamān Muḥammad Īlāqī, and 'Alī bin Muḥammad Ḥajjāzī al Qāinī a physician. [§ ix a]. On the whole he preferred to learn than teach.

At the age of thirty he turned his attention to Metaphysics. In 472 H. (1079), when at Ispahān, he translated Avicenna's sermon [§ viii d], and in 473 H. (1080) and thereafter wrote Arabic tracts in reply to difficult metaphysical questions raised by Abū Naṣr bin 'Abdur Rahīm an Nasawī, [§ 8 e]. At the age of thirty he had developed poetical talents. Thus he says in qn. No. 102: X. 35. Bad nāmiyi man.

My evil fame has soared above the skies,
My joyless life above its thirty flies;
But if I could, I'd drink a hundred toasts
For life so safe and freed from wedlock ties.

His adherence to Avicenna's school of philosophy had created opponents in the Ash'arī school who were gaining ground at the courts. But he satired them freely almost in the same strain as Nāṣir Khusraw.

It is said that he obtained a mystic impulse when he visited the tomb of Khwājā Muḥammad bin Isma'īl of Bukhārā to whom he acknowledges his indebtedness in qn. No. 88. v. 9.

Though safe during the wise ministry of Nizām ul Mulk, he was not needed by Malik Shāh's queen Turkān Khātūn and her accomplices in the conspiracy against that minister.

341: X. 125 Afsōs ki.

Unripes, Alas! can taste the ripest fruit,
To rule the realm now comes the raw recruit,
The Turkish lady's glance, a sport of hearts,
Is won by lackies, slaves who follow suit!

After Malik Shāh's death (1092) 'Omar lost all support at the court. Neither Turkān Khātūn nor Sultān Sanjar required him. He was however retained by Fakhr ul Mulk son of Nizām ul Mulk, the Vazīr of Barkiyaruq (1095-1105), for whom he wrote in Persian a tract on Metaphysics called Kulliat-i Wajūd, or Rauḍat ul Qulūb. In this tract he prefers Šūfis to Mutakallamīns (Traditionists) the Ḥakīms (Philosophers), the Ta'limīs (Isma'ilis).

The position he held under Fakhr ul Mulk and his satires against the Traditionists offered a pretext to his enemies to spread scandals about his religious views.

Qn. No. 975: X. 68 Bā man,
You slander me, in spite of your assaults,
I thank you for I wake, and see my faults;
I admit all my faults, but think awhile,
It seems you store this malice in your vaults!

Qn. No. 441: X. 132 Dushman ki
My foe, in slander, has a jolly trade,
A fool is he, I call a spade a spade;
In mind his mirror when he scans his face
That carcass knoweth not he sees his shade!

Qn. No. 757: X. 133. Dushman ba ghalat guft.
They call me Philsuf, foes will so opine,
But Lord! Thou knowest really Thy malign;
For since I entered this Thy shrine of love,
I know not what I am, but I am Thine!

Qn. No. 515: X. 138 Mārā chi:
What care I if one slanders me to fleece,
No flaw I have he whispers thousand fleas;
I am a mirror, he who looks in me
All good or bad, 'tis all his own he sees.

His own friends had turned against him.

Qn. No. 767: X. 130 Shud da'awa

Friendship, the book proscribed, we should not hold,
 "Affection"—"Valour," "Friend" are myths of old;
 'Tis meet to keep aloof from all in world,
 Adieu from far Miss Pearl and Mister Gold.

He gave up writing and speaking. [§ x. b].

764: X. 141.

I see this world and all her wild affairs;
 And find all creatures full of useless cares;
 Alas! thro' ev'ry door I try to peep
 I find dejection waits for me, and stares.

614: X. 142.

A swan I was, I flew from regions deep,
 I sought to soar to summits with a sweep;
 But found no mate who could my secrets keep,
 So, through the door I entered, out I leap.

101 a: X. 143.

I never advertise the truths in veil,
 In spinning longest yarns my flax may fail;
 I live in planes where words are never found,
 His sacred trust I never could retail.

858: X. 144.

How can I speak when I've no friend to hear?
 My moan alone as constant friend is near;
 My eyes are never free of flowing tears,
 I'll stake my life till He may come and cheer.
 He was threatened with being killed.

313: X. 145.

The secrets which my book of love has bred,
 Cannot be told for fear of loss of head;
 Since none is fit to learn, or cares to know,
 'Tis better all my thoughts remain unsaid.

Probably in 1100 A.D. [§ vii.] he went to Hajj [§ x. b].

5: X. 147.

This haggard time has banished me from fold,
 On plans and actions now I lost my hold;
 And thus enchained, the bailiff Fate perforce
 Is driving me from town to town, behold!

After returning from pilgrimage probably in 1103 A.D. [§ VII.] he retired from public life [§ x b.] and remained in seclusion. Qn. No. 730: X. 152.

Seclusion is the only friend I find,
 To good or bad of folk my eyes are blind;
 First I must see how I shall fare at last,
 Then think of others, if I'm so inclined.

In 501 H. (1104) and 508 H. (1114) 'Omar was consulted by Sulṭān Maḥmūd bin Malik Shāh on astrological matters. [§ ix b, ii and iii]. In 507 H. (1113) the Baihaqīs (father and son) saw him. [§ ix a]. He foresaw his death and place of grave in 512 H. (1118) when Niẓāmī Urūdī solicited his blessings before proceeding to Ḥajj. [§ xi d. ix]. He was healthy to the last. On the morning of his last day in life, he was reading Avicenna's book Ashshafā. When he came to the chapter of "the One and the Many" he placed his toothpick between the pages, called for pious persons, bequeathed his property, fasted the whole day. After his last prayers in the night, with head bent on ground his last words were

"O Lord Thou knowest I perceive Thee to the utmost of my capacity. Forgive me, because my acquaintance with Thee is my Mediator to Thee."

His tomb is in the yard of Imām Muḥrūq at Nishāpūr. The year of his demise engraved on his tomb is 516 H. The date and month cited by Tabrizī is Thursday 12th Moḥarram. As 12th Moḥarram 516 H. falls on Thursday we may accept this as the date of his demise.

'OMAR KHAYYAM'S PHILOSOPHICAL WRITINGS.

We know the inner man from his views about God, the World and Soul, and his own relation between the world and other beings. 'Omar's writings on these subjects, which have been only briefly noticed in Section VIII above, are given here as a help to understand his quatrains better.

 و متغیر نشوند، پس از زمان پدید آمده است که حدکننده او افلاکست
 و بیرون فلك هیچ موجود نیست نه خلا و نه ملا، یکی از آنرو که تقدیر و

اجزاء نپذیرد و یکی از آنکه ضد و نظیر ندارد و یکی بذات و نعت و کلمه کامگار نیست که عدم بر وجودی قوی کند، داداریست که قوت را بفعل آورد، ممکن را واجب گرداند، قوتش نامتناهیست از روی احکام و اتفاق و شدت و بعضی از موجودات را ننگه دارد، بدتی نامتناهی و بعضی که احتمال بقا نامتناهی نباشد تعدد بکند حکمش موجودات را سوی کمال یا فتنه خویش، ممکن نبود که چیزهای نامتناهی بعدد موجود گرداند بیک بار، هم چنین ممکن نگردد که جسم بی واسطه از ذات واجب الوجود حاصل گردد زیرا که جسم مرکبست از ماده و صورت و در ذات ایزد جل و عز هیچ تکثر نیست و هیچ متکثر از واحد بوجود نیایندی واسطه، اما ملائکه که واجب الوجود گشته اند بوجود ایزد ایشان ممکن الوجودند در حد نفس خویش پس همه متکثر باشند، زیرا که بحسب اعتبار عقل ایشان را دومی باشد متقابل و ایکس در وجود بسیطند و احدی اندات فیض ببداع از ذات بزی عز وجل وجود جواهر روحانی که در زمان و مکان در نیایند صورتهای محضند که با ماده علاقه و مخاطبه ندارند و هیچ معنی بقوه در ایشان نیست بلکه همه بسیطند و سرمدی و بطالعه ایزد شریف گشته اند ایزد مثال الوجود در ذات ایشان نهاد تا بافعال و اوظاع کشت پس هر یکی را بوجوب وجود که از ایزد یافته بود واسطه وجود ملکی گشت و با ممکن وجود که از خود داشت واسطه وجود فلکی گشت و افلاک بدیدار اجسامی خدای پرست و نورانی که اشکال آن فاضل ترین اشکالست مدور و دایره و نون شدن نیکوترین الوانست منور و صورت شان بهترین صورست که نه نظیر دارد و بیاید دانستن که هر جسمی سموی که او حرکت وضعی کند نوعی دیگرست و از نوع او جز شخص او نتواند بود و کون و فساد بپذیرد، بالاترین افلاک فلک معدل النهارست و فلک البروج که معدل فلک است و استو است و تعویج و اگر همه فلک بودی و ستاره نبودی اوقات کون و فساد این عالم سفلی مختلف نشدی و اگر همه ستاره بودی و فلک نبودی زیادی روشنی علتهای کون و فساد تباه گردی و اگر فلک البروج از معدل النهار (میل) نداشتی احوال همه عالم یکسان بودی و ترتیب و نظام نبودی، با کاه خدایا همه چنانکه قوت نامتناهیست وجودت در دادن وجود هیچ باقی نگذارد و ممتنع بود که نامتناهی بیک بار موجود گردد مگر پراگنده، پس هیولی را ابداع کردی که قوت او را پذیرفتن نامتناهیست همچون قوت تو در دادن

و دانستی که کون و فساد تمام نگردد الا بگردارنده و پراکنده و خداوند
 اقیادی که بد آن منقاد شود فاعل کون را و عاصی گردد فاعل فساد را، پس
 گرمی پراکنده کننده آفریدی و سردی گردد آورنده و رطوبت اقیاد را
 و یبوست عصیان را، پس ازین چهار دکن چهار دکن نخستین بیافریدی چون
 آتش و هوا و آب و زمین و گرمترین بر جای برترین فرود آوردی از بهر آنکه
 اگر سردترین آنجا بودی گرم گشتی بحرکت فلك و هیچ کائن نماندی که نه
 تباه شدی از جهة غلبه گرمی بدیگر عناصر بقوت و جایگاه و این سه عنصر
 بالائی را بی رنگ آفریدی و اگر شعاع را راه ندادی تا دریشان بگذشتی
 ببايد دانستن که این سخن مجازست از بهر آنکه شعاع را انتقال کردن و در
 چیزی گذشتن نبود و لکن چون جسم در برابر جسم روشنی پذیر باشد که
 میان ایشان جسمی بی رنگ باشد تا جسم روشنی پذیر مستعد روشنی
 پذیرفتن شود و ایزد تعالی روشنی دروی بیافریند و لمیت این سخن عقل بشری
 نتواند دانستن، بلکه لمیت حقیقی هیچ چیز را نتواند دانستن و زمین را
 رنگی دادی میان سپیدی و سیاهی تا روشنی پذیر باشد، چون روشنی گرم
 گردد گرمی غریزی که این گرمی سبب وجود صورتهای طبیعست و پس ازین
 عناصر بسیار مرکبات بیافریدی از جماد و معادن و نبات و حیوان و مردم و
 هر یکی را در شرف حدی دادی محدود و غرض در آفرینش این ارکان مردم
 بود و از فضاله او دیگر چیزها را بیافریدی تا هیچ چیز از هیچ چیز پذیرنده
 فایت نشود و همه موجودات بحق خویش برسند، ببايد دانستن که ایزد عز و علی
 را در هیچ چیز غرض نبود که غرض از عجز و نقصان صاحب غرض باشد،
 بلکه همه موجودات واجب الوجودند باضافت با وجود ایزد تعالی و هیچ
 موجود از دیگر اول نیست بوجود بلکه همه بر صفتی اند از نظام و اقیان
 و نیکوئی و تمامی که از آن بهتر نشاید که آن نوع بود و لکن در سلسله نظام
 مبده هر چیز میان او و میان ایزد تعالی واسطه کترست شریفترست و در
 سلسله نظام معادی هر چه که میان او و میان هیولی واسطه بیشترست او
 شریفترست - پس پدید آمد که همه موجودات در تمامی و نیکوئی در نوع
 خویش یکی اند و تفاوت در شرف افتاده است، نه آنکه یکی اولی تر بود
 بوجود از دیگر و مردم را زبان گویا دادی که اگر پاکیزه گرداند بعلم حق و عمل
 خیر مانند ملائکه گردد و ثواب عظیم یابد و چون مزاج نوع انسان معتدل

(b) 'Omar Khayyām's Arabic Tract called Kown wa Taklif, Creation and Chastening, (Bibliography II, Item 9).

As noticed in Section VIII above this tract was in reply to questions raised by Qāḍī Imām Abī Naṣr Muḥammad bin 'Abd ur Raḥīm An Nasawī in 473 H. (1080). Translation of the Qāḍī's question and of 'Omar Khayyām's preface to his answer has been given in Section VIII above. The Arabic Tract as published in Jāmi'ul Bidaya (Sa'adat Press, Cairo 1907) and the translation of 'Omar Khayyām's reply proper, by Mr. 'Abdul Quddūs, Member of the Translation Bureau Hyderabad-Deccan, is given below.

المطالب الحقيقية الذاتية المستعملة في صناعة الحكمة ثلاثة وهي أهميات المطالب الآخر أحدها مطلب هل هو وهو السؤال عن انيته وثباته كقولنا . هل العقل موجود أم لا . فيكون الجواب بنعم أولاً . والثاني مطلب ما هو وهو السؤال عن حقيقة الشيء وماهيته كقولنا ما حقيقة العقل فيكون الجواب عنه إما تحديداً أو ترسيماً واما تشريحاً أو تبيناً للاسم ولا يكون هذا المطلب حاصراً للجواب المجيب بين طرفي النفي والاثبات بل يكون الجواب الى المجيب يأتي بما يشاء مما يراه حداً لذلك الشيء أو معرفاً له والثالث مطلب لم وهو السؤال عن السبب الذي لاجله وجد الشيء ولولاه لما وجد ذلك الشيء كقولنا لم العقل موجود وهذا المطلب أيضاً لا يكون حاصراً للجواب المجيب بين طرفي النقيض بل يفوض اليه الجواب من غير أن يتعرض لشيء من اجزاء جوابه اللهم الا في السؤال الثاني وبين مطلب ما ومطلب لم مناسبات قد استوفى الكلام عليها في كتاب البرهان من كتب المنطق وكل واحد من هذه المطالب منقسم الى أقسام شتى لا حاجة الى ذكرها في مطلوبنا هذا الا ان مطلب ما منقسم بحسب القسمة الاولى الى قسمين لا بد من ذكرهما باختلاف أصحاب الصنعة فيه أحدهما مطلب ما الحقيقي وهو الباحث عن حقيقة الشيء وهذا متأخر عن مطلب هل في الترتيب لانا ما لم نعرف ان الشيء موجود ثابت لم يمكننا أن نتحقق ذاته اذ لا يكون للمعدوم ذات حقيقي والثاني مطلب ما الرسمي وهو باحث عن شرح الاسم المطلق على الشيء وهذا متقدم على مطلب هل في الترتيب . لانا ما لم نعرف شرح قول القائل . هل عنقاء مغرب موجود أم لا لم يمكننا أن نحكم عليه بالنفي والاثبات فيجب أن يكون هذا الجواب الشارح للاسم قبل مطلب هل . ولما لم يتفطن الجماعة من المنطقيين لقسمي ما تبللوا وتخيروا . فذهب بعضهم الى ان مطلب ما متأخر عن مطلب هل وأراد به القسم الحقيقي . وذهب بعضهم الى انه متقدم وأراد به القسم الشارح . وأما مطلب لم فهو متأخر عن المطالبين الآخرين لانا ما لم نعرف حقيقة الشيء وانتيه لم يمكننا أن نعرف السبب الذي لاجله وجد ذلك الشيء وهاهنا مطالب أخرى مثل أي وكيف وكم ومتى وأين وهي عرضية باحثة عن حقيقة الاعراض الطارئة على الشيء واثباتها له فهي اذاً عند التنقيح الشافي داخله تحت المطالب الذاتية الحقيقية ولا حاجة بنا الى ذكرها . وليس يخلو موجود

عن هلية ما اى انية وثبات فان الخالى عن الانية والثبات يكون معدوما وقد فرضناه موجوداً وهذا محال وكذلك ليس يخلو عن ماهية وحقيقة بها يعين ويميز عن غيره اذ الخالى عن التعين والتميز عن غيره يكون معدوما وقد فرضناه موجوداً هذا محال وقد يكون من الموجودات ما هو خال عن الالية وهو الاشياء الواجبة انتى لا يمكن أن لا تكون موجودة وان فرضت غير موجودة لزم منه محال والشئ الذى يكون بالحقيقة على هذه الصفة لا يكون له سبب ولمية فيكون اداً واجب الوجود بذاته وهو الواحد الحى القيوم الذى عنه الوجود لكل موجود . وبجوده وحكمته فاض كل خير وعدل . جل جلاله وتقدست اسماؤه . وهذه مسألة مفروغ عنها فى مطلوبنا هذا وأنت اذا أمعنت النظر فى جميع الموجودات ولمياتها اذك النظر الى أن تتحقق ان لميات جميع الاشياء منتهية الى لميات وعلل وأسباب لالية لها ولا علل ولا أسباب . برهان ذلك اذا قيل لم أب قلنا لانه ج واذا قيل لم أج قلنا لانه د واذا قيل لم أد قلنا لانه هو هكذا فلا بد أن ينتهى بنا البحث عن العلل الى علة لا علة لها والا فيلزم منها التسلسل وهو محال أو يلزم منها الدور وهو محال . فقد صح ان جميع علل الموجودات منته الى سبب لا سبب له وقد تبين فى العلم الالهى ان السبب الذى لا سبب له هو واجب الوجود بذاته وهو واحد من جميع جهاته وبرىء من جميع انحاء النقص وجميع الاشياء منته اليه وموجود عنه . فتبين ان سؤال اللّم لا يعترض على كل موجود بل على موجودات اذا فرضت غير موجودة لم يلزم منه محال وأما على الموجود الواجب الواحد فلا .

 العدم وأما لمية الكون المطلق وهو فيضان هذه الموجودات منتظماً فى ترتيب
 هذه السلسلة النازلة من عند المبدأ الاول الحق عز وجل طولا وعرضاً فهى
 جوده الحق المحض التام الذى يفيض عنه كل ممكن بخود البازى تعالى سبب
 هذه الموجودات فان طول بنا بالحواب عن لمية جوده قلنا لامية له لانه واجب
 وكما ان ذات واجب الوجود لامية له فكذلك وجوده وجميع أوصافه لامية لها
 وقد بقيت من هذا القبيل مشكلة هى أهم المسائل وأصعبها فى هذا الباب وهى
 فى تفاوت الموجودات فى الشرف فاعلم ان هذه مشكلة تدخير فيها اكثر الناس
 حتى لا يكاد يوجد عاقل الا ويعتريه فى هذا الباب تخير ولعلى ومعلبى أفضل
 المتأخرين الشيخ الرئيس أبا على الحسين بن عبد الله بن سينا البخارى أعلى الله
 درجته قد أمعن النظر فيها وانتهى بنا البحث الى ما قنعت به نفوسنا إما لضعف
 القناعة بالشئ الركيك الباطن المزخرف الظاهر وإما لقوة الكلام فى نفسه وكونه
 بحيث يجب أن يقنع به وسنأتى بطرف من ذلك على سبيل الرمز فأقول :

ان البرهان الحقيقى اليقينى قائم على ان هذه الموجودات لم يسدعها الله
 تعالى معاً بل أبدعها نازلة من عنده فى الترتيب فالبدء الاول هو العقل المحض
 وهو اشرف الموجودات لقربه من المبدأ الاول الحق ثم هكذا ابدع الاشرف
 فالاشرف نازلا الى الاخس فالأخس حتى بلغ فى الابداع الى أخس الموجودات
 وهو طينة الكائنات الفاسدات ثم ابتداعها الى الاشرف فالاشرف حتى انتهى
 الى الانسان الذى هو اشرف الموجودات المركبة وآخر الموجودات فى عالم
 الكون والفساد فالأقرب منه فى المبدعات أشرفها والابعد من الطينة فى
 المركبات أشرفها وقدر تعالى جده تكوين هذه المركبات فى زمان ما لضرورة
 عدم اجتماع المتضادات بل المتقابلات فى شئ واحد فى زمان واحد من جهة
 واحدة معاً فان قال قائل لم خلق المتضادات المتباعدة فى الوجود فيكون الجواب
 عنه ان الامساك من الخير الكثير من جهة لزوم شر قليل اياه شر كثير
 والحكمة الكلية الحقة والوجود الكلى الحق اعطيا جميع الموجودات كما لها الذاتى
 لها من غير ان يبخص حظ واحد منها الا انها بحسب القرب والبعد متفاوتة فى
 الشرف وذلك لا للبخل من جهة الحق عز وجل بل لا تقتضاه الحكمة السرمدية

ذلك فهمه جمل وان أوردتها على سبيل اقتصاص مذهب قوم من الحكماء فان تحقيق أصولها بالبرهان يهديك سبيل تحقيقها باليقين .

وأما مسألة التكليف فلعلها أسهل من مسألة الكون وانى أعرض عليك ما أعرفه في ذلك مستفيداً فاقول ان لفظة التكليف لا يبعد ان يكون لها معان مختلفة حسب الاصطلاحات والحكماء يريدون بها ما أذكره .

التكليف هو الامر الصادر عن الله تعالى السائق للشخص الانسانى الى كمالاتهم المسعدة لهم في الحياة الاولى والاخرى الرادع اياهم عن الظلم والجور وارتكاب القبائح واكتساب النقائص والانهماك في متابعة القوى البدنية المانعة اياهم عن اتباع القوة العقلية وأما هلية التكليف فانها مندرجة ضمن لميته لان لمية الاشياء تتضمن هليتها فنقول في اميته ان الله عز وجل خلق النوع الانسانى بحيث لا يمكن الامكان الاكثرى ان تبقى أشخاصه ويحصل لهم كالاتهم إلا بالتعاقد والتعاون والترافد لان غذاءهم ولباسهم وكنهم مالم تكن مصنوعة وهكذا اكثر ما يحتاجون اليه من أصناف التعيش لم يمكنهم الاستكمال وليس يمكن لواحد منهم ان يتولى بنفسه جميع ما يحتاج اليه من اصناف التعيش فاضطروا الى أن يتولى كل منهم شيئاً من المحتاجين اليه من التعيش فيفرغ صاحبه عند مهم لو تولاه بنفسه لازدحمت على الواحد أشغال كثيرة وإذا كان الامر كذلك فبالواجب أن يضطروا الى سنة عادلة يتعادلون بها فيما بينهم وتلك السنة انما تكون من عند واحد منهم يكون أقواهم عقلاً واذكاهم نفساً لا يهجمه من أمور الدنيا الا الضروريات وما لا بد منه في الحياة وليس همه فيما يتوخاه للرياسة أو التمكن من أمر شهوانى أو غضبى بل يكون همه ابتغاء مرضاة الله تعالى فيما يأمره به من ايراد السنة العادلة لا يلتفت فيها لفت عصبية وتفضيل بعض على بعض ويمضى حكم الشرع فيهم على سواء فيكون هذا هو الحق الذى يفيض على نفسه من الوسى ومشاهدة الملك مما لا يفيض على غيره من هو دونه في المرتبة ويكون متميزاً باستحقاق الطاعة وذلك التميز انما يكون بآيات ومعجزات تدل على انها من عند ربه عز وجل ثم من المعلوم ان اشخاص الناس متفاوتة في قبول الخير والشر والرذائل والفضائل وذلك بحسب امزجة ابدانهم وهيئات نفوسهم معاً والاكثر من الناس يرون ما لهم على غيرهم حقاً واجباً ويبالغون

ثم يحضر من تلقى الاوامر والنواهي الالهية والنبوية بالطاعات ثلاث منافع احداها ارتياض النفس بتعودها الامساك عن الشهوات وزمها عن القوة الغضبية المكدرة للقوة العقلية والثانية تعويدها النظر في الامور الالهية واحوال المعاد في الآخرة لتجرها المواظبة على العبادات عن جناب الغرور الى جناب الحق والتفكير في الملكوت وتحرصها على تحقق وجود الحق الاول اعنى الذى عنه وجود كل موجود جل جلاله وتقديست اسمائه ولا إله غيره الذى فيضان الموجودات عنه منتظمة في سلسلة الترتيب التى اقتضتها الحكمة الحققة بالبرهان المبني على القياس المجردة عن اصناف التمويهات والمغالطات والثالثة تذكيرهم الشارع الحق وما اتى به من الآيات والا نذارات ووعد ووعيده الممضى احكام السنة العادلة فيما بينهم فيجرب بينهم التعادل والترافد ويبقى نظام العالم الذى اقتضته حكمة البارئ جل وعلا على حاله فهذه هى منافع التكليف ومنافع العبادات ثم زاد لمستعمله الاجر والثواب في الآخرة فانظر الى حكمة الحى القيوم ثم الى رحمته تلحظ جناباً تبهرك عجائبه هذا هو القدر النزر الذى لاح لى في الحال فعرضته على مجلسك الرفيع أيها الكامل الاوحد لكى تسد خلله وتصلح فاسده وتعوضنى منه ما أسكن اليه بلقائك الشريف وكلامك اللطيف والله تعالى أعلم بالصواب . والحمد لله أولاً وآخراً وباطناً وظاهراً .

INTERROGATIVE EXPRESSIONS.

Interrogative Expressions (words of interrogation) are those which deal with the Real Intrinsic nature of a thing and are used in discourses on Philosophy, are three in number. They constitute the source from which other ancillary interrogatory expressions are derived. (1) One of these is 'Hal' (Does a thing exist or not)? It is a question about the existence or non-existence of a thing. It deals with its being or affirmation. For example: Does Reason (abstract Soul) exist or not? In answer to this question, categorical affirmation or denial is possible.

(2) Another expression is 'Ma'=What.

It is a question about the nature and reality of a thing.

In answering the question about the nature and reality of a thing we must either specify the genus or species, to which it belongs or describe its properties or characteristics. But the method of limitation by genus and species and description of the properties can only be resorted to when we already know that the thing exists. In case we lack this knowledge we must resort to the explanation or description of the name attached to the thing. In answer to this question, categorical affirmation or denial (yes or no) is not enough; one must describe the characteristics and properties by which it is marked off from the rest.

(3) The third expression is 'Lam'=Why.

It is a question about the cause of the condition antecedent, to which the thing owes its existence. If the cause would not have operated, the thing would not have existed. For example; "Why does Reason exist?" In answering this question affirmation or denial (yes or no) by itself is not enough. We are not concerned here either with the description of the nature and reality of the thing, except perhaps incidentally as necessitated by the circumstances of the case, inasmuch as the description of the nature of a thing falls into the 'What' (the second interrogative expression). There are logical affinities between the expressions 'what' and 'why' which have been dealt with in 'Kitab-ul-Burhan.' Each of these expressions assumes a variety of forms, to which we need not advert in connection with discussion on the present topic. But nevertheless it is necessary to mention the two forms of 'What' (according to the first classification) because in this connection authorities differ from each other.

'What' which deals with the nature of the thing assumes two forms (1) What Real (Ma Haqiqat).

(2) What Explanatory (Ma-al Vajah).

The first "What" deals with the reality of a thing. This form of the expression is preceded by and follows the question 'Is it a simple existence?' because unless we know that a thing possesses being, we cannot form any judgment about the nature or reality of its being. The non-existent can never possess reality.

The second kind of "What" deals with the meaning of the name attached to a thing and the use thereof. The expression "What Explanatory (Ma-al Vajah)" precedes the question. "Is the thing a simple existence," because unless we know the meaning of the name attached to a thing, how can we enquire about its existence or non-existence? For example, if we do not know the meaning of the name "Anqa Maghreb" how can we say whether the bird exists or not. Hence 'What Explanatory' precedes the question: 'Is the thing a simple existence.' The interrogatory expressions, therefore, must be placed in the following order:

(1) What Explanatory.

(2) The question "Is the thing simple Existence."

(3) What Real that which deals with the reality of the thing.

(4) The question "Is the thing a composite Existence."

The last question deals with the affirmation or position of qualities.

Some persons have not realised the problem thoroughly. Some hold that the interrogatory expression 'what' follows the expression "does a thing exist" (Hal). Here the 'what' referred to is the 'what' explanatory (that which deals with the meaning of the name attached to a thing, and the use thereof).

The expression 'why' is preceded both by the expression 'what' and the expression 'does the thing exist' because unless we know the real nature of a thing and feel sure that it exists the question about the cause or the condition which brought it into being, cannot be entertained.

There are other interrogatory expressions also. For example Ai=Whether, Kaif=How, Kam=How many, Matai=When, Ain=Where. These are however derivatives. By means of these expressions one can ask about the affirmation and reality of the changing conditions which momentarily adhere to a thing, and if we look closely at these derivative expressions, we will find that they form part of and are included in the real intrinsic interrogatory expressions—which deal with the being and quality of things). We are not here concerned with these derivative expressions. Every existence must furnish the proof of its being, in accordance with the interrogatory expressions. 'Does the thing exist' "Hal" because everything which lacks being and the affirmation thereof, is non-existent. If we start with supposition that it exists (in spite of the fact that proof of its being, in accordance with the interrogatory expression 'does a thing exist' is lacking) we are forced to a conclusion which goes against the supposition and is an impossibility. In the same way, every existence must possess reality (in accordance with the interrogatory expression 'what') by means of which it is defined and marked off from the rest, because that which lacks definition and distinction does not exist. If we suppose that it exists (previous to the determination of its whatness) we are faced with an impossibility.

The causal explanation of some existences (the determinations of the conditions which brought them into existence) is impossible. They are necessary existences whose non-existence is an impossibility. If we regard them as non-existent, we are confronted with an impossibility. The existence which is really of such a nature that it does not admit of being causally explained, and resists the attempt at determining the conditions of its being, is a necessary existence—that which exists by itself. It is the One, the Principle of being (Hai) and the Principle of Sustenance the Sustenance of the Universe). Through His bounties, liberality and wisdom, all things are endowed with being, Goodness and justice and measure (Adl). His Glory (Jalal) is great and His names are sanctified. This is an accepted fact with us, and in our theory of metaphysics we have dealt with and solved this problem. If you will examine thoroughly and critically the things which exist, and inquire into the causes which brought them into being, you will come to know that the causes which condition their being lead up to Primal cause, of which there are no causes or conditions. This assertion is supported by the following argument. When we are asked "Why does AB exist?" we say "because AC exist." If we ask again "why does AC exist?" we will reply that "because AD exist," and so on ad infinitum. Hence it is necessary that the causal chain should lead up to a First Cause, which is the final cause of all the causes, and which is not itself conditioned by any cause; otherwise we will be involved in regress ad infinitum and a vicious circle and both of them are impossible. In any case, it is a Truth that the causes of all the things which exist, lead up to a Prime Cause, of which there is no cause or condition and it has been posited in Divine Knowledge, that the Cause, of which there is no cause, is Primal Being, which exists by itself. God (Primal Being) is the One, and this oneness is not affected from whichever direction we approach it. He is free from every type of shortcoming. All things exist through Him and lead up to Him. The foregoing discussion has demonstrated that the interrogatory expression 'why' cannot be applied to every existence. It can only apply to an existence the non-existence of which is not impossible. It cannot apply to the One Primal Being (Substance per se) which exists by itself.

Whatever we have briefly discussed so far was in the nature of an introduction to the main subject (the problem of Existence and the chastening of Man) to which we now advert.

It is necessary to make it clear that the word (kown) Existence is used in many different senses. We will have nothing to do with those meanings of the word which lie outside the province of our discussion. Let us, therefore, bear in mind that the word "existence" is used here in connection with the possible existence of things, the non-existence of which is not impossible. And in this connection we apply the interrogatory expression Hal "Does the thing exist." If for example somebody asks "Does the thing, the qualities of which have been mentioned, exist or not?" it is permissible to answer "Yes." If we are asked to show the reason of the being of these existences, then it is clear that when the axiomatic and rational proposition (Qaḍaya-e-‘Aqliya) and observing the testimony of which is too clear and cogent to admit of cavil, and the senses support our assertion, it is not necessary to adduce any further argument, inasmuch as all the existences and the qualities which inhere in them, obviously and indisputably possess being. It is a result of the fact that our bodies and their changing conditions are preceded by non-existence.

Now we turn to the explanation of Absolute Existence. Existences descend in a regulated and ordered form, gaining in breadth and length (like a pyramid) in the process of declension from the Absolute Existence, (the God, the Great and Powerful). Hence Absolute Existence (God) is Pure Bounty (Joud) Pure Truth. The possible existence of things is derived from their Bounty and Divine Bounty is the condition antecedent of everything which exists. If we are asked to adduce argument about the ‘why’ of the Divine Bounty, then we can reply that the matter does not admit of the interrogatory expression ‘why’ having entertained, and that here causal explanation is out of the question. As Divine Existence is absolutely necessary and does not admit of ‘why’ and ‘wherefore,’ in the same way, His qualities and His Bounty ‘do’ not admit of their application. ‘Why’ cannot reach, even the precincts of His Mightiness. However more difficult problem has cropped up, why do existences differ in the intrinsic worth of their being?

It must be borne in mind that the problem has occasioned anxiety and bewilderment on the part of many persons; and nobody appears to have found a way out of this valley of bewilderment. My learned teacher Shaikh Abu Ali Husain bin Abdullah bin Sina (may God raise his rank) and I, gave our earnest thoughts to this problem and we contented ourselves with the following conclusion:—It is open to you to regard the conclusion with which we contented ourselves either as superficial, shallow and unscholarly or as based on firm grounds of principle, fit to be a source of contentment for questioning souls. I will here briefly touch the problem.

It has been proved by an argument which is binding and brings conviction of this truth, (moreover it is based on observation) that God the Almighty did not instantaneously create all the existences but that He has created them in an ordered and regulated series, which gradually, by stages lead up to Him. The first emanature or creation is pure Reason. It is the highest and the best, because it is nearer to God. In the same way He created material existences (one against Reason which is spiritual) in a graded series which descends from the highest to the lowest, until it ends in the lowest form of materiality—matter pure and simple, which constitutes the disruptive and the centrifugal element of this Universe of Change. Later on, this change and series of material existences ascends from the lower to the higher. In this series we go up from that which is lower in the grade of being, to that which is higher and possesses a greater measure of being. (The former is called the Arc of Descent and the latter the Arc of Ascent). The last and the highest member of this latter series is Man, who is the highest so far as composite existences are concerned, and the last so far as materiality (which constitutes the disruptive element in this Universe) is concerned. Our conclusion therefore is that from amongst things spiritual or non-material that which is nearest to God is the highest, and from amongst things composite (compound of matter and form) that which is further from materiality, will be the higher, as existent will be purer and higher, exactly in the measure in which it is free from materiality (because it will be nearer to God in the Arc of Ascent Series).

The will of God has operated in such a manner that composite existences have been brought into existence at different times and specified periods, because obviously contraries and contradictories cannot exist at the same time, coming as they do from the same direction, and in the same thing.

If the objection is raised; why are contradictories which exclude each other, created at all? then we will meet the objections by saying that the sacrifice of immense good, for the sake of avoiding something of evil, is in itself an immense evil. We must however bear in mind that Universal Wisdom and Universal Bounty of God have endowed all existences with the perfection which their being required, in such a harmonious manner that no existent is favoured at the expense of the other, so that the perfect qualities of an existent do not detract from the perfect qualities of any other existent. But these existences differ in the intrinsic worth of their being, according to their nearness or distance from God. This, however, does not denote that God is not lavish in the bestowal of worth. On the contrary it means that the things have been created as a perfect system of graded existences, in accordance with the Eternal Wisdom of God. We have briefly summarised the theory of emanation, and if you study in detail the various schools of philosophy and try to teach the truth, by means of critical scrutiny, you will succeed in finding a way to certain knowledge.

The problem of the religious responsibilities, duties or chastening of man is to a certain extent easier to deal with than the problem of Existence (which we have discussed above). All that I was able to point out in regard to this problem is placed before you for consideration.

It must be borne in mind that the word Taklif (responsibility or duty or chastening) conveys different meanings, according to the difference of the context in which it is used. I will however use the word in the sense in which it has been used by Philosophers. Taklif, duty or responsibility is a command which emanates from God. These commands lead men towards perfection and spiritual well-being, here and hereafter, (both in the world and the next). They prevent men from servile obedience to bodily pleasures, from injustice and highhandedness, from malpractices and the acquisition of shortcomings which hamper the exercise of the intellectual faculties. The problem however, of the existence, of the religious responsibilities or duties of man, is included in and subordinate to the problem. Why do the religious responsibilities of man exist? In regard to their problem of whyness we have arrived at the following conclusion :—

God the Almighty has so created mankind, that the majority of human beings can neither have, nor attain to, the perfectness in nature, without co-operation and mutual help from each other. As the food they eat, the clothes they wear, and the houses they live in, and every other thing, are all artificial, as they require all these artificialities very often, from time to time, and as an individual (who isolates himself from society) cannot provide himself with all these necessities single-handed in a self-sufficient manner, hence every individual is forced to specialise in some form of labour and to render other persons independent of it. If everybody were to do everything, the series of work will be overwhelming. As society is based on co-operation human being felt the necessity of a body of law, in order to establish the reign of justice and equality. This law, however can only emanate from a person who is spiritually pure and intellectually strong. Such a person attends only to that which is absolutely necessary for existence. He does not desire to gain a kingdom and to establish a dynasty, moreover he is not interested in subduing passion and rage, merely as such. His sole purpose is to show the right way of life that which God has commanded us to follow; and his sole aim is to gain the grace of God by obedience, to His commands. He is impartial and does not regard some persons as superior to the rest. He enforces the commands of Shari'at equally amongst all. The way which he shows is the way of Truth which God has shown him. This reception of Divine commands is called Divine Inspiration and the observation of the Angelic Kingdom (Mashahida-i-Malkūt) which are not vouchsafed to an inferior type of man, as compared with him. This shows that one who is the recipient of Divine Inspiration, and is distinguished by performing miracles, breaches in the continuity of nature and other signs which signify Divine grace and help, must be obeyed implicitly and thoroughly.

The fact that men differ in their capacity for good and evil and the acquisition of virtues and vices, is well known. This difference is due to the physical tone of their bodies and the conditions of their souls. There are many persons who are inclined to regard themselves as superior to, and claim precedence over others. They feel that, in comparison with the rest of mankind, they have a better right to wealth and power. Hence it is necessary that the recipient of Divine Inspiration must not be weak and helpless but on the contrary must receive active co-operation and help in the task of establishing the law of Shari'at amongst mankind. He will adopt various means for his purpose; he will preach and give advice to some persons; he will argue and reason with others; he will conciliate the bodies and minds of some people; he will depict to others the horrors and dangers which they will meet (by disobedience to his call). He will speak in sorry terms of reprobation to those who fail to respond to his teaching; and he will fight with others. As a prophet of such a type is not to be found at all times hence it is necessary that the rules and regulations of Shari'at should endure for quite a long time. Owing to lapse of time, the hold of these laws, however, weakens. These rules and regulations cannot endure unless a prophet revitalises their import and significance. Hence God Almighty sends a prophet to repeat and explain the Divine laws, so that by constant repetition the laws may strike root in the minds of people.

There are three advantages to be gained from the acceptance of, and obedience to Divine Commands, and the avoidance of Divine prohibitions. (1) The Nafs, (or the Vicious Self) is atrophied and help in least obedience to God, checks rage, passion and appetite, which weaken the intellectual and spiritual faculties. (2) The Obedience to Divine Commands leads us to think earnestly of the Resurrection of the life hereafter, and the Divine Order (Umur Allah) so that we become habituated to offering prayers to God. Moreover it liberates us from the permanent state of self-appreciation and self-importance, and leads us out of the illusion of the self to God (Who brings all existences into being, His job is great and His names are sanctified) and the realisation of this Existence and Divinity. From God alone has emanated the graded series of existence in a regulated and ordered form. This graded series has been regulated according to Divine Wisdom by God. This assertion is supported by arguments which are quite free from fallacies and sophistries. (3) A further benefit which accrues from living up to Divine Commands, is that one is inclined to preach the message which the prophet has delivered (viz., the signs of God; the tortures which those who do not obey the Divine Commands will have to undergo, the promise of an ideal life hereafter for those who carry on the Divine Commands, etc.) owing to which the just commands of the Shari'at are revitalised in the minds of the people, justice and co-operation prevails amongst them, and the system of the universe, which God Almighty has created in accordance with His Divine Wisdom, receives a fresh lease of endurance.

These are the benefits and advantages which we have discussed briefly to be derived in this world by living up to religious responsibilities and the offering of prayers. In the next world, however, additional reward will be superimposed upon them. If you ponder over the perfect Wisdom of God (as manifested in His creation), you will be simply overwhelmed with wonder.

This is a short description of that which has dawned upon me. I submit it for your consideration, so that you may remedy the defects, and remove that which is injurious therein. In return you will be rewarded by the Vision of God and that Gracious Truth which is a source of consolation to me. God the Almighty knows the best of all. God alone deserves praise in the first and the last, in the internal and the external.

الجواب عن ثلاث مسائل

ضرورة تضاد في العالم والجبر والبقاء

وبعد فان مباحثته اياي عن مسألة ضرورة التضاد رفعت من ذكرى، وعظمت في امرى واستوجبت لله تعالى خالص شكرى، اذ لم يخطر ببالى ان اسال عن امثالها، خصوصاً على ذلك النمط، مردفاً بذلك الشك القوى، وهوان ضرورة التضاد ان كانت ممكنة الوجود كأن لها علة، وتنتهى الى الواجب الوجود بذاته، وان كانت واجبة الوجود بذاتها كان في واجب الوجود بذاته كثرة، وقد قام البرهان على ان واجب الوجود بذاته واحد من جميع جهاته، ثم ان كانت ممكنة كان سببها وموجدها هو الواجب الوجود الواحد، وقد قطعتم بان الشرور لا تفيض من عنده، فاقول في الجواب

ان الاوصاف للموصوفات على ضربين

ضرب يقال له الذاتي، وهو الذى لا يمكن ان يتصور الموصوف الا ويتصوره ذلك الوصف اولاً، ويلزمه ان يكون للموصوف لالعة كالحيوانية للانسان، ويكون قبل الموصوف بالذات، اعنى ان يكون علة الموصوف لا معلوله كالحيوان للانسان والناطق له، وبالجملة جميع اجزاء الحد للحدود اوصاف ذاتية وهذه معان مفروغ عنها

وضرب يقال له العرضى، وهو الذى يكون بخلاف ما تقدم، من انه يمكن ان يتصور الموصوف ولا يتصور حصول ذلك الوصف له، ولا يكون ذلك الوصف علة للموصوف، ولا قبله في المرتبة والطبع،

ثم اللوازم التي تلزم الموجودات لا تخلو من وجهين في القسمة الاولى العقلية ، فانها اما ان تكون لازمة لها بواسطة وعلة كلزوم الضاحك بالفعل للانسان ، فانه يلزمه بسبب لزوم التعجب له ، ثم ان كان لزوم التعجب بسبب آخر ايضاً ، فذلك السبب الاخر اما ان يكون لازماً واما ان يكون مفارقاً ، ومحال ان يكون الوصف المفارق سبباً لوصف لازم ، فبقي ان يكون ذلك السبب الآخر لازماً ايضاً فان كان لزوم ذلك السبب بسبب انحراد الكلام جذعاً ، فتكون هذه الاسباب اما متسلسلة الى ما لا نهاية له ، والبرهان قائم على استحالة ، واما دائرة اى المسبب سبب لسببه ، وهذا اظهر استحالة واما ان تكون في السببية منتهية الى سبب لا سبب له ، فيكون ذلك السبب اى الوصف واجب الوجود لذلك الموصوف كالتفكير للانسان مثلاً .

واذ تقدم هذا وبان ان بعض الاوصاف واجب الوجود للموصوفات ، فلنرجع الى مطلوبنا ونقول :-

ان الوجود امر اعتبارى ينطلق على معنيين على سبيل التشكيك ، لا على سبيل التواطر الصرف ، ولا على سبيل الاشتراك الصرف ، والفرق بين الاسامى الثلاثة ظاهر في اوائل المنطق وذلك المعنيان هما الكون في الاعدان الذى اسم الوجود احق به عند الجمهور ، والثانى الوجود في النفس كالتصورات الحسية والخيالية والوهمية والعقلية

وهذا المعنى الثانى هو بعينه المعنى الاول ، اذا المعانى المدركة المتصورة من حيث هى مدركة متصورة ، موجودة في الاعدان ، اذا المدرك عين من الاعدان والموجود في عين من الاعدان موجود في الاعدان ، الا ان الشئ الذى هو المدرك المتصور مثاله ورسمه ونقشه ، ربما يكون معدوماً في الاعدان ، كتعقلنا آدم ، فان المعنى المعقول من آدم هو معنى موجود في النفس وفي الاعدان ، اذا النفس عين من الاعدان ، ولكن آدم الذى هذا المعنى الموجود في النفس مثاله ، ونقشه

معدوم في الـاعيان - فهذا هو الفرق بين الوجودين ، وتبين ان الفرق بينهما بالاحق والاولى والتقدم والتاخر الذي يسمى بالتشكيك لا بالمعنى الذي سمي الاشتراك .

وهذه المسألة وان كانت عميقة جدا ، وتحتاج الى فضل تنفيذ فانها لا تخفى على فلان (هو السائل) . واذا قيل ان صفة الحيوان موجودة للانسان ، او كل مثلث فان زواياه الثلاث مساوية للقائمتين ، فانما نعى بهذا الوجود لا الوجود في الـاعيان ، بل الوجود في النفس ، وذلك ان التصور العقلي لا يمكنه ان يتصور الانسان الا ويتصور معه انه حيوان ، اذ حصول معنى الحيوان لمعنى الانسان امر ضروري ، وكذلك الفردية للثلاثة ، لان للثلاثة لا يمكن ان تعقل وتتصور الافراد وكل ما لا يمكن ان يتصور ويعقل الابصفة من الصفات فان تلك الصفة تكون واجبة له ، اى تكون له لـاعلة فتكون واجبة الوجود له ، فالفردية واجبة الوجود للثلاثة ، والحيوانية واجبة الوجود للانسان ، وكذلك جميع الاوصاف الذاتية الواجبة الوجود للموصوفات

منها ما يكون واجب الوجود للشئ بسبب تقدم وصف آخر واجب الوجود له ، ومنها ما يكون واجب الوجود للشئ لا بسبب تقدم وصف آخر له ، وكذلك جميع اللوازم تكون واجبة الوجود للزوم ، منها ما هو بسبب لازم آخر متقدم ، ومنها ما هو بلاسبب شئ الا ذات المزوم ، والبرهان ما تدمنه آفا ، ثم الفردية للثلاثة وان كانت صفة لازمة واجبة الوجود لها لا يجب ان تكون في نفسها موجودة في الـاعيان ، فضلا عن ان تكون واجبة الوجود في الـاعيان او ممكنة الوجود للشئ ، فان الحاصل له شئ ، والموجود الحاصل في الـاعيان شئ آخر ، فان الاوصاف المعدومة في الـاعيان ربما تكون موجودة في النفس والعقل لموصوفات معدومة في الـاعيان ، ولا يجوز ان يقال انها موجودة في الـاعيان كقول من يقول ان الخلاء بعد مفطور ممتد يسعه الاجسام وتتحرك فيه من موضع الى موضع ، فان هذه الاوصاف موجودة في العقل الخلاء الموجود المتصور في العقل المعدوم في الـاعيان ، فوجود الاوصاف للموصوفات انما هو بالقصد الاول في النفس والعقل لا الحصول والكون في الـاعيان ، واذا قيل ان الصفة الغلانية واجبة الوجود لكذا فانما يراد به الوجود في العقل والنفس لا في الـاعيان ، وكذلك اذا قيل انها ممكنة الوجود فانما يعنى به الوجود في النفس والعقل ، وقد علمت الفرق بينهما على اى صفة يكون ، فالوجود في الـاعيان هو

غير وجود شئ لشئ غيرية التشكيك على ما حققناه

ثم البرهان قام على ان واجب الوجود في الالعيان واحد في جميع جهاته وجميع صفاته، وهو سبب جميع الموجودات في الالعيان، وقد علمت ان الوجود في النفس هو أيضا وجود في الالعيان بوجه ما من وجود التشكيك فهو جل جلاله سبب لجميع الاشياء الموجودة .

ثم الاعدام وعللها ظاهرة عند فلان (هو السائل) لا اريد ان اطول بها الكلام، فقد بان من هذا انه اذا قيل ان الفردية واجبة الوجود للثلاثة فاما نعى به انها للثلاثة لا بسبب مسبب ولا يجعل جاعل، وكذلك جميع الذاتيات واللازم، وقد يمكن ان يكون ذاتي سببا لذاتي آخر، وان يكون لازم ايضا سببا لللازم آخر، الا انه يوشك ان ينتهي الى ذاتي اول لازم لاسبب لها، فيكون ذلك الذاتي سببا بوجه من الوجود، وان هذا الحكم لا يثلم القضية القائلة بان واجب الوجود بذاته واحد من جميع جهاته، اذا الوجود هناك الكون في الالعيان واجب الوجود في الالعيان واحد كما قد بيناه في مواضع آخر، وهذا الوجود هو الحصول للشئ من غير التفات الى وجود في الالعيان اوفى النفس، وبالجملة فان جميع الموجودات في الالعيان ممكنة لا غير، سوى وجوب الوجود الواحد

وتحليل المسئلة على الوجه الكلي هو ان الموجودات الممكنة فاضت من الوجود المقدس على ترتيب ونظام، ثم من الموجودات ما كان متضادا بالضرورة لا يجعل جاعل، واذا وجد ذلك الموجود وجد التضاد بالضرورة، واذا وجد التضاد بالضرورة وجد العدم بالضرورة، واذا وجد العدم وجد الشر بالضرورة، واما من قال ان واجب الوجود اوجد السواد والحرارة حق وجد التضاد لان (ل) اذا كانت (علة لب وب) علة (ل ح) فيكون (ل) علة (ل ح) فانه قال صوابا حقا لا بمجموعة فيه، لكن الكلام في هذا الموضع ينساق الى غرض وهو ان واجب الوجود اوجد السواد فوجد التضاد بالضرورة، فيكون واجب الوجود قد اوجد التضاد في الالعيان بالعرض لا بالذات، هذا لا شك فيه، الا انه لم يجعل السواد مضادا لليباض وانما اوجد السواد لا لمضادته لليباض بل لكونه ماهية ممكنة الوجود، وكل ماهية ممكنة الوجود فان واجب الوجود يوجد لها لان نفس الوجود خير اكن السواد ماهية لا يمكن الا ان تكون مضادة لشئ اخر، فكل من اوجد السواد لاجل كونه يمكن الوجود فهو الذي

وههنا سؤال اخر ركيك جداً عند معنى النظر في باب الالهيات ، وهو انه لم اوجد امراً كان يعلم انه يلزمه العدم والشر ، فيكون الجواب عنه ان السواد مثلاً فيه ألف خير وشر واحد ، والامساك عن اراد الف خير لاحت لزوم شرواحد اياه شرعظيم ، على ان النسبة بين خير السواد وشره اعظم من نسبة ألف الى واحد ، واذا كان هذا هكذا فقد بان ان الشرور موجودة في مخلوقات الله بالعرض لا بالذات ، وبان ان الشرفى الحكمة الاولى قليل جداً لانسبة له في الكية والكيفية الى الخير

واما سؤاله عن اى الفريقين أقرب الى الصواب ، فعمل الجبرى اقرب الى الحق فى بادى الراى وظاهر النظر من غير ان يتلجلج فى هذيانه ويتغفل فى خرافاته ، فانه حينئذ يبعد عن الحق جداً

واما الكلام الجارى فى البقاء والباقي ، فانه أمر قد شغف به جماعة من الاغبياء ، حيث لم يعقلوا ولم يتفطنوا لالحق ، اذ البقاء ليس هو الا اتصاف الموجود بالوجود مدة ما ، فكان الوجود غير ملتفت فيه الى المدة - والبقاء وجود يتضمن معنى المدة ، فالوجود معنى أعم من البقاء فليس الفرق بين الوجود والبقاء الا بالعموم والخصوص ، ثم العجب ان قائل هذا القول اعترف بان الوجود الموجود هما معنى واحد فى الاعيان وان كانا مفترقين فى النفس ، فلما بلغ الى البقاء ضل وأما الكلام الجدللى الملبس اياهم الى ارتكاب المحالات الاولى فهو هذا ، يسألون هل ههنا شئ موصوف بالبقاء ، فان أجابوا بلا ، قيل لهم اذن ليس ههنا باق ، فما الذى يوجد الموجودات ويستبقها على زعمكم بالتعاقب والايجاد فى الآتات المتوالية على ان البرهان قام على بطلان الانات المتوالية ، ولكن سلمنا قولكم

مسامحة ، فان اجابو بان هذا الموجد بالتعاقب غير باق يلزمهم أشد المحالات استحالة واقبحها ، واطنهم يتحاشون عن هذا ، وان اجابو ان ههنا شيئا باقيا ، سئلوا قيل لهم ان ذلك الباقي يكون باقيا ببقاء زائد على ذاته ، فذلك البقاء لا يخلو اما ان يكون باقيا ، واما أن لا يكون باقيا ، فان كان باقيا كان باقيا ببقاء ، وذلك البقاء ببقاء آخر ويتسلسل وهذا محال ، وان لم يكن ذلك البقاء باقيا فكيف يكون الباقي باقيا ، وبقاؤه الذى هو به باق غير باق هذا محال ، اللهم الا ان يرتكبوا فيقولوا الباقي باق ببقاء ات متصلة متشافة فى آتات متوالية ، فيعتقد يطالبون بشرح هذا الكلام ، ويقال لهم ما معنى هذه البقاء ات المتوالية ان كانت معانى بها يكون الباقي باقيا ، فذلك المعانى ينبغى أن تبقى مع الباقي مدة يمكن ان يوصف الباقي فيها بانه باق ، والا فلا معنى للبقاء والباقي ، وان كانت وجودات متشافة فقد بان ان الوجود والبقاء هما معنى واحد ، وان البقاء ليس هو الا الاستمرار الوجود واتصاف الموجود بالوجود ملتفتا فيه الى المدة ، اذ الوجود المطلق يجوز ان يكون فى آن من الزمان ولا يجوز ان يكون البقاء الا فى مدة فهذا هو سمت الجدل معهم وقمعهم ، والحق عندى ان لا يلاح من يكون عقله بحيث يخفى عليه هذا القدر من المعقولات. فهذا هو الذى سنح لى فى الحال ، والله اعلم بكل المقال

Translation by Prof. M. W. Rahman, M.A. (Osmania University).

If the necessity of contradiction is contingent being, it must have a cause and this causal series comes to an end with the Necessary Being. If, on the other hand, this necessity is self-existing, then there are other necessary beings besides God ; but it is argued that the Necessary Being is One, and not many, in all respects. Now if we accept the first alternative, it follows that the Necessary Being is its cause and the inventor. But it is an established fact that evil cannot emanate from such a Being. The rejoinder to all this reasoning is :—

The attributes of things are of two kinds—the essential and the accidental. The former is an attribute which is essential for a conception of that object, so much so that we cannot conceive that object without first conceiving that attribute. The attribute of animality in man is an example of such an attribute. This attribute always precedes the object having that attribute, or in other words it is its cause and not its effect, as an animal in relation to a man. In general it can be said that all the constituent parts of a term are essential attributes. The latter kind of attribute is just the opposite of the former. It is quite possible to conceive an object without first conceiving the accidental attributes. This attribute, again is not the cause of the object, and neither does it precede in the order of existence or nature.

The accidental attribute is again divided into two classes. It is inseparable, as man's ability to think or to wonder or to laugh, or it is separable. The separable accidental attributes are either separable in imagination only, as the blackness of a crow, or both in imagination and reality, as man's being a writer or a peasant. These are the primary classes of attribution.

Then the necessary attributes of the existing objects can again be, primarily and intellectually, divided into two classes:—(1) Their necessity is dependent upon the necessity of some other attribute, which is, as it were, its cause, as man's being a laughing animal is dependent on his being a wondering animal. This wonder in its turn depends upon some other attribute. This ultimate attribute is either (a) inseparable or (b) separable. But a separable attribute cannot be the cause of an inseparable attribute. This means that this ultimate attribute is necessarily inseparable. Now in this casual series the causes succeed each other, continuously ad infinitum, which has been shown to be impossible, or they move in a circle, i.e., the effect is the cause of its own cause. This is also obviously impossible, or again this series ends with a cause which has no cause. Such a cause or the attribute becomes the self-existing attribute for that object, for example, man's ability to think. Thus it is clear that some attributes are self-existing for an object. After this preamble we return to our theme.

Existence or being is a relative term, which can be used to designate two meanings. 'Ala Sabil-ut-tashkik:—(1) Being in reality. This is existence par excellence according to the general opinion. (2) Subjective Existence, e.g., the sensory, the imaginary, the fanciful and the intellectual concepts, which exist in mind alone. Now this second meaning is exactly the same as the first meaning, for the knowledge and conceivable meanings, in so far as they are knowable and conceivable, are found in reality, and the knowing self is a real thing among other real things and it is clear that an attribute that is found in one of the real things is also found in all the other real things, save that sometimes the example, the scheme and the outlines of a knowable and conceivable thing, does not exist in a real thing, for instance, the conception of man. This is because the meanings of man exist in mind, and also in real things, for the mind is one of the real things. But in so far as man has mental existence his example, scheme or outline does not exist in the real thing. This is the main difference between the two forms of existences. From all this it should be clear that their difference is necessary (Ahaqq) and fundamental and the precedence and the succession, which is known as (Tashkik) is not in the sense of (Ishtirāk). This problem is undoubtedly very subtle and deep, but it does not require much of elucidation, as Mr. so and so is not ignorant of it.

It is said that the attribute of animality exists in man, as if the quality of the sum of all the three angles of a triangle being equal to two right angles in a triangle. Here by existence we do not mean existence in reality, but only a mental existence. This is because it is not possible to conceive a man without first conceiving that he is an animal. The meaning animal is necessary for the meaning man. Similarly oneness is necessary for threeness, for the latter cannot be conceived save by the help of oneness. Now if a thing cannot be conceived without conceiving someone out of the many attributes, then this attribute becomes necessary for that thing. In other words, that thing does not possess that attribute on account of some cause. It is self-existing for that thing. Thus oneness is self-existing for threeness, as is animality for man. In general it can be said that the essential attributes are self-existing in relation to the things having those attributes.

Out of these self-existing attributes some are such on account of the precedence of some other attribute which is self-existing for that attribute, and other's self-existence does not depend upon the precedence of some other attribute. All the inseparable and the necessary attributes are self-existing in relation to the objects possessing them in this very sense. Out of this, some are necessary on account of the necessity of some other antecedent, and some are necessary not because of the something else but because of the thing possessing that attribute. All this argument is exactly the same as we have put forward a few lines back.

Now if oneness is a necessary and self-existing attribute of threeness, it cannot, by its very nature, be present in reality, save that it be self-existing in those real things, or be a contingent in an object, for its resultant is one thing and the resulting real thing is another thing. Sometimes the attributes not existing in the real things exist in mind and intellect for the things that have no real existence. So we are not justified in saying that they exist in reality. Someone for example says that the void is a natural and extended dimension, in which the bodies extend, and move from one position to another. Now these attributes of the void exist in the intellect and the void exists in, and is conceived by, the intellect, but is non-existent in reality. The attributes of things exist in the mind and the intellect in the first instance. They are not obtained from outside.

Now about real existence. Whenever it is said that such and such an attribute has a necessary existence in such and such a thing, what is meant is that it exists in the mind and the intellect, and not in reality. Similarly whenever it is said that the existence of such and such an attribute is dependent upon the existence of some other attribute, what is meant is existence in mind and the intellect. We have already explained the difference between the two, whatever the attribute. The real existence is quite different from the existence of a thing for a thing, the difference being from the point of view of Tashkik. This has already been explained.

It has been argued that the necessarily existing real thing is one in all respects and attributes, and that it is the cause of the existence of all the real things. It has already been known that existence in mind is the same as existence in reality from the point of view of Tashkik. So that the Supreme Being is the cause of all the existing objects. The non-existence and its causes are obvious to Mr. so and so, hence I do not like to dilate upon it.

From all this it should be clear that when it is said that oneness exists necessarily for threeness, what is meant is that it is so not on account of some other cause, and is not due to the act of some other actor. Similar is the case with all other essential and necessary attributes. It is quite possible that an essential and necessary attribute might become the cause of some other essential and necessary attribute, and thus lead to an essential or necessary attribute for which there is no cause

Thus this essential attribute becomes the cause in some sense. This judgment, however, does not negate the proposition that the necessary being is one in all the respects, for here existence means existence in reality and as has already been shown, necessary real thing is one. This existence is extraneous to the thing. It does not depend upon existence in reality or in mind. In general all the things existing in reality are contingent and naught else, except the necessity of the One Being.

After this introduction we take up the analysis of the general problem. The contingent beings have emanated from the Holy Being according to a definite order and arrangement. Out of these beings there are some which are necessarily contradictory. Their contradiction, in other words, is not the result of the action of some actor, so that whenever that being is found, the contradiction is also necessarily found, and wherever the contradiction is formed, non-existence is also necessarily formed. Again whenever non-existence is found, evil is also necessarily found. It is quite correct to say that the Necessary Being created blackness or heat, thereby creating the contradiction, for if A is the cause of B, and B is the cause of C, A is necessarily the cause of C. But here we are led to a particular purpose, viz., the Necessary Being created blackness. This necessarily is creating contradiction. But there is no doubt about the fact that the Necessary Being created this contradiction in the real things not by its own nature but by accident. He did not create blackness as a contradictory to whiteness but as a nature existing contingently. All natures existing contingently are made necessary by the Necessary Being, for existence itself is a good, and not an evil. But blackness is a nature, which is necessarily contradictory to something else. So whoever created blackness on account of its being a contingent existence created the contradiction accidentally. Hence the evil cannot, in any way, be attributed to the creator of blackness, for the primary purpose of the Eternal Being was the creation of the primary and good, but this particular form of species of Good cannot possibly be free from evil and non-existence. It follows from all this that we can attribute Evil to Him only accidentally and it is evident that we are discussing the essentials and not the accidents.

Here another question crops up: Why did He create a thing, which He knew will be necessarily accompanied by non-existence and Evil? The answer is:—Take Blackness for instance, in it there are a thousand good and only one

Evil. To abstain from a thousand good for the sake of a single evil is itself a great evil, for the proportion of the good of blackness to its evil is as one found in the creation of God is accidental and not essential. It is also evident that the evil according to the First Wisdom was very little, and that qualificatively or quantitatively it does not compare with Good. . .

II

Turn we now to the second question: Out of the two views—the freewill and the determinism—which is nearer truth? Apparently the determinist is on the right path, but in reality he talks nonsense, for sometimes he is very far from the truth.

Some people say that duration (Baqa) is an attribute of a thing additional to its other attributes. How far are they correct?

Now duration is naught but the continued existence of a thing for a particular period of time. This means that duration is an existence, which includes length of time, so that existence is more general than duration. Hence we can say that the difference between the two is that of the general and the particular. What strikes one as wonderful is that the thinkers who admit that in relation to reality the existence and the existing thing are one and the same, although they are different as mental concepts, are led astray when dealing with duration. But the following argument of the dialectician always leads him to impossibilities. They are asked: Is there anything here having the attribute of duration? If he says yes there is, our rejoinder is: as if what you say is right it does not endure here, so what is that thing which creates the existing things, and, as you believe perpetuates it through succession and creation in recurring moments in spite of the fact that the existence of the recurring moments has been disproved. Anyhow for the sake of peace we grant it. If on the other hand, they say that this creator through succession does not endure, they are faced with the worst kind of impossibility.

If they reply that there is a thing here which endures, we say that this enduring thing endures on account of a duration which is additional to its own self. Now this duration will either endure, or it will not. If it endures, it will endure on account of the duration, and this duration, again, on account of other duration, and so on. But all this is impossible. If, on the other hand, the duration does not endure, how can the enduring thing endure? This means that the duration, on account of which that thing endures, itself does not endure. This is also impossible.

These dialecticians, in fact, commit the fallacy of asserting that the enduring thing endures on account of the continuous and contiguous durations in recurring moments, and hence they require an explanation, which is quite simple. We ask them: What is the meaning of those recurring durations? If they have any meanings, the enduring thing will endure meanings should adhere. It is necessary that those meanings should adhere to the enduring thing for some time thereby qualifying the enduring thing with this attribute. If it is not so, duration and the enduring thing have no meaning. If they are two bipartite existences, it is clear that existence and duration are one and the same. Duration is nothing but the perpetuation of existence, or the existing thing having the attribute of existence, for a period of time. It is possible for the absolute existence to be in a moment of time, but it is not possible for duration to be except in a period of time.

رسالة في الوجود من مؤلفات الشيخ الامام حجة الحق عمر الخيام رحمه الله

بسم الله الرحمن الرحيم

الاولى للموصوفات على ضربين ضرب يقال لها الذاتي وضرب يقال لها العرضي ومن الاولى العرضيه ما يكون لازماً للموصوف ومنها ما لا يكون لازماً بل يمكن ان يكون مفارقاً اما بالوهم وبالوجود معاً (١) ثم كل واحد من الذاتي

(١) بالوهم ادبه وبالوجود معا

والعرضى ينقسم الى قسمين قسم يقال لها الاعتبارى وقسم يقال له الوجودى اما قسم (٢) الوجودى العرضى فهو يوصف (٣) الجسم بالاسود اذا كان اسود (٤) فان السواد صفة وجوديه اى هو معنى زايد على ذات الاسود موجود فى الالعيان واذا كان السواد صفة وجودية فيكون الاسود وصفًا وجوديًا واثبات هذا القسم الوجودى مستغن عن البرهان بظهوره عند العقل بل عند الوهم والحس واما القسم الاعتبارى الوجودى العرضى (٥) كوصف الاثنين بانه نصف الاربعة لانه لو كان الاثنين نصف اربعة امر ازيدا على ذاته لكان الاثنين معانى زائدة على ذاته لانهاية لها بالعدد والبرهان قائم على استحالاته واما القسم الاعتبارى الذاتى كوصف السواد بانه لون اذ كونه لونا وصف ذاتى له والبرهان على ان اللونية ليست بصفة زائدة على ذات السوادية فى الالعيان هو انما لو كانت صفة زائدة فلا بد من ان يكون عرضا او السواد عرض (٦) ثم كيف يمكن ان يكون عرضا موضوعا لعرض آخر وان كان موضوع السوادية موضوعا للونية لكانت اللونية صفة فى موضوع السواد غير السواد ولكانت اللونية امرا موجودا فى الالعيان يلزمه من خارج وانه يكون سواد وهذا محال ومعنى قولنا الوصف الاعتبارى هو ان العقل اذا عقل معنى ما فانه يفصل ذلك المعقول تفصيلا عقليا ويعتبر احواله فان صادف ذلك المعنى غير متكرر بجميع الاعراض الموجودة فى الالعيان وصادف له اوصافا فاعلم ان تلك الاوصاف انما هى له بحسب الاعتبار لا بحسب الوجود فى الالعيان لتحقق ان الشئ البسيط الموجود فى الالعيان لا يمكن ان يكن فيه كثرة فى اجزائه فى الالعيان ولتحقيقه ان العرض لا يكون موضوعا لعرض آخر ولتحقيقه ان موضوع ذلك العرض لا يجوز ان يكون موضوعا لتلك الصفة التى وصف بها ذلك العرض وهذه مقدمات مسلمة عندهم لكن بعضها غير مسلم عند اهل الحكمة ولعل هذه المعانى موضوع عنها فى العلم الاعلى الالهى الكلى ومن لم يفتن لهذه الاوصاف الاعتبارية من الباحثين عن هذا الموضوع ضل ضلالا بعيدا كبعض متعسفى المتأخرين الذين جعلوا اللونية والعرضية والوجود وهذه (٧) الاحوال احوال ثابتة مما لا يوصف لا بوجود ولا بعدم والشك الذى اوقعهم فى هذا الخطا الفلاح من (٨) اعظم الخطايا لاوليته واظهرها (٩) هو انه لا واسطة بين السلب و

(٢) اما قسم (٣) فهو وصف (٤) كان اسودا (٥) الاعتبارى العرضى

(٦) عرضا والسواد عرضى ايضا (٧) واما هذه (٨) الخطا وهو من (٩) الخطا يا اظهرها

الايجاب ظاهره لاحاجة مالى ذكره ونقضه اوحله استخافته ولو كانوا يتفطنون
 الاوصاف الاعتبارية لما وقعوا في هذه الفتنة العظيمة بل قالوا ان اللونية في
 الالوان عمن يوجد (١٠) شيئاً متميزاً عن السوادية انما هو وصف عقل يحصل
 في النفس عنه تحقق العقل ذات السواد وتصفح احوالها ومشاركتها للبياض
 في بعض احوالها وكذلك الوجود والوحدة وفعل (١١) امر الوجود واصعب
 (١٢) من سائر الاعراض اشكل جماعة من اهل الحق فيه اذ قالوا ان
 الانسان المعقول مثاله حقيقة ومهية لا تدخل في حدها الوجود حتى ان العاقل
 يمكنه ان تعقل معنى الانسان من غير ان تعقل هو انه موجودا ومعدوم فيلزم
 لا محالة ان يكون الوجود معنى يلزمه من خارج ذاته وقالوا ان الوجود للانسانية
 هو المعنى المكتسب له من غيره اذ الحيوانية والناطقة له من ذاته لا يجعل جاعلا
 (١٣) ولا بسبب مسبب كان البارى جل جلاله لم يجعل الانسانية جسما مثلاً بل
 جعله موجوداً ثم ان الانسان اذا وجد لا يمكن ان يكون الا جسماً قالوا اذا كان
 الامر كذلك فبالواجب ان يكون الوجود معنى زائداً على الانسان من الالوان
 كيف زاد وهو المعنى المستفاد من العلة وقبل ان يخوض في حل هذه الشبهة تاتي
 برهان ضرورى على ان الوجود معنى اعتبارى نقول ان الوجود في الموجود
 لو كان معنى زائداً عليه في الالوان لكان موجوداً وقيل ان كل وجود بوجود
 (١٤) فيكون الوجود موجوداً وكذلك (١٥) وجوده الى ما لا نهاية له وهو مخ فان قيل
 ان الوجود معنى لا يوصف بالوجود سلب الاطلاق لاسلب احد الطرفين حتى لا يقلل انه
 موجودا وغير موجود طالبتا هم حينئذ نظرا في النقص وقلنا بل الوجود
 موجود في الالوان ام غير موجود في الالوان فان اجيب بنعم لزمهم المحال
 بفاحش وان اجيب بلا فديان ان الوجود غير موجود في الالوان وهذا هو
 موضع الخلاف فمرحبا بالوافق ثم نطالبهم ثانياً ونقول بل الوجود وصف معقول
 لذات الوجود ام لا فان اجيب بنعم لزمهم القول بالاعتراف بان الوجود حكم
 اعتبارى وان اجيب بلا كان الوجود معدوماً في الالوان وفي النفس جميعاً و
 لعل العقلاء يتحاشون عن الامثال (١٦) هذا ومنهم من قال ان صفة الوجود
 لا يحتاج الى وجود آخر حتى يكون موجوده بل هي موجودة بلا وجود آخر

(١٠) الالوان لا يوجد (١١) وتعقل (١٢) الوجود لما كان اصعب (١٣) جاعل

(١٤) موجودا وكل موجود موجود وجود (١٥) موجودا بوجود آخر وكذلك

(١٦) عن امثال

الجواب هذا القائل انما يريد ان يدفع التسليم بل وقع (١٤) في عدة محالات آخر منها ان نقول على هذا الوجود الذي تشير اليه موجود (١٨) ام لا فان اجاب بلا فقد وافقنا وناقض نفسه وان اجاب بنعم وقع التسلسل الى ما لانهاية له ولم يدفعه ولزمه المحال وان اجاب بلا قلنا هذا الوجود الذي ذهب اليه شيئ له ذات ما ام لا فان اجاب بلا فهو هذيان ومحال وان اجاب بنعم قلنا له قد سلمت ذاتا موجودة بلا فما مالك لا نسلم في كل موجود وفي كل ذات حتى تستريح عن هذه المناقضات وعن هذه المحالات ثم ان صح كلامك الاول ان (١٩) البياض الموجود يحتاج الى وجود زائد عليه لا محاله فهذا محال ثم منهم من تغافل في هذه المحالات ويستغل في المغالطات الوحشية وحينئذ تقطع الكلام معه ونستغل بروحه من (٢٠) وجه آخر وايضاً فان كانت صفة الموجود موجودة بذاتها لا بوجود آخر واقترنت بالماهية بها وصارت الماهية بها موجودة لكان حكم الجزء محمولاً على المركب وهذا محال ولو كان الامر كذلك لما صارت الماهية موجودة بل صارت مقترنة بامر وجود حتى لا يكون صفة الجزء محمولة على المركب كما ان البياض بياض لذاته واذا اقترن بالجسم لم يصر المركب بياض بل صار ابيض ولو كان البياض ابيض لذاته لما صار الجسم ابيض بل صار مقترناً بشئ ابيض على ان العامة تسمون البياض ابيض فيقولون هذا لون ابيض ذلك على (٢١) سبيل التحقيق فان كان الوجود ايضاً يقال انه موجود على المجاز لا على التحقيق فحكمه المجازات ولا تنازع فيه واعلم ان هذه مشكلة عامة لجميع العلوم ولا يكاد حقيقة يظهر لمحقق الا قادر ببطلان هذا وقد سمعت واحد منهم يقول ان الوجود موجود ولا يحتاج الى وجود آخر كما ان الانسان بالانسانية انسان ثم الانسانية لا يحتاج الى انسانية اخرى حتى يكون انسانية وهذا (٢٢) القائل لم يفرق بين الانسانية والانسان لانه لو كانت الانسانية موصوفة بانها انسان لكانت مفترقة الى انسانية اخرى بل هي موصوفة بانها انسانية فهلا قال في الوجود مثل هذا ان الوجود غير موصوف بانه موجود حتى يحتاج الى وجود بل هو موصوف [on page 125] بانه وجود لا غير حتى يدفع هذا المحال وهذه المغالطة من الخش المغالطات المقولة في هذا الباب عصمنا الله من الزور واحب الغلبة واما حل شبهة اهل الحق وهوان الوجود هو المعنى المستفاد

(e) Persian Tract called Kullīāt-i Wajūd.
Universals of Existence.

This tract [Bibliography II, Item 13], which must have been written by 'Omar in about 488 H. (1095) at the request of Fakhr ul Mulk, son of Nizām ul Mulk, was discovered by Dr. Arthur Christensen in BN. Paris Suppl. Persian 139 VII. called Roudat ul Qulūb. The last Section of the tract appears in Dr. Fredrich Rosen's edition (pp. 70-71 of Preface) of the Quatrains of 'Omar-i Khayyām (London Luzac & Co.). Saiyed Sulaiman Nadwī has reproduced the whole tract [Khayyām pp. 414-423] in seven sections from BM. London MS. OR. 6572, (as could be deciphered), except for the last Section which has been compared with the version in the Paris MS. The version from the MS. of the British Museum contains many lacunæ in Sections 2, 3, 4, 5 and 6. A third MS. of this tract exists in Tehrān, [Majlis Shūrāi Milī No. 9072] written on 12 Shawwāl 1288 H., and has been reproduced in Sharq Magazine, Tehrān, Sha'bān 1350 H. [pp. 643-650]. This does not contain Sections 5 and 6 and a portion of Section 4 as marked by Mr. Nadwī. The following version has been prepared from the MSS. of Br. Museum and Tehrān. The portion in square brackets is from the Tehrān MS. and supplies the hiātus in the MS. of Br. Museum. The portion in round brackets appears in the MS. of the Br. Museum only. The remaining portion is common to both with very slight difference.

The English translation of the prefatory portion as well as the last section of this tract has been given in Section VIII of this Introduction.

رساله فی کلیات وجود

چنین گوید ابو الفتح عمر بن ابراهیم الحیام که چون مرا سعادت خدمت صاحب عادل نحر الملک میسر گشت و قربت و اختصاص داد بالای مجلس خویش -
 و این بزرگوار بهر وقت از من یادگار می خواسته در علم کلیات - پس این
 جزو بر مثال رسالتی از بهر درخواست او املا کرده شد تا اهل علم و حکمت
 انصاف بدهند که این مختصر مفید تر از مجلدات است ایزد تعالی مقصود
 حاصل گرداند (بمنه و کرمه آغاز سخن)

[فصل اول]

(۱) بدان که هرچه موجود است بجز ذات باری تعالی يك جنس است و آن جوهرست و جوهر بدو قسم است - جسم است و بسیط - و لفظها که بازای معنی کلیات است، اول لفظ جوهرست و چون آن را بدو قسم گردانی لفظ جسم است و لفظ بسیط - و موجودات کلی را بیش ازین دو نام (سه نام یعنی جوهر و جسمیت و بسیط) نیست - از آن جهت که جز ذات باری تعالی موجود همین است - و کلیات نوعی قسمت پذیر است و نوعی دیگر قسمت پذیر نیست - آنچه قسمت پذیر است جسم است و آنچه قسمت پذیر نیست بسیط است و قسمت پذیر و قسمت ناپذیر بر تفاوت اند بر تب - آنچه بسیط است از وجه تفاوت رتبت دونوع کلی است، نوعی را عقل گویند و نوعی را نفس و این هر یک بده رتبت است - آنچه عقل کلی است و جزویات ایشان را نهایت نیست - اول عقل فعال است که معلول اول است بنسبت با واجب الوجود و علت است جمله موجودات را که زیر اویند و مدبر است موجودات کلی را - و عقل دوم مدبر فلک اعظم (اطلس) است و عقل سوم مدبر فلک افلاک است و عقل چهارم مدبر فلک زحل است و عقل پنجم مدبر فلک مشتریست و عقل ششم مدبر فلک مریخ است و عقل هفتم مدبر فلک شمس است و عقل هشتم مدبر فلک زهره است و عقل نهم مدبر فلک عطارد است و عقل دهم مدبر فلک قمر است - و این هر عقلی را نفسی است بازای او که عقل بے نفس نباشد و نفس بے عقل - و این عقول و نفوس چنانکه مدبر این افلاک اند محرك اند هر یک بمرجوم فلک خویش را - و آنچه نفس است محرك است بر سیل (فاعل و آنچه عقل است محرك است بر طریق) معشوق - از آن جهت که عقل برتبت برتر از نفس است و شریف تر از نفس است بدان سبب با واجب الوجود نزدیک تر است -

(۲) و بیاوردانند که آنچه میگوئیم که نفس محرك فلک است بر سیل فاعلی و عقل محرك نفس است بر طریق معشوقی از آن جهت میگوئیم که نفس مشابهت می نماید و می خواهد که در ورسد و از جهت آن قصد ارادیت که نفس را با عقل است حرکات در فلک [پدید] می آید و آن حرکات اجزاء فلک را مستوجب عددی گردانند [و عدد آن باشد] با واجب که کلی بود و عدد کلی

بے نہایتی واجب کند - از بہر آن کہ ہر عددے کہ آن را نہایت بود آن عدد جزوے بود - بدان سبب کہ عدد از دو قسمت بیرون نباشد یا جفت بود یا طاق [اگر جفت بود نہایت او طاق بود اگر طاق بود نہایت او جفت بود و طاق و جفت از جملہ اجزای عدد است پس سبب درست شد کہ هیچ کلی را نہایت نباشد و عدد کل لا شک از جملہ کلیات باشد]

اکنون بیاید دانستن کہ موجودات کلی کہ آن را دوام ست کہ ایشان معلول واجب الوجودند، اول عقل فعالست، انگہ نفس کل است انگہ جسم کل است و جسم بسہ قسم است: افلاک و امہات و موالید۔ و این ہر یکے قسمت پذیر اند و اجزائے ایشان را نہایت نیست در کون و فساد۔ چنانکہ افلاک و انجم را کہ کون و فسادشان نیست (در اجزا) وزیر او امہات است، اول آتش، انگہ ہوا، انگہ آب، انگہ خاک، موالید کہ اول جماد است و انگہ نبات، انگہ حیوان است و انسان ہم از جملہ حیوان است از وجہ جنیست۔ اما نوع پسین (است) [و انسان] از جہت نطق بر حیوان شرف دارد۔

آمہات و موالید و علت و معلول وجود او اند (نہ از جنس او از) جل جلالہ۔
 اکنون چون ما شریف ترین چیزے در آخر عقل و نفس یافتیم معلوم شد کہ
 ابتدا همان باشد و مردم چون ابتدا و انتہا بدانت باید کہ نزدیک او درست
 شود کہ نوع (عقل و نفس او را جنس نفس و عقل یکیت) [نوع اول عقل
 کل و نفس کل است] این دیگر از باب متوسط اند و از او بیگانہ و او
 ایشان را بیگانہ، پس باید کہ آہنگ او بجنس خودش باشد تا از ہم گوہر ان
 خود دور نماند، زیرا کہ عذاب مقیم باشد۔ و معلوم است کہ جسم را با بسیط
 هیچ مناسبت نیست۔ و حقیقت ذات مردم بسیط است قسمت نمی پذیرد
 [و جسم قسمت پذیر است] و حد جسم آنست کہ او را طول و عرض و عمق
 است و اعراض دیگر چون خط و سطح بدو قائم می شود و حد بسیط آنست کہ
 [او را طول و عرض و غیرہ نیست و] مدرك اشیا است و صورت علم را
 قابل است و او نہ نقطہ است و نہ خط و نہ جسم و نہ از جملہ اعراض دیگر چون
 کیت و کیفیت و اضافت و این ومتی و وضع و ملک و ان یفعل و ان ینفعل۔ ازین
 هیچ چیز نیست۔ اما جوہر یست بذات خویش قائم، و برہان آن کہ (او
 جوہر است آنست کہ) صورت علم بدو قائم است و علم عرض است و عرض
 بعرض قائم نباشد [الا جوہر و درست است کہ نہ جوہرے جسانی است
 از آنکہ جسم قسمت پذیر بود و او قسمت شناس است نہ قسمت پذیر۔ کہ
 قسمت شناس قسمت پذیر نبود پس] این جوہر را از صفت اجسام [مہذب
 باید داشت] و بدین صفت مقصود تقرب است کہ [او را با] اجسام نباشد۔
 چہ این تقرب نمی باید کہ وے را بود [الا با جنس خویش] کہ آنکہ سبب
 ہلاک وے باشد [واللہ اعلم]

[فصل دوم]

(۳) بدان کہ عقل با دراک معقولات بہ نفس خویش [مشتغل
 است] و نفس را بحقیقت ادراک معقولات بعقل [حاجت است و سرفرازی]
 و بزرگی از جملہ لزومات نفس است۔ [بدین سبب] پیوستہ با عقل مشابہت
 می نماید و برہان آنست کہ هیچ نفس [بر هیچ عقل] بوقت ادراک البتہ حسد
 [نبرد کہ نفس استعداد] خویش را از عقل زیادت شمرد بوقت ادراک لیکن
 ادراک [او از جملہ تخننی] بود و هیچ حقیقی نباشد۔ و این مشابہت [نمودن
 نفس با عقل غریزت است] و آثار او در محسوسات پدید می آید [پس چون
 نفس کہ از جسم] شریف تر است بے رعونت نیست بہ هیچ حال [جسم]

از رعونت [خالی نباشد] - که ترکیب جسم از ماده و صورت است - و [اورا کیفیت است و کیفیت] او در کلیات نفس می دهد و در جزویات [علت جسمانی می دهد] معلول خویش را و اینکه در جزویات [می گوئیم] و بشرح حاجت است - چنان که نفس کلی نفس می دهد [جزوی را] فلك اسطقص می دهد موالید را و انسان را که جزو است کل موالید را - کیفیت در ترکیب [او هم نفس] می دهد و هم فلك و هم اسطقص و هم موالید [پس رعونت این بیشتر از آن دیگر چیزها باشد]

(ن) بدان که قدما در جزویات خوض نکرده اند از بهر آنکه جزویات آیند و روند، نا پائدار باشند و اجتهاد بکلیات کرده اند از بهر آنکه کلیات همیشه بر جا باشند و علمیه که بر ایشان (دلالت کند) پائدار می بود و هر که کلیات معلوم کند جزو یا تشبیه ضرورت معلوم شود -

اکنون بدان که کلیات پنج قسم است جنس و نوع و فصل و خاصه و عرض - و این هر قسم به نفس خویش کلی است - چنانکه مثلاً جنس لفظی است مفرد کلی که در زیر او کثرت کلی افتد - چنانکه جسم و جوهر که هر یک به نفس خویش کلی اند و [در] زیر [هر] یکی کثرت افتد - چنانکه مثلاً جوهر لفظی باشد که بر جمله معلومات غیر باری دلالت کند و جوهر نیز بدو قسم است نامی و غیر نامی - نامی نیز بدو قسم است حیوان و غیر حیوان و حیوان نیز بدو قسم است ناطق و غیر ناطق - اکنون اینجا گاه جنس می توان یافت که بالا می آن نوع نوعی دیگر نیست و آن حیوان ناطق است - و آن دیگر انواع متوسط اند و انواع متوسط هر ایک نسبت با بالا می خویش نوع اند [و نسبت با زیر خویش جنس اند] و بدان جای که نوع اند جزو می اند مرکل خویش را پس از ایشان هر یک هم کل اند و هم جزو - چنانکه مثلاً جوهر که جنس است مرنوع خویش را [نوع او حیوان و غیر حیوان بود و حیوان که جنس است مرنوع خویش را نوع او] ناطق و غیر ناطق است - اکنون بدان که جوهر کلی باشد [که هر] جنس که موجود است همه جزو او باشد و فصل کلی باشد که بقوت او جنس را از جنس و نوع را از نوع جدا توان کرد [چنانکه مثلاً حیوان لفظی بجل است و انواع او ناطق است و غیر ناطق - غیر ناطق و ناطق فصل انسان باشد که به منطقی وی را از دیگر حیوان جدا توان کرد] و دیگر چیزها هم برین قیاس -

و خاصه عرضی باشد که وی را نه بوهم و نه عقل از جوهر خویش جدا
توان کردن - چنانکه مثلاً تری از آب که اگر تری از آب جدا کنی نه آب بود -
و گرمی از آتش و خشکی از خاک و لطافت از هوا و آنچه بدین ماند -

و عرض غام به نه قسم است کیمت و کیفیت و اضافت و این ومتی و وضع
(و ملک) و ان یفعل و ان ینفعل و این جمله اعراض اند - کیمت چندی باشد
و کیفیت چگونگی باشد و اضافت نسبت - (کار می به کار می باشد - و این
کجائی باشد ومتی کئی باشد وضع نهادگی و ملک اورای باشد و ان یفعل
کردگی باشد و ان ینفعل کنندگی باشد)

(ه) (بدان که کارها که از مردم برون آید از دو چیز برون نیست و هر
دو عرض است اما حال باشد اما ماکه حال آن باشد که در مردم از تغییر می
یا از سرشهو می یا از سرد عوی حرکت می و سکنات می پیدا آید و این از دو برون نیست
یا پسندیده یا ناپسندیده - چنانکه مثلاً خشم و حقد که هر دو ناپسندیده باشند -
یا شفقت و محبت که هر دو پسندیده باشند - و هر چه در رسید و زود بر شد آن را حال
خوانند - و هر چه دیر تر بماند آن را ملکه خوانند - چنانکه بخواند و دیر تر که
فراموش کند تا صفات پسندیده یا ناپسندیده که با مردم ماند - ولیکن چیز
معدوم شد آن ممکن بود هم عرض باشد بشرف مردم هیچ تعلق ندارد.....)
(در اثبات صانع عظمت کبر یاؤه بیاید دانست که هر چه مردم در آن اندیشه
توان برد از سه بیرون نیست یا واجب باشد یا ممکن یا ممتنع - اما واجب
چیز می باشد که نشاید که نه باشد و شاید که باشد و ممکن آن باشد که وجود او شاید
که باشد و شاید که نباشد و چون ممکن را اثبات کردی بضرورت ممتنع لازم شود -
از بهر آنکه چون بگفتن چیز می هست بتوهم خلق که وجود او ممتنع است -
پس این چه که بوجود او بهمه طریقها واجب است باری عز اسمہ باشد -
و آنچه وجود او ممکن باشد هر چه موجود است بجز ذات باری تعالی و آنچه
ممتنع است وجود ممکن نباشد والله اعلم -)

(۶) (بدانکه موجودات بر دو قسم است - یکے واجب الوجود است -
و آن باری تعالی است و دیگر ممکن الوجود است و آن دو نوع است
یکے جوهر و آن هر آن موجود می که از موضوع مستغنی بود - و دوم عرض
و آن هر آن موجود می بود که از موضوع مستغنی نباشد - و جوهر

بد و قسم است یکے جسم و دیگر غیر جسم و اجسام در جسمیت برابر اند و متساوی - و آثار اجسام مختلف است بعضے سرد است بعضے گرم و بعضے نبات است و بعضے معدن است - و روان بود کہ مقتضی آن آثار مختلف جسمیت مشترک بود کہ بری است از اثبات صور و قوی در جسم - تا بسبب اختلاف در آن آثار پیدا شود - و حکما بعضے از ان صور را خاصیت نام نہادہ اند هیچ گونه عجب ندارد - (چه همچنانکہ سنگ مقناطیس آہن می رباید - و آتش را قوتیست کہ از یک شعله از وے صد ہزار چندان کہ پیدای شود و در آن آتش هیچ نقصان پیدا نیاید - و اگر نہ آن استے کہ آتش دیدہ باشد و بسبب کثرت دیدن آن غربت و تعجب زائل گشتہ است و اگر نہ جرم آتش از ہمہ غریب تر و عجیب تر است - و همچنان کہ مردم از آتش آن فعل عجب ندارد و داند کہ در آتش قوتیست کہ موجب احتراق و تسخین است همچنان باید کہ تصور کنند کہ در جسم مقناطیس قوتیست کہ فعل او آہن ربودن است - و ہر آن کس کہ این معنی بحقیقت تصور کند از بسیار اشکالات خلاص یابد)

[First Section] (1). Know that whatever exists, save the Godhood, is one Genus (fins), and that is an Essence (fowhar). Essence is of two kinds: Body (fism) and Spirit (Basit). Of the words which stand for the "Universal," the first word is Essence and when you differentiate it into two, one word is the Body and the other the Spirit. The Universal Existences have no other names than these three, namely, the Essence, the Body and the Spirit, because save Godhood Existence is this much only. One kind of the universal is separable and the other inseparable. The separable is the Body and the inseparable the Spirit. The separable and the inseparable are antagonistic in status. The Spirit (Basit) in view of the difference in gradation is of two universal kinds one is called Intellect ('Aql) and the other Mind (Nafs). Each of these have ten states. The Cosmic Mind has no limit as to its individual parts. The first is the Creator's Intellect, which is the first effect of the Necessary Existence and the primary cause of Existences thereunder, and ordainer of Cosmic Existences. The Second Intellect is the ordainer of the Highest Sphere, the third of Sphere of Spheres, the fourth of Saturn's Sphere, the fifth of Jupiter's Sphere, the sixth of the Sphere of Mars, the seventh of Sun's Sphere, the eighth of the Sphere of Venus, the ninth of Mercury's Sphere and the tenth of Moon's Sphere. Each of these Intellects has also its Mind, because there cannot be an Intellect without a Mind, nor a Mind without an Intellect. These Intellects and Minds which are the ordainers of the Spheres each move the celestial orbs pertaining to their sphere. The Mind acts as a Lover and the Intellect as the Beloved. Because the Intellect is higher in status and nobler than the Mind, and hence nearer to the necessary existence.

(2). It must be understood, we say, that the Mind moves Ether like a Lover and Intelligence moves the Mind as a Beloved, because the Mind simulates and tries to penetrate into Intellect, and as a result of the Mind's endeavours to fulfil its longings for the Intellect, motions in Ether are evinced. These motions impart numbers to parts of Ether. Number is a Universal, the complete number is Infinite as a Universal; because a finite number is only a part, since it may be either odd or even, if odd, it is exceeded by even and even by odd, odd and even are parts of the number. Hence it rightly follows that no Universal has a limit and the Whole Number (Infinite) is doubtless among the Universals.

Now be it known that Universal existences which are perpetual, being the effects of the Necessary Existence are first the Creative Intellect, then the Cosmic Mind and then the Cosmic Body. The Body is of three kinds: Ether, Elements and Creations. Each of these admit subdivision and their parts come into being and cease to be without an end. The Ether and Stars have no creation or destruction as regards the parts. Thereunder come the Elements, Fire, Air, Water, Earth and then the Creations, viz., the Mineral, the Vegetable and the Animal. Among the Genus of Animal is Man, but he is the final kind and being rational, superior to other animals.

The sequence of Beings is like the sequence of the letters of the Alphabet, each letter being derived from the one previous to it. Alif is not derived from any other letter and is the first cause of all letters of the alphabet, because it has no precedent but has a subsequent. Hence if any one asks us the question as to what the least number is, we shall reply "Two," since "One" is no number; because a number must have a precedent and a subsequent. Thus they say one into one is one, one into two is two, one into three is three, and so on. But two into two is four because one preceeds two and three succeeds it, three and one make four. The same is the case with all numbers. Hence Necessary Existence is one not as a Number because one is no number, as it has no precedent; but the Necessary Existence is One as being the Primal Cause. The effect thereof is the Intellect, and effect of Intellect the Mind, the effect of Mind the Ether, the effects of Ether the Elements, the effect of Elements the creatures, and each of these are the causes of what comes as an effect under them. That which is an effect is undoubtedly the cause of another. This is called a causal chain. A man is rightly a man if he understands the causal chain and knows that the above-mentioned are only medial entities, and because the Ether, the Elements and creations are the causes and effects of his existence, but not of his Genus, as he hails from Lord Almighty!

Now that we have found the noblest thing in Intellect and Mind in the end, we know that the beginning also was the same. The man who knows the beginning and the end understands rightly that his individual Intellect and Mind are of the same Genus as the cosmic Intellect and cosmic Mind and these other entities are alien from him, and he an alien to them. Hence he should endeavour to attain his Genus, so that he may not remain far apart from his kindred souls; because perdition is a static condition. We know that a Body has no relation to the Spirit (Basīt); and the Man's Self is in reality a Spirit; incapable of subdivision and the Body is capable of subdivision. Body is thus defined: it has length, breadth and thickness and other incidences, such as lines and surfaces which can be laid thereon. The Spirit (Basīt) is thus defined: it has no dimensions such as length, breadth, etc.; it understands all things, and is capable of recording impressions of knowledge; it is neither a point, nor a line, nor a body, nor has any other incidences, such as the why, the how, the whose, the where the when, shape, qualities, activity or passivity. On the other hand, Man's soul is an Essence, self-existing. The proof of the fact that Man's soul is an Essence is this: it records the impressions of knowledge. Now, knowledge is incidental and an incidental cannot stand on an incidental but on its Essence. Really the Man's soul is not a bodily Essence, because body is divisible and the soul understands the divisibility, and is not divisible; what is divisible cannot understand the divisibility. Hence this Essence (Man's self) should be kept pure from the qualities of the bodies. By qualities is meant the consequence of proximity which it has with the bodies—a proximity which it should not have lest it lead to its destruction. (God knows!).

[Second Section] (3). Know that the Intellect ('Aql) is busy with its Mind (Nafs) in understanding the objects and the Mind needs the Intellect for knowing reality of the objects. The benefit and advantage is attached to the Mind. Hence the Mind always resembles the Intellect. The proof of this is that no Mind ever envies the Intellect at the time of understanding, because the Mind counts its ability more than that of the Intellect at the time of understanding. But its ability to understand is only discursive and by no means definite. This semblance of the Mind with the Intellect is in its very nature, the effects of it become evident in the feelings (Mahsusat). Hence the Mind, which is higher than the body, is not without egotism, and whatever be the condition of the body, it is not free from egotism. Body is composed of Matter and Form, and has conditions. Its condition is given by the Mind in the Universals, and in the individuals by the bodily cause to its effect. And what we say here about the details requires explanation. Thus the Cosmic Mind imparts mind to the individual, Ether imparts Elements to the creation and to Man who is a part of the creation. Conditions in Man's constitution are given by the Mind, the Ether, the Elements and creations. Hence the egotism of Man is greater than of those other things.

(4). Know that the ancients have not pondered on the individuals because the individuals come and go and are transitory. The ancients have dealt with the Universals because the Universals remain, and knowledge founded on them is durable. Whoever knows the Universals will necessarily understand the individuals.

Know now the Universals are of five kinds; Genus (Jins), Species (Nou'), Kind (Fasl) Special quality (Khāsa), Incidence ('Arḍ). Each of these is a universal by itself. Thus Genus is a universal comprising many universals. Thus Body and Essence (Jowhar) are each itself universal comprising many individuals. Essence (Jowhar) is a word implying all knowable objects, save Godhood. Essence is of two kinds, with a name and nameless. That which has a name is of two kinds, animate and inanimate. The animate is of two kinds, the rational and irrational. Now the Genus is found, i.e., the rational animal, because to its species there is no other superior. The other species are intermediate. The intermediate species are only kinds to the species above them and Genus to the kinds below them. When they are "kinds," they are parts of their universal. Hence each of them is a whole as well as a part. Thus, Essence is a Genus to its species and its species are Animate and Inanimate, the Animate is a Genus to its species and its species are Rational and Irrational. Now Essence is a Universal, so that every Genus that exists is its part. The "Kind" is a universal which has the power of separating a Genus from Genus and Species from Species. Thus, Animal is a word comprising Rational and Irrational. Rational and Irrational are the kinds by which Man is distinguished, because it is rationality which can distinguish a Man from other animals. Similarly for other things.

Special Quality is an incidence which cannot be separated from its Essence either by imagination or by reason; for example wetness from water, heat from fire, dryness from earth, fineness from air and so on.

The Incidences ('Arḍ) are generally of nine kinds, Quality, Quantity, Relation, Place, Time, Position, Propriety, Activity, and Passivity.

(5). The actions which emanate from Man are of two kinds: the Present (Ḥal), and the Habitual (Malika'). The present action (Ḥal) means the movement or repose produced in a man as result of a change or emotion or desire. These are of two kinds: agreeable and disagreeable; for example, anger and malice are both disagreeable; affection and love are both agreeable. Whatever comes and soon disappears is present action (Ḥal), whatever remains for a longer time is habitual (Malika'). Thus one reads a book and remembers it for a long time. These agreeable and disagreeable qualities remain in Man. But when they disappear, they become also incidental and have no relation to the nobility of Man.....

We should know that whatever one can think of, is one of the three kinds: Necessary, Possible and Impossible. The necessary thing is one that cannot but exist. The Possible is that which may or may not exist..... "Non-existent" is merely a word in the imagination of folk. Whatever exists necessarily is, the Lord: His name be praised! Whatever has a possible existence are all beings (excepting the Lord). The Impossible cannot exist at all!

(6). Know that Existences are of two kinds: the necessary and that is Lord Almighty, and other possible existences, i.e., the Essence which is free from all incidents and the Incidental which is never free from incidents. The Essence is of two kinds. Body and non-Body. Some bodies are homogeneous in formation. Their effects are different, some are hot, some cold, some vegetable, some mineral. The effects of heterogeneous bodies are mixed.....

Philosophers call these effects as Properties. Thus a magnet attracts iron, and fire has the power of producing hundred thousand sparks from a single spark without diminution in the fire. Fire is visible and consequently has lost its wonder, otherwise the atom of fire is the most wonderful of all. Anyhow, a man does not think fire wonderful and knows that fire has the power of ignition and heat, similarly, he should think that in the Body of the Magnet there is a power which acts in attracting iron. Whoever knows this, will solve many cases.

Translation of this portion has already been given in Section VIII of this Introduction (p. XLVII).

(f) 'Omar Khayyām's Arabic verses.

We have only five Qita's by 'Omar which are quoted by Qiftī and Shahrzurī.

(1)

تدين لي الدنيا بل السبعة العلي	بل الافق الاعلى اذا جاش خاطرى
أصوم عن الفحشاء جهراً وخفية	عفاً وأطاري بتقديس فاطرى
وكم عصبة ضلت عن الحق فاهتدت	بطرق الهدى من فيضى ألتقاطر
فان صراطى المستقيم معابر	ضبن على وادى العدى كالتقاطر

(1)

I traverse through the world to even seven spheres,
I reach the Plane Supreme thus when my heart expands.
I fast from acts unchaste, refrain from evil thought,
And end my fast in peace on purest holy fare.
Many are lost in World, some few are saved by Faith,
Who in the Path are guided by ever helping Grace.
So by this Royal Road I march to reach my Goal,
I pass over this Bridge through Darkest Wilderness.

اذا قنعت نفسى بميسور بلغة	يحصليها بالكد كفى وساعدى
أمنت تصاريف الحوادث كلها	فكن يا زمانى موعدى او موعدى
رسى اتخذت الشعر بين منازل	وفوق مناط الفرقدين مصاعدى
اليس قضى الافلاك في دورها بان	تعيد الى نحس جميع المساعدى
فيا نفس صبراً في مقيلك انما	تخر ذراها بانقضاض القواعد
متى ما دنت دنياك كانت مصيبة	فواعجباً من ذالقريب المباعدى
اذا كان محصول الحياة منية	فسيان حالا كل ساع وقاعد

With mind contented, plenty comes in train,
To acquire which my hands I have to strain.

In peace I watch this ever whirling wheel,
What matters Times may bring me loss or gain?

Not East or West in centre firm I stand,
A guiding star in top of all remain,

His finger moveth all the skies and stars,
From Zenith down to Nadir they are lain.

So keep Thy balance, firmly stand, O soul!
If pillar slips this roof will crash in plain.

Why should ye pine for world and fall in woe?
From nearest bliss why wander wide in vain?

If by desires ye gain the gist of life,
Then race or rest: ye choose between the twain.

(۳)

زجیت دهرًا طویلاً فی التماسِ اِخٍ یرعی و دادی اذا ذوخلۃِ خانا

فکم آلفت و کم آخیت غیر اِخٍ و کم تبدلت بالِاِخوانِ اِخوانا

و قلت للنفس لآ عز مطلبها باقہ لا تالہی ما عشت انسانا

(3)

For long I sought in world, perchance a friend to meet;
I treated them so kindly but they are wont to cheat;

So many friends I made but they have turned my foes,
For kith and kin of world—each other they would eat.

So when my mind is eager for friends I tell it so:
By God! so long thou be to none thou go to greet!

(۴)

سبقت العالمین الی المعالی بصائب فکره و علو همته
فلاح بحکمتی نور الهدی فی لیل للضلالة مدلهمه
یرید الجاحدون لیطفئوها ویأبی الله إلا ان یتمه

(4)

I soar above both Worlds to Highest Realm
With lofty courage and with sober thought.
The Guiding Light of Wisdom dawns in me,
The Darkness and Delusion are dispelled.
The foe may try to intercept the Light,
But Lord maintains it by His Grace Divine.

(۵)

العقل یعجب فی تصرفه من علی الایام یتکل
فنوالها کالریح منقلب ونعیمها کالظل منقل

(5)

The Wise remaineth occupied with Him,
And stays sedate in peace thro' all the days.
Desires for him are only rolling winds,
And joys are phantoms moving further far.

(g) Qita' of 'Omar Khayyām on World and Life.

The following Qita' found ascribed to 'Omar in various anthologies summarises 'Omar's views on World and Life.

دوش با عقل در سخن بودم	کشف شد بردم مثالے چند
گفتم ای مایه همه دانش	دارم الحق بتو سوالے چند

Qita' of 'Omar Khayyām on World and Life.

A talk I had with Wisdom once,
And learnt some dainty metaphors.

I said "Thou store of all we know—
I ask some questions—tell me terse."

Ques. What is the life we live in world?

Ans. A dream or phantom, fancy worse!

Ques. Then what we gain or gather here?

Ans. A Plague or Sores with none to nurse!

Ques. So when this nag of lust is tamed?

Ans. When curbed by whip and constant spurs!

Ques. And what of doctrines discussed here?

Ans. Some empty jargons they rehearse!

Ques. And what you think of Tyrants here?

Ans. As wolves or hounds Death—compassors!

Ques. And how are wealthy here engaged?

Ans. The greedy storing rot in purse!

Ques. Does wedlock bring them bliss of life?

Ans. A week of joy and rest a curse!

Ques. But what you think of world so fine?

Ans. A hag in rouge and fashion firs!

Ques. So what is all now 'Omar said?

Ans. Precepts as meet some cases Sirs!

XIV.

THE QUATRAIN, THE TARĀNA', DO BAITI AND KHAṢI.

The practice of expressing tender feelings, mystic experiences and philosophical ideas in a quatrain, a stanza of four lines, is as old as the Vedas where a series of connected quatrains form a Sūkta.

A collection of a hundred quatrains is called in Sanskrit a Ṣataka, such as the famous Nīti, Vairagya and Sringār Ṣatakas of Bhatrihari [First Century B.C.]. The Arabic Verse, the "bait" or "tent", which primarily consisted of two parts like the flaps of a tent, has also quatrains. The following two from 'Alī Murtuḍā, the first Saint-Poet of Islām, the main fount of Islāmic Ṣūfism, unveil his Expansive heart.

ابن ابن نفسى وكنيتى ادبى من عجم كنت او من العرب
ان الفتى ان يقول ها نا ذا ليس الفتى ان يقول كان ابى

I'm born of Soul, in Culture chose a name,
What matters Merv or Mecca whence I came;
For he is brave who says: "Lo! here I stand"
Not he who prates about his father's fame!

لقد صار قلبي قابل كل صورت فرعاً لغزلان و ديراً لرحبان
ادين بدين الحب انى توجه ركائب ارسلت دينى وايمانى

My heart embraces all creation great and small,
'Tis pasture for the deer and Mystic Temple Hall;
I chose the path of Love, and even as I glance,
Men welcome this my creed and follow at my call!

Though at first free, as in Sanskrit, from restriction to any particular metre, the Persian quatrain was confined about a century before 'Omar, to the Hejaz metre and called Tarāna', a Song. Each line of the Tarāna' commences and ends with a spondee, has twenty "Mātrās" and falls into 24 varieties. The Persian and Sanskrit have remained close in origin and geographic domicile, and thus naturally the Tarāna' resembles in name, metre and use, with the Āryā Gītī, Āryan Song of Sanskrit.

The Rhyme.

In the early stages all four lines of the Tarāna rhymed, so it was called a “Dō baitī.” The form without rhyme in the third line had become common in the time of Rashīd ud Dīn Waṭwāṭ (d.1182), who in his work on Persian Prosody Ḥadāiq us Saḥar defines it as follows:—“A Dō Baitī without a rhyme in the third line is called a Khaṣṭī (Castated).”

In a paper read at The All India Oriental Conference held at Baroda in (1935), Dr. Muḥammad Iqbāl showed that the term Rubāʿī was applied to the Tarāna after the rhyme in the third line had been completely discarded. In his opinion the rhyme from the third line may have been dropped in the fifth century Hijri, and “in a genuine collection of ‘Omar Khayyām’s quatrains the four-rhymers should outnumber the three-rhymers.”

I feel that we are not justified in drawing the above conclusion because the following ‘Omarian quatrains which indicate the poet’s age at the time of their composition are all three-rhymers.

After 30th year: 102: X. 35: Bad nāmī.

After about 40th year: 485: IX. 30: Fardā.

After 50th year: 893: IX. 131: Andāzaʿi.

It is thus clear that in ‘Omar’s time, if not earlier, the four-rhymers were getting out of fashion, and that he preferred the three-rhymer quatrain. The fact however remains that the available MSS. record many four-rhymers as ‘Omarian. Thus more than 25% of the total “known” ‘Omarian quatrains are four rhymers. Their index numbers are given below. The quatrains which are vagrant are prefixed with letter V.

Index Nos.—14, 17, V19, 21, V28, V36, V41, 43, V49, 58, 62, 71, 73, 74, V77a, 84, 86, 98, 107, V118a, 121, 125, V130, V131, 133, 134, V144, 145, V147, V153 155, 157, 159, 161, 162, 169, V178, 181, V185, 186, 221, V223, V224a, 228, 232, V242, 242a, 247a, 250, V254, 257, V259, 263, 270, 271, 275, 278a, V279, 286, 288, V289, V292, 296, V298, 306, 317, V322, 325, 355, 363 V366, V370, V375, V381, V385, V387, V397, V406, 417, 419, V442, V448, 457, 461, V465, V475, V477, V481, 484, 486, V487, V488, V493, 496, V502, 514, 520, 526, V538, V538a, 544, V546, 571, V577, 586, 586b, 595, V596, 601, 605, 610, V614, V617, V618, V620, V623, 624, 625, 626, 630, 636, V641, V643, V644a, 645, 648, 650, 651, V651, 660, 664, V671, 682, V685, 687, V688, V689, V695, 697, 709, V711, V714, V718, 733, 744, 747, 748, V750, 753, 755, 757, V758, 762, 771, V777, 784, V785, 786, 787, 788, 796, V800, V812, 820, V836, 839, 844, V848, V851, 854a, V852, V853, V857, 858, 859, 863, 865, 866, V875, 878, 878a, 890, 892, 898, 905, 909, V912a, 917, 921, V924b, 944a, V946, 951, 953, V965, 978, 983, 995, V998, V999, 1003, 1005, V1008, 1012, V1018a, 1020a, V1028, 1030, V1033, V1041, 1042, V1046, 1048, 1052, 1053, 1055, 1057, 1058, 1064.

It is also probable that some 'Omarian quatrains which were originally four rhymers were made three rhymers subsequently.

The following are instances:—

(a) Qn. No. 153: V. 15 as quoted by Najmud Dīn Rāzī in his Mirṣād ul 'Ibād had the third line rhyming with other lines thus:—

Gar nēk āyad shikastan az bahr-i chirāst but we find it in MS. Hy. as follows:

Gar nēk āyad shikastan az bahr-i chi' būd.

(b) Qn. No. 131: VII. 53 must have had third lines rhyming with the others as follows:

Īn yak nufasē ki dar tanat 'āriyatist.

The reading was changed 'āriyat ast.

(c) Qn. No. 442: V. 39 must have had the third line rhyming with the others thus:—

Tā charkh-i athīr u akhtarān khwāhad bud.

khwāhad bud was changed to sair kunad.

As the poets who came after 'Omar usually wrote three-rhymers only, prima facie a four-rhymer in the collections of 'Omarian quatrains cannot be rightly alleged to belong to any later poet.

xv.

'OMAR KHAYYAM'S QUATRAINS SUNG IN ŠUFI CIRCLES.

Sages who soar higher than the common-place are welcomed by the select few. Such was the case with 'Omar. His quatrains banned by the common folk of his time, as Qifti says, for being "a biting criticism on Shara' and a jumble of entanglements" were yet welcomed by Šufis who "understood the purport of his poems and interpreted it to be in accordance with their own doctrines and discoursed on them in their Open assemblies and Inner circles." Thus says 'Omar in Qn. No. 446: X. 42.

رندان مجرد که ملوک زمند در میکدها بنام من باده زند

I desired to verify the above statement of Qifti. Ḥakīm Sanāi (d. 1151) an admitted Šufī, a disciple of Abū Ḥāmid Nāṣir ud Dīn Muḥammad bin Maṣṣūr (under whom according to Tabrizī, 'Omar had received his early education) called my attention. Sanāi in one ghazal says:—

[p. 75 Bombay Edition]:—

پسرا خیز تا صبح کنیم راح را همنشین روح کنیم
باده نوشیم بے ریا از آنک با ریا توبه نصوح کنیم
حال با شعر فرنی آریم رقص بر شعر بوالفتوح کنیم

The last verse means:—

With Farrukhī's poems we go in trance

With Bul Futūḥ's poems we lead the dance!

Bul Futūḥ or Abu'l Fataḥ is a clear reference to 'Omar Khayyām, the only one poet of that Kunniyat before Sanāi.

It is thus clear that 'Omar's quatrains were sung in Šufi circles during Sanāi's time. There is no doubt that Sanāi was an admirer of 'Omar and the above ghazal confirms Qifti's statement.

In the following ghazal (p.23 Bombay Edition) Sanāi explains the terms Bāda' (Wine), Muṭrib (Songster) and Sāqī (Cup-bearer).

ای مستان خیزید که هنگام صبح است
 هردم که درین حال زنی دِام فتوح است
 يك مطربتان عقل و دگر مطرب عشق است
 يك ساقیتان چور و دگر ساقی روج است
 باده که درین وقت زنی باده مباح است
 توبه که درین وقت کئی توبه نصوح است
 طوفان غم اراز پس و از راست برآید
 در باده گریزید که آن کشتی نوح است

Arise O Mystics! this is matin time,
 Each breath now lifts us up to conquest height.
 One Songstress is Wisdom the other Songster Love,
 One Cup-bearer is Fairy, the other is Soul,
 The "Wine" you drink now is Wine allowed,
 The Vow you make now is Morning Vow,
 If the Tempest of grief overtakes you all around
 Take Shelter under Word your Noah's Arc.

The last verse echoes the 'Omarian Qn. No. 264: IX, 101.

طوفان غم اردر آید از پیش و لست
 در باده گریز کشتی نوح تو اوست

In the following ghazal (p.28 Bombay Edition) Sanāi praises "Kharābāt" and "Mai Khāna."

هر کو بخرابات مرا راه نماید
 زنگ غم و تیار زجانم بزدايد
 هر کو بکشايد در میخانه بمن بر
 ایزد در فردوس برو بر بکشايد
 گویند سنائی را شود شرم به یکبار
 رفتن بخرابات ورا شرم نیاید
 دایم بخرابات مرا رفتن از آنست
 کلا بخرابات مرا دل نکشايد

The man who directs me in Tavern way
 Removes my rusting Grief and Pangs of life.
 To him who admits me in Mystic Shrine
 The Lord will open gates of Paradise.
 Thus whisper folk: "O fie on Sanāi!
 Has he no shame to wend in Tavern way?"
 I will to Tavern ever go because
 My heart expandeth there and there alone!

It will be evident from the first two verses above that none could go to the "Kharābāt", the Tavern, unless the manners and etiquettes prevailing there were first shown to him; and none could enter the "Maikhāna", the Mystic Shrine unless the door was opened to him and he was initiated. The "Kharābāt" was thus the open assembly and the "Maikhāna", the "Inner Circle" of the Ṣufis, as distinguished by Qiftī. The very first 'Omarian quatrain of MSS. arranged according to rhymes, (Qn. No. 1: IX. 1) draws this distinction clearly.

آمد سحرے ندا ز میخانه ما
 کای رند خرابات دیوانه ما

THE KEEPER'S call at dawn—I heard "Awake!
 Thou wreck of Tavern pining for our sake—

The poet was called into the "Maikhāna," i.e., "The Mystic Shrine," after he had pined for some time in the "Kharābāt", i.e., "The Tavern."

Here again 'Omar says:—516: IX. 6.

مارا ز خرابات خراب آوردند در میکده بردند و شراب آوردند
 گفتم که شراب را کجا بے باید دلا همه بردند و کباب آوردند

They brought me first from Tavern, stark and still,
 To Mystic Shrine, and then a cup they fill;
 With wine in hand I call for broiled meat:—
 To serve me meet—my heart they first would kill.

As regards the Tavern etiquette 'Omar says:—Qn. 183.
 VIII. 2.

رقم بخرابات بایمان درست ز نار مغان را بیمان بستم چست
 شاگرد خرابات ز بدنامی من رخم بدر افکند و خرابات بستم

I went to Tavern-door as some divine,
 With flowing gown and cowl and girdled fine;
 The Warden scanned my face, and with disgust,
 He threw my baggage out, and washed the shrine.

Qn. 1059: VIII. 2.

هان تا بخرابات بجازی نائی . تا کار قلندرئ نیبازی نائی
 این ده ده مردان سرافرازانست زهار درین کوچه بیازی نائی

Beware ye dally not with Love in vain,
 Till ye could be its victims and be slain;
 This path's reserved for lofty hearted souls,
 Beware ye trespass not this risky lane!

Qn. 998: VIII. 11.

جز راه قلندر بخرابات مپوے جز بادہ و جز سماع و جز یار مجوی
 بر کف قدح بادہ و بردوش سبوے می نوش کن ای نگار بیہودہ مگوی

Step not in Tavern save thro' Mystic Gate,
 And Seek for none but love and Song and Mate;
 In hand His cup, on shoulder water-pot,
 Just love and mind your own and never prate.

In the "Kharābāt" or open assembly there was music.
 The "Wine" of the Inner Circle, Maikhāna is defined by 'Omar as follows:—Qn. 171: IX. 3.

در میکده ذکر بادہ چل اسم من ست رندی و پرستیدن می قسم من است
 من جان جہانم اندرین دیر مغان این صورت کون جملگی جسم من است

In Mystic Shrine, the Name is styled as Wine,
 To love and be in trance I most incline;

I am the soul of world in Holy shrine,
 The world is body for my soul Divine.

The ideas in 'Omarian quatrains are found in Sanāī's odes, expressed almost in the same words, for example:—

1. (a) Sanāī p. 10.

هرآن روزے کہ باشم در خرابات همی نالم چو موسی در مناجات

The readers will easily recognise 'Omārian ideas in the following verses of Sanāi.

Sanāi p. 71.

خیز تا می خوریم و غم نخوریم انده روز نامده نخوریم

Sanāi p. 85.

چند روزی درین جهان بودم بر سر خالک و بلاذیمودم
بدویدم بسے و دیدم رنج يك شب از آرزویش نغفودم
چو دانستم که گردانست عالم نیامد مرد را بنیاد محکم
پس آن بهتر که تا دروے مقیم شبان و روز باشم مست و خرم

Here the readers will recognise a beautiful parody of the famous 'Omārian Qn. No. 899: XI. 59 Ai Sōkhta'.

ای ز آب زندگانی آتشی افروخته
واندر او ایمان و کفر عاشقان را سوخته
ای ز آب روے خویش اندر دیرستان عشق
تختہ عمر سنائی شسته از آموخته

Nizāmī Ganjawi [d. 596 H.] has described The "Kharā-bāt" thus:—

دوش رفتم بخرابات و مرا راه نبود
میزدم ناله و فریاد کس از من نشنود
یا نه بد هیچ کس از باده فروشان بیدار
یا که من هیچ کسم هیچ کسم در نکشود
بایسے از شب بگذشت بیشتر که یا کمتر
رندے از غره برون کرد سرو رخ بنمود
گفت خیر است درین وقت کرا میخواهی
بے محل آمدنت بر در ما بهر چه بود
گفتمش در بکشا گفت برو هرزه مگوی
کاندرین وقت کسے بهر کسے در نکشود
این نه مسجد که بهر لحظه درش بکشایند
که تو دیر آئی و اندر صف پیش استی زود

این خرابات مغان ست درو رندانند
 شاهد و شمع و شراب و شکر و نای و سرود
 هر چه در جمله آفاق درین جا حاضر
 مومنین و برهمن و گبر و نصارا و یهود
 گر تو بخواهی که دم از صحبت ایشان بزنی
 خاک پا می همه شو تا که بیابی مقصود
 ای نظامی چه زنی حلقه این در شب و روز
 که ازین آتش گردان تونه بینی جز دود

Last night I sought the "Tavern" but had no guide to lead,
 I cried and shouted loud but none would care or heed.
 Perhaps the "Vintners" there had fallen deep in sleep,
 Perhaps my name and fame none happened there to read.
 So thus I moaned for hours as hours past at night,
 A "Reveller" peeped from window—I got a chance to plead!
 Said he: "All hail! O Sir whom have you come to seek?
 To call untimely here, are you in urgent need?"
 Said I: "Now open door!" Said he: "Silence avaunt!"
 "To admit you at night has any one agreed?"
 "This place is not a mosque which opens at your call,
 "So that you enter late and yet in ranks precede,
 "This is a 'Magi's Tavern' and there are 'Revellers' here
 "With 'Beauty', 'Wine' and 'Lights' with Sweets and Song and Reed,
 "The Muslim, Brahmin, Christian, the Zartusht and the Jew
 "In 'Tavern' you will find the man of every creed.

“ And if you wish to profit with their discourses here,

“ Be dust of feet of all, so then you may succeed.

“ How long would thou Nizāmī be knocking at this door?

“ O fool! This love is fire which gives thee smoke indeed.”

From the above description, it would appear that in Nizāmī Ganjavī's time the term “Kharābāt” was applied to Ṣufī gatherings where seekers after the Truth, without distinction of creeds discoursed. Poems were read and sung.

“Kharābāt” was also termed “Dair-i-Fanā,” the place of annihilation. Thus Ahlī Shīrāzī [d. 942 H. 1535] in the preface to his compilation, called “Ṣāqī Nāma,” says as follows:—

[HSL. MS. No. 817 Dawāwīn].

بوشیده نماند که رندان دیر فنا که صوفیان صومعه قدس اند و صبحی ز دگان
مجلس انس و به یمن و صفائی صحبت ایشان و برکت نگهت انفس این جگر
ریشان غنچه دلها می خسته و عقده کارها می بسته کشادگی یابد
و این طائفه را در یقین عبارت و معین اشعارت بآن رمزیت و این
رمز هم زبان ایشان داند باجمال پرده نشینان معنی- و چون ذکر ساقی می کنند
مراد سالکان راه حقیقت و شریعت و طریقت است و یاد می چون کنند
مقصودشان زلال علم و معرفت است تا بوسیله آن گم شدگان بادیه ضلالت
و تشنه لبان بیابان جهالت بزلال مسرت شریعت و طریقت بکعبه حقیقت
رسند و این درویش میخانه عشق بازی اهل شیرازی غفر الله او را
رباعی چند در مستی محبت این جماعت رونموده بود درین اوراق پریشان جمع
کرده نامش ساقی نامه کرد- امید که به نظر صاحبان ملحوظ و
از نظر عیب جویان محفوظ ماند-

Ahlī Shīrāzī defines the Rindan-i Dair-i Fanā, i.e., Revellers of the Tavern as Ṣūfis, “Ṣāqī” a seeker after Truth, “Wine” the Knowledge. His collection of Ṣāqī Nāma in the above MS. contains 96 quatrains addressed to “Ṣāqī” which are found in the MSS. of ‘Omarian quatrains. Various poets have composed Ṣāqī Nāmas in the form of Mathnawīs [See Bibliography IV item 40], but not in quatrains.

ECHOES IN 'OMARIAN QUATRAINS OF EPIGRAMS AND MAXIMS IN HITOPDESH (PANCHATANTRA) AND BHARTHIHARI'S SHATAKAS.

As noticed above Sanāi took 'Omar's wine-quatrains in a Mystic sense. There are many 'Omarian quatrains, purely philosophic and didactic, free from any scent of "Wine." We have already noticed instances in Nāṣir Khusraw's poems of similarity of thoughts and their mode of expression with 'Omar—a similarity which led us fairly to conclude that some 'Omarian quatrains were influenced by Nāṣir Khusraw's poems. The same similarity is noticeable in pessimistic and didactic maxims in Hitopdesh, (a redaction of Panchtantra), and Bhartrihari's epigrams. Panchtantra versions were, we know, translated in Pehlawī, Persian and Arabic before 'Omar. Bhartrihari is said to have lived in the first century B.C. It is probable that his epigrams, which had a wide currency, might have travelled into Persia. It is noteworthy that line for line ideas and modes of expression are identical. Here are some examples:

1. Hitōpdēsh:

परोऽपि हितवान् बंधुर्बधुरन्यहितः परः ।

अहितो देहजो व्याधिहितमारण्यभेषजम् ॥

'Omar: 115: VII. 17.

بیگانه اگر وفا کند خویش من ست ورخویش جفا کند بداندیش من ست
گر زهر موافقت کند تر یاق ست ورنوش مخالفت کند نیش من ست

A faithful alien as a kin I take,
A faithless kin is foe I would forsake;

A poison acts as nectar, saves our life,
A morsel not digested kills as snake.

2. Hitōpdēsh:

उत्थायोत्थाय बोद्धव्यं महद्भयमुपागतम् ।

मरणव्याधिशोकानां किमद्य निपतिष्यति ॥

'Omar: 159: VII. 1.

در خواب بدم مرا خردمند می گفت کز خواب کسی را گل شادی تشگفت
کار می چه کنی که با اجل باشد جفت برخیز که زیر خاک میباید خفت

In sleep I was—A sage then told me so,
 “In darkness fruit of bliss will never grow ;
 Arise and fight with Death, avoid his blow
 Ere long ye sleep within The Pit below.

3. Hitōpdēsh:

- अणिष्टादिष्टलाभे ऽपि न गतिर्जायते शुभा ।
- यत्रास्ति विषसंसर्गो ऽमृतं तदपि मृत्यवे ॥ •

‘Omar: 283: II. 54.

هشدار که روزگار شورانگیز است این منشین که تیغ دوران تیزست
 در کام تو گر زمانه لوزینه نهد زهار فرومهر که زهر آمیزست

Beware! the Time is raising great uproar ;
 His flourishing sword is sharp besmeared with gore.
 The kissing comfit which a siren gives
 Is soaked in poison, eats you in the core.

4. Hitōpdēsh:

- दुर्नीतिं हि किमस्ति किं सुचरितं किं स्थानलाभे गुणः
- कालो हि व्यसनप्रसारितकरो गृह्णाति दूरादपि ।

‘Omar: 28: IV. 34.

عاقل بچه امید دریں شوم سرا بر دولت او نهد دل از بهر خدا
 هرگاه که خواهد بنشیند از پا گیرد اجلاس دست که بالا بنا

What hope this fatal Inn hath for the wise?
 And why he hankers after annas pies?
 For when he hoards, and thinks of settling down,
 His hand is pulled by death with “Hie arise!”

5. Hitōpdēsh:

- शरीरस्य गुणानां च दूरमत्यंतमंतरम् ।
- शरीरं च क्षणध्वंसि कल्पांतस्थायिनो गुणाः ॥

‘Omar: 45: VII. 14.

روزی که جزای هر صفت خواهد بود قدر تو بقدر معرفت خواهد بود
 در حسن صفت کوش که در روز جزا حشر تو بصورت صفت خواهد بود

The Day your acts and thoughts are weighed indeed,
 They know your worth, and thus you will be fee'd.
 Acquire some merits—be in saintly folds,
 For as your merits even so your meed.

The qualities acquired by Man adhere to his self and always remain.

The same idea is beautifully developed by 'Omar in qns. V. 18 to V. 23.

6. Hitōpdēsh:

धनवानिति हि मदस्ते किं गतविभवो विशदमुपयास्ति ।

करनिहतकंदुकसमाः पातोत्पाता मनुष्याणाम् ॥

'Omar: 499: II. 16.

گرچه غم و رنج من درازی دارد عیش و طرب تو سرفرازی دارد
بر دهر مکن تکیه که دورانِ فلک در پرده هزار گونه بازی دارد

My grief prolongs, I find it nev'r allays,
Your lot is swinging now in higher sways; '
Rely ye not on Time, for under veil,
A thousand tricks he juggles as he plays.

7. Hitōpdēsh:

जन्मनि क्लेशबहुले किं न दुःखमतः परम् । "

इच्छा संपद्यते नास्ति यच्चेच्छा न निवर्तते ॥ . .

'Omar: 21: IV. 36.

زین دهر که بود مدتی منزل ما نامد بجز از بلا و غم حاصل ما
افسوس که حل نگشت یک مشکل ما رفتم و هزار حسرت اندر دل ما

We halt on earth a whilom in our course,
And lo! we gather naught but plague and sores;
Alas! not one in hundred doubts is solved,
We go with heavy hearts and deep remorse.

8. Hitōpdēsh:

The Sanskrit epigram was spoken by a bird on the scene of battle after the Great War ended.

क्व गताः पृथिवीपालाः ससैन्यबलवाहनाः ।

वियोगसाक्षिणी येषां भूमिरद्यापि तिष्ठति ॥

'Omar: 645: IV. 28.

مرغی دیدم نشسته بر باره طوس در پیش نهاده کلاه یکاؤس
با کلاه همی گفت که افسوس افسوس کوبانک حرسها و بکا ناله کوس

I saw a quail amidst the battlefield,
 It nestled safe beneath a broken shield;
 It spake to royal skulls in great disdain:
 "Where is the pomp ye wield, what is the yield?"

9. Hitōpdēsh:

• कायः संनिहितापायः संपदः परमापदाः ।
 समागमाः सापगमाः सर्वमुत्पादि भंगुरम् ॥

'Omar: 284: IV. 46.

هیئات که این جسم مجسم هیچ ست وین دایره وسطیح مخیم هیچ ست
 در یاب که در کشاکش موت و حیات وابسته یك دمیم و آنهم هیچ ست

Alas! this buxom body is but frail,
 This Dome and Candle are a fairy tale;
 When life and death are playing tug-of-war,
 The rope, our breath, would snap at last and fail.

10. Hitōpūēsh:

पंचभिः संस्कृते देहे पंचत्वं च पुनर्गते ।
 स्वां स्वां योनिमनुप्राप्ते धीर का परिदेवना ॥

'Omar: 618: VII. 141.

بودی که نبودت بخور و خواب نیاز کردند نیازمندت این چار انباز
 هر یك بتو آنچه داد بستاند باز تا باز چنان شوی که بودی ز آغاز

Thou wert devoid of waking, hunger, sleep,
 Four el'ments gave their stores for thee to keep;
 But each will wrest from thee what once it gave,
 Denuded thus they cast thee in the deep.

11. Hitōpdēsh:

व्रजन्ति न निवर्तन्ते स्रोतांसि सरितां यथा ।
 आयुरादाय मर्त्यानां तथा रात्र्यहनी सदा ॥

'Omar: 93-a: II. 57.

این یك دوسه روز نوبتِ عمر گذشت بگذشت چنانکه بگذرد باد بدشت

The first, the second, third—they sneak away
 These urchin days of life as wind in play.

12. Hitōpdēsh:

यामेव रात्रिं प्रथमामुपैति गर्भे निवासं नरवीर लोकः ।

ततःप्रभृत्यस्खलितप्रयाणः स प्रत्यहं मृत्युसमीपमेति ॥

‘Omar: 653-a: XII. 30.

بادل گفتم که ای دل کافر کیش از مرگ بیندیش و صلاح آوریش
دل بامن مشتمند حیران می گفت روز می مردم که زادم از مادر خویش

I censured thus my heart: “Thou heathen knave!
Think of the Death, and never misbehave.”

I felt so stupefied with heart's retort:

“When I was born I died and found my grave.”

13. Bhartrihari:

सृजति तावदशेषगुणाकरं पुरुषरत्नमलंकरणं भुवः ।

तदपि तत्क्षणभंगि करोति चेदहह कष्टमपंडिता विधेः ॥

‘Omar: 659: V. 1.

جامیست که عقل آفرین میزندش صد بوسه ز مهر بر جبین میزندش
این کوزه گر دهر چنین جام لطیف میسازد و باز بر زمین میزندش

Such graceful cup! its praise the Wisdom sings,
And thereon all His love and grace He brings;

But then this Potter of the world would make Such graceful cups which soon on ground he flings.

14. Bhartrihari:

यदा किञ्चिज्ज्ञो ऽहं द्विपसममदांधः समभवं

तदा सर्वज्ञो ऽस्मीत्यभवदवलिप्तं मम मनः ।

यदा किञ्चित्किञ्चिद् बुधजनसकाशादवगतं

तदा मूर्खो ऽस्मीति ज्वर इव मदो मे व्यपगतः ॥

‘Omar: 379: IX. 184.

تا بود دلم ز عشق محروم نشد کم بود ز اسرار که مفهوم نشد
اکنون که همی بنگرم از روی خرد معلوم شد که هیچ معلوم نشد

I thought my heart had caught His lovely glow,
I thought His secrets were as what I trow,

But now with wisdom's eyes I scan myself
And see that know I naught for aught I know.

15. Bhartrihari:

यत्रानेकः क्वचिदपि गृहे तत्र तिष्ठत्यथैको
 यत्रार्थकस्तदनु बहवस्तत्र चान्ते न चैकः ।
 इत्थं चेमौ रजनिदिवसौ दोलयन् द्वाविवाक्षौ
 कालः काल्या सह बहुकलः क्रीडति प्राणिशारैः ॥

'Omar: 69: VI. 1.

از هرزه بهر در می باید تاخت بانیک و به زمانه می باید ساخت
 از طلاسک چرخ و لعبتین تقدیر هر نقش که پیدا شود آن باید باخت

From door to corner we should run the course,
 With good or bad of time we bear of course ;
 Where Time and Fate are mates and die is cast—
 Then heads or tails, 'tis we who march perforce !

16. Bhartrihari:

भोगा न भुक्ता वयमेव भुक्ता-
 स्तपो न तप्तं वयमेव तप्ताः ।
 कालौ न यातो वयमेव याता-
 स्तृष्णा न जीर्णा वयमेव जीर्णाः ॥

'Omar: 714: II. 13.

افسوس که بیفائیده فرسوده شدیم وز طلاس سپهر سرنگون سوده شدیم
 درد را و ندامتا که تا چشم زدیم نابوده بکام خویش نابوده شدیم

Alas! without a gain we all are worn,
 And by this Wheel of Time are tossed and torn ;
 Before a wink of time we cease to see,
 Our greed not ended, but we end and mourn.

17. Bhartrihari:

निवृत्ता भोगेच्छा पुरुषबहुमानोऽपि गलितः
 समानाः स्वर्ग्यताः सपदि सुहृदो जीवितसमाः ।
 शनैर्यष्ट्युत्थानं घनतिमिररुद्धे च नयने
 अहो घृष्टः कायस्तदपि मरणापायचकितः ॥

'Omar: 649: IV. 5.

ایام شباب رفت و خیل و حشمش تلخست مرا عیش و لے می چشمش
 این قامتِ همچو تیرِ من گشته کمان زه کرده ام از عصا و خوش می کشمش

My youth has passed and all its pomp in haste,
The grapes are sour and yet I long to taste ;
My stature's bent, Ah ! what a pliant bow,
And chorded by the staff I drag—to waste !

18. Bhartrihari :

प्राप्ताः श्रियः सकलकामदुर्घास्ततः किं
दत्तं पदं शिरसि विद्विषतां ततः किम् ।
सम्मानिताः प्रणयिनो विभवैस्ततः किं

'Omar: 916: VII. 45.

دنیا براد رانده گیر آخر چه وین نامه عمر خوانده گیر آخر چه
گیرم که بکام دل بماندی صد سال صد سال دگر بمانده گیر آخر چه

Suppose ye sway the world, what do ye score?
And what if words rehearse your praises more?

Suppose ye lived in pleasure hundred years
And hundred more, at last what do ye store?

19. Bhartrihari :

यद्वात्रा निजभालपट्टलिखितं स्तोकं महद्वा धनं
तत्प्राप्नोति मरुस्थले ऽपि नितरां मेरौ ततो नाधिकम् ।
तद्धीरो भव वित्तवत्सु कृपणां वृत्तिं वृथा मा कृथाः
कूपे पश्य पयोनिधावपि घटो गृह्णाति तुल्यं जलम् ॥

'Omar: 335: VI. 12.

از رفته قلم هیچ دگر گون نشود یک ذره از آنچه هست افزون نشود
هان تا جگر خویش بنم خون نکنی کز خوردن غم بجز جگر خون نشود

The Fate will not correct what once she writes,
And more than what is doled no grain alights ;
Beware of bleeding heart with sordid cares,
For cares will cast thy heart in wretched plights.

20. Bhartrihari :

भ्रांत्वा देशमनेकदुर्गविषमं प्राप्तं न किञ्चित् फलं
त्यक्त्वा जातिकुलाभिमानमुचितं सेवा कृता निष्फला ।
भुक्तं मानविवर्जितं परगृहेष्वाशंकया काकवत्
तृष्णे जृम्भसि पापकर्मपिशुने नाद्यापि संतुष्यसि ॥

'Omar: 112: IV. 12.

بسیار دویدیم بگرد و رو دشت يك كار من از دور جهان راست نگشت
وز نا خوشی زمانه باری عزم گر خوش بگزشت یکدمی خوش نگذشت

I toured from door to valleys round and round,
The only thing I wanted never found;
And cross with times, if I could seek His grace
'Twas when in woes I felt as ever bound.

The above are only a few instances out of many. I have shown in the preface of my Marāthī translation of 'Omar Khayyām's quatrains, the similarity of thought in Nārada Bhakti Sūtra (Aphorisms on Mysticism) and 'Omarian Mystic quatrains. Space prevents my dealing with this question in detail here. As mysticism is the birthright of humanity, the same thoughts are likely to be revealed to all mystics. But when same thoughts are expressed in the same mode, as in the case of the epigrams of Panchatantra and Bhartrihari there is some reason to infer that 'Omar may have had access to their translations either in Arabic or in Persian literature.

TRANSLATIONS OF 'OMARIAN QUATRAINS.

The allegorical expression of Mystic ideas was no innovation of 'Omar. The Muse served the Mystic Wine to the Ṣūfīs before Bāyazīd Bustāmī. Thus Dārā Shikōh in his "Shaṭṭahāt" a collection of Rare Ṣūfī sayings compiled in 1062 H. [H.S.L. 52/180] quotes Bāyazīd as follows:—

”عارف بری از بدنامی بایزید بسطامی گفته است تخم تاک معرفت در
عهد آدم علیه السلام در زمین کردند و در وقت نوح علیه السلام از زمین
برآوردند - و در زمان ابراهیم علیه السلام بمرتبه گل رسانیدند - و در هنگام
موسی علیه السلام انگور نمودند و در آوان سرور کائنات خلاصه موجودات
محمد مصطفی صلی الله علیه وعلی آله وسلم شراب صفائی کشیدند و رندان این
امت می ناب قدحها نوشیدند و بیخود شدند“

Translation:

“Bā Yazīd Bustāmī, a sage free from any blemish has said:—

The seed of the Vine of Knowledge was sown in earth during the time of Adam, it sprouted in Noah's time, blossomed in Abraham's time, bore grape in the time of Moses and was drawn into Pure Wine in the time of the Leader of both Worlds and the Essence of Being, Muḥammad Muṣṭafā (Peace be on Him, etc!). The Revellers who follow his creed have drunk Pure Wine by ḥars and have lost their Self.”

'Omar adopted the same allegorical expression which prevailed in his time. Some of his quatrains extolled the Kharābāt, and he was nicknamed "Kharābātī," (Taverner). But by "wine" he meant something else and not the "juice of grape," as will be seen from the following quatrain.

Qn. 3: VIII. 137.

از آتش ما دود بجا بود آنجا وز مایه ما سود بجا بود آنجا
آنکس که مرا نام خراباتی کرد در اصل خرابات بجا بود آنجا

No smoke is there of fires we kindle here

No gain is there from goods we bundle here

They call me "Taverner, a Ruin-wreck"

No ruin there is seen; they swindle here.

By tradition his quatrains have been generally treated as Mystic in the East. Thus Raja Makkhanlal of Hyderabad, Deccan, in the preface to his Urdu translation of 330 'Omarian quatrains, done in 1260 H. (1818), [HSL. MS. No. 850-17770] speaks of 'Omar as a Šūfī Saint.

In Europe, Joseph von Hammer Purgstall (1818) gave in German 25 qns., Garain de Tačey (1857) in French 10 qns., Prof. Cowell (1858) in English 30 qns. J. B. Nicolas in his Persian-French edition (Paris 1867) of 464 qns. opined that 'Omar Khayyām's wine should be taken in a mystic sense.

Fitzgerald, who in his first anonymous 75 quatrains (1859) showed 'Omar as a material epicurean, later in the preface to the second edition of 110 qns. (1868), leaves to the readers the option to interpret the quatrains in a mystic or material sense, and was content to believe that "the wine 'Omar celebrates is simply the juice of Grape, he bragged more of it than he drank it." Fitzgerald's last and authorised edition contains 101 quatrains. Haron Allen after a careful study of Fitzgerald's quatrains came to the following conclusion:—

"Out of Fitzgerald's quatrains forty-nine are fairful and beautiful paraphrases of single quatrains to be found in the Ousley or Calcutta MSS. or both. Forty-four are traceable to more than one quatrain, any may be termed composite quatrains. Two are inspired by quatrains found by Fitzgerald only in Nicolas' Text. Two are reflecting the whole spirit of the original poem. Two are traceable exclusively to the influence of Mantiq uṭ Ṭair of Farīd ud Dīn 'Aṭṭār. Two quatrains primarily inspired by 'Omar, were influenced by the odes of Ḥāfiz."

Whinfield, who has given us a Text of 'Omarian quatrains arranged alphabetically in Persian, with their translation in English verse, says in his later book on the same subject [Quatrains of 'Omar Khayyām, London 1920]:—

"In his quatrains we constantly come across recognitions of the limitations of Science, of its inability to fathom the beginning and end of Kosmos. . . . It is absurd to charge 'Omar with Materialism (p. vii) . . . 'Omar's revolt was only against what he regarded as the excrescences and misconceptions of religion. At bottom he was essentially religious (p. xiv) . . . A man who passed a life of study and had mastered all the theology, and the philosophy and Science of the time, could hardly have been the mere sot, which a hasty reading of his bacchanalian effusions might lead one to suppose (p. xv.) Some times he uses language which would imply entire concurrence with the rest of the Şūfī doctrine namely the spiritual intuition, the ecstasy and communion of the Soul with the One. [p. xx.]”

Out of other varying opinions, I quote one more. Richard Le Gallienne, who paraphrased in English verse the quatrains of ‘Omar Khayyām from several literal prose translations and thus composed his “Yellow Rose” from ‘Omar’s wine-scented Rose petals, says, “‘Omar is always ready to curse God with one cup and love Him with the next.” “That ‘Omar some times made use of wine and women as symbols of his mystical philosophy is doubtless true; but that he more often made a simple use of them is happily still more certain (?!), for ‘Omar was, emphatically, a poet who found his ideal in the real.”

Richard Le Gallienne defines “Wine” as follows in his qn. 239:—

“True wine has many meanings more than wine,
True wine will even warn us against wine—
Any intoxication of the Soul,
Yea! or the senses, is the Angel Wine.”

So the question still remained as to in which sense we should interpret “wine” in a particular quatrain.

The diversity of opinions hinges not only on the interpretation of “Wine,” but also on the sequence of quatrains adopted by the translators. A subjectional arrangement was necessary, and was attempted at since 867 H. (1462). Thus Yār Aḥmad Tabrīzī divides his selection into ten sections, but in none of the MSS. of his compilation the sections have been marked except in the case of MS. Sd., which are as follows:—

1. Praise of God and Prayers qns. 1-25.
2. Philosophical questions and objections qns. 26-76.
3. Didactic and, those related therewith qns. 77-133.
4. Contentment under Present condition of World and Times qns. 134-163.
5. Wine and Lyrical qns. 164-334.

6. The seasons and those connected therewith qns. 335-337.
7. Wit and Humour qns. 338-340.
8. Gift quatrains on reading of Rōshnāi Nāma of Nāṣir Khusraw qns. 341-343.
9. Drunkenness and Satires qn. 344-363.
10. Ten stories and occasional qns. 364-373.

Whinfield divides his translation of 395 qns. into 7 sections:—[Quatrains of 'Omar Khayyām London 1920].

I Complaints (1-85); II Sceptical and Rebellious (86-129); III Carpē Diem (130-207); IV Mystical and Religious (208-295); V Love Poems; (296-318); VI Satires (319-344); VII Didactic and Gnostic (345-395).

MS. Hd. arranges 575 qns. into 32 Subjects, MS. Pc. gives Kūza' Nama, and MS. Hz. Sāqī Nama of 'Omarian quatrains compiled by Ahlī Shīrāzī as separate from other quatrains. We cannot ignore the fact that a majority of 'Omarian quatrains are free from any craving for or praise of wine. The best way to understand him is to separate the latter, and classify the whole lot according to the Predicate, the Subject, the Mood and general trend of the quatrain. The task is not easy, but I submit the result of my attempts.

Among quatrains free from any craving for or praise of wine, first there are those addressed to God, which naturally fall into two classes according to the Mood, viz., Praise (chapter I) and Prayers, (chapter XI); Pessimistic Philosophic reflections on the Wheel of Time, (chapter II) Death and Decay (chapter IV), Matter and Form (chapter V) and Fate (chapter VI) fall into separate classes. Injunctions in the Imperative Mood are Didactic for the chastening of the seeker after God (chapter VII). Quatrains which begin with the words "Ānān ki" (Those that) are satires on the people of his time holding certain creeds; quatrains containing the words "Goyand" (They say), "Āi ān ki" (O! you that say), etc., intend to refute certain notions advanced by men of his time; quatrains containing words "Māyēm," and the like are reflexions on poet's experiences; all these fall into the class of Personal and Polemic (chapter X). As regards the quatrains with a craving for or praise of "Wine," quatrain 240 X. 38 gives us a clue that they were sung in three assemblies.

می شاه و حکیم ورنه میباید خورد ورنه نه خورد که دشمن کامی ست

If wine I shun, ill-bred as boor I go,

By drinking oft in world would slander grow ;

A prince or sage or saint should drink his wine; .

If thou be none of three, 'tis 'deadly foe!

We should not forget that 'Omar, in his early years, was a Nadīm to King Malik Shāh. Quātrāin 1034: III. 1 addressed to the King speaks of a garden party on the occasion of 'Īd Festival. Such quatrains, therefore, as speak about the Nowrōz Festival, the 'Īd after the Ramaḍān, and the beauties of the Garden and Spring have been taken to chapter III Youth. Quatrains which seemed to me to pertain to the Open Assemblies and the Inner Circle of the Sūfis and Philosophers have been taken under chapter VIII the Tavern (Kharābāt) and Chapter IX the Mystic Shrine (Maikhāna') respectively. The points of distinction between the two have already been noticed in Section xv above. Under Kharābāt there are many quatrains addressed to the Sāqī, an advanced soul, for 'dispensing "Wine" i.e., a Trance or Initiation or some advice.

The result of the above classification is as follows:—

	No. of qns.
I. Praise of God	59
II. The Wheel of Time	62
III. The Youth (Lyrical)	66
IV. Decay and Death	60
V. The Clay and Cup (Matter and Form) ..	37
VI. The Fate	22
VII. The Chastening	193
VIII. The Kharābāt (Tavern Open Sūfi assembly)	138
IX. The Maikhāna' (Mystic Shrine) ..	186
X. Personal and Polemic	167
XI. Prayers	59
XII. Miscellaneous	47
Total ..	1096

The Miscellaneous Chapter includes quatrains which have so far not appeared in any published text.

'Omar has applied the word "Wine" to various objects. In some places he actually mentions the object. Thus:—

(1) The Wine of Grief Qn. 840: II. 27.

دادم ز جفائے فلک آئینه کو
وز گردش روزگار خس پرودوں
از دیده رخ همچو پیاله پر اشک
وز بنینہ دلے همچو صراحی پر خون
"My eyes are flowing cups for fancy fries
And heart's a jar of blood for what's a lie"

(2) The Wine of Existence Qn. 417: II. 62. °

خیام اگر چه خرگه چرخ کبود
زدخیمه و در بست لب گفت و شنود
چون شکلِ حبابِ باده در جام وجود
ساقی ازل هزار خیام ربود
Khayyām, who pitched his tent on top spheres,
And closed the doors for speech, his lips and ears;
A bubble of Wine was he in Being's cup
Countless Khayyāms Eternal Sāqī clears,

(3) Grape Juice, and Pious Pride, Qn. 866: II. 61.

خمار بیوی آب انگور شدن
به ز آنکه بزهد خویش مغرور شدن
'Tis better we should reel with smell of Wine
Than strut with pious pride and sell His name

(4) The Wine of Life: Qn. 557: IV. 18.

بودند بیک شراب در مجلسِ عمر
دورے دوسہ پیشتر ز مامست شدند
In feast of life they drank the Wine with me
A round or two before me they are done!

(5) The Wine of Ignorance (Jahl) Qn. 962: VII. 109.

ای دل ز شرابِ جہل مستی تا کے
وی نیست شونده لافِ ہستی تا کے
"How long you rave in ignorance, O Mind!"

(6) The Wine of Knowledge (Ma'rifat) Qn. 299: VII. 114.

آنا نکہ شرابِ معرفت نوش کنند
از ہر چہ بجز دوست فراموش کنند
"When He reveals His face to servants' meek,
They forget all and Him alone they seek"

Qn. 214: VIII. 51.

ساقی می معرفت مرا مکرمست ست در مشرب بے معرفت ان معصیتست

(7) The Wine from the Ṣufī Fount Qn. 963: III. 66.

گر پیر و احمدی خودی جام شراب زان حوض که مرتضاش باشد ساقی

“Go after Prophet drink a cup of mead
From Fount dispensed by Murteḍa the Guide.

In Chapter VIII Kharābāt, (The Tavern) there are many quatrains, craving for Wine, addressed to the Sāqī the Dispenser of “Wine,” an advanced Soul or Guide. And Wine is defined as “Pure Wine” (Mai Nāb, Bāda-i-nāb, Sharāb-i nāb), Lucent Wine (Mai la’l, Bāda-i-la’l), often compared to Ruby, Emerald, Pearl.

We must bear one fact in mind, i.e., the “Wine” in the “Kharābāt” was not easily procurable, or procured as if it were a mere variety of the juice of grape. The seeker craved for it from the Ṣāqī, and until he was wholly purged of all his baser self, he was not admitted to the Mai Khāna’. In the Mai Khāna’, the Guide offers the Holy Grace to the seeker and invites him to partake it. Khayyām has defined “Wine” in Qn. 171: IX. 3.

In Mystic Shrine the Name is styled as Wine,
To Love and be in trance I most incline;
I am the Soul of World in Holy Shrine
The world is body for my Soul Divine.

In another place he defines it thus: Qn. 930: IX. 186.

آدم چو صراحی بود و روح جو می قالب چوں نے بود صدای دف و نے
دانی چه بود آدم خاکی خیام فانوس خیالی و چراغے دروے

Now Man’s the Chalice, there the Soul is Wine,
And heart with lute is singing songs divine;
Khayyām! The Man of clay is Chinese lamp,
A flimsy film, through which His Light can shine.

My venerable teacher in the Nizam College, the late Prof. Muḥammad ‘Abdul ‘Alī Wālā, a scholar of great repute used to recite the following quatrain as a key to many ‘Omarian quatrains. 57: IX. 56.

آن لعل گرانها ز کان دگرست وین درِ یگانه را نشان دگرست
اندیشه این و آن خیال من وتست افسانه عشق را زبان دگرست

*That Ruby hails from other heights of old
This pearl unique would other rays unfold*

*Tho' I and thou may guess for this and that
A tale of love in other words is told.*

Thus when 'Omar spoke of "The Ruby" or "The Ruby Wine" or "Wine" he meant Love Divine in many quatrains. See quatrains which follow IX. 56.

In another place qn. 402: IX. 36. 'Omar speaks "Love" as being the "Key" to open the Treasure of Gems of Hidden Secrets.

چون عشق ازل بود مرا انشا کرد بر من ز نخست درس عشق امل کرد
وانگاه قراضه زر قلب مرا مفتاح خزاینه در معنی کرد

*Eternal Love had drawn me first on board,
He taught me first to Love. On Love I pored,
He made my chip of heart a brazen key—
Which prizes open gems from Secret Hoard.*

IX., 36.

In polemic quatrains 'Omar has served his "Wine" to his foes so as to confound them! Such quatrains are cryptic; 'Omar means right while his adversaries may judge him wrong.

14: X. 41.

بر دست یکے تیغ جواب است مرا کز و می همه سال فتح بابست مرا
پیوسته دل خصم کبابست مرا وز کله او جام شراب است مرا

*I wield a Sword, an answer Sharp utmost
With this I conquer all who taunt and boast;*

*A broiling heart my foe has for my meat,
His skull is full of rum—So rum my toast.*

9: X. 43.

ای خواجہ یکے کام روا کن مارا دم درکش و درکار خدا کن مارا
 ماراست رویم لیک تو کج بینی رو چاره دیده کن رها کن مارا

O Rector! Grant a boon I beg of thee:—

Suspend thy speech, let God look after me,

My path is right, but seest thou perverse,

Ah! heal thy eyes, avaunt! and set me free.

760: X. 70.

دنیا چو فناست من بجز فن نکم جز یاد نشاط و می روشن نکم
 گویند خدا ترا ز می توبه دهد او خود ندهد و گردهد من نکم

The world's a cipher—Here's a cipher mine—

I only think of love and lucid Wine,

They say, "May He avert thee from thy Wine,"

He won't—and if He would, then I resign.

"Man na kunam" in the fourth line rightly interpreted means "man yad na kunam," i.e., I will refrain from thinking of love and lucid wine, but an adverse critic is apt to interpret that 'Omar will disobey God's command!

The following quatrain is a rebuke to a person who had perhaps gone drunk in the presence of 'Omar.

1044: X. 123.

گر ز انکه بدست افتد از می دومی می خور تو بهر محفل و هرا نمجی
 کانکس که چنان کرد فراغت دارد از سبلیت چون تو می و دریش چون می

Could you but find a cask of Wine somewhere,

Then drink you may at every public fair,

For he who thus behaves would never care

For whiskers which you rear or beard I wear!

The following is a sample of 'Omar's joke:—

776: X. 100.

گفتم که دگر باده گلگون نخورم می خون رزانت دگر خون نخورم
 پر خردم گفت بجد می گوئی گفتم که مزاح میکنم چون نخورم

I said, "I would not drink red wine again,

'Tis blood of Vine—from murders I refrain"

The Rector said, "You say this by His word!"

I said, "I joked, for ever I abstain!"

The object of translation is to convey the ideas of the original into another language. One may translate, from one language into another, History, Geography, Physics, Chemistry and the like, by retaining the same or adopting a similar terminology. But the translation of works dealing with Religion, Philosophy, Psychology and the like is not so easy. Translation of Poems dealing with mystic experiences is still more difficult. In translating Persian Poetry into English one has to be careful, because the Persian Poetry uses a special terminology which is not in vogue in English. It is incorrect to translate "Mai" and "Bāda" as merely "Wine" and "Whisky" when the Poet does not mean so.

I have attempted to translate the ideas conveyed in the quatrains as closely as possible. It is for the readers to judge how far I have succeeded in my attempts.

XVIII.

WANDERING QUATRAINS OR VAGRANTS: RESEARCHES OF
DR. ZHUKOVSKI, DR. CHRISTENSEN, DR. ROSEN AND
DR. REMPIS.

Dr. Zhukovski: Out of 456 quatrains in the Text of J. B. Nicolas (Paris, 1867), Zhukovski found 82 ascribed elsewhere to other various poets. These he called "wandering quatrains" and surmised that the differences of opinion regarding 'Omar Khayyām are not to be traced to 'Omar himself but to the collection of what we call his quatrains, which is given to us in rare MSS. and numerous oriental and occidental editions [Al Muzaffaria, St. Petersburg, 1897. E. D. Ross, JRAS., 1898].

Dr. Christensen: Some Western Orientalists were inclined to think all such "Wandering quatrains" (which I call "vagrants") as "Spurious." Thus Dr. Christensen says [Critical Studies in the Rubā'iyāt of 'Umar-i Khayyām. KOBENHAVN (1927)]. "In my book 'Researches Sur les Rubā'iyāt de 'Omar Khayyām' [Heidelberg, 1904], I re-examined the question, I added a series of "wandering quatrains to those enumerated by Zhukovski making the number amount to 101, (Note: Later on I have found seven more), I considered it most likely that either all or the greater part of these 'wandering quatrains' were not composed by 'Umar, the copyers being inclined to increase the collection going in the name of that rubā'iyāt 'par excellence' by inserting quatrains taken from everywhere." He further said "Only twelve quatrains, in which the name of the poet is mentioned could be considered as probably genuine, such verses being less liable to wander."

Dr. Fr. Rosen: In the preface to a new text of 'Omar Khayyām's quatrains, Dr. Fr. Rosen has hit it home that a "wandering quatrain" cannot be rejected as spurious because it is equally likely that it may have been wrongly copied into the collection of other poets. Thus two quatrains (76: III. 63, and 525: X. 112) which were found by Zhukovski in the poems of Tālib-i Āmulī (d. 1004 H., 1695) were already recorded as 'Omarian two centuries earlier in MS. BDa.

written in 865 H. (1460); out of 16 quatrains found by Zhukovski as "wandering" in the poems of Ḥāfiẓ only two were found in a Dīwān of Ḥāfiẓ dated 1639, and none at all in a Dīwān dated 1500. Similarly the "wandering quatrains" traced by Zhukovski in the later texts of Rūmī were not found in the earlier texts of that poet. Dr. Fr. Rosen opined that five Arabic Qita's quoted by Qiftī and Shahrzūrī in their notices regarding 'Omar Khayyām and the following 23 quatrains may be taken as the basis for determining 'Omarian Philosophy.

6 qns. with Khayyām's name:

121: X. 77, 150: IV. 60, 151: XI. 58, 152: X. 167,
661: VIII. 138, 687: VI. 22.

2 qns. quoted by Najm ud Dīn Rāzī in Mirṣād ul 'Ibād:

181: II. 1, 153: V. 15.

2 qns. quoted in the Persian version of Shahrzūrī's Tārīkh-i Hukamā:

506: X. 76, 378: VIII. 10.

2 qns. quoted in Firdaus ut Tawarīkh:

276: V. 22, and 669: X. 164.

11 qns. out of 13 quoted by Badr-i Jājarmī in his anthology Mūnis ul Aḥrār.

477: VII. 133, 400: VII. 38, 636: IX. 116, 748: X. 46,
134: III. 33, 977: V. 31, 561: VII. 138, 87-a: II. 7,
611: X. 109, 877: II. 53, 949: VII. 143.

Dr. Christensen: Dr. Christensen took up the question again in his 'Critical Studies in the Rubā'iyāt of 'Umar-i Khayyām,' and devised a test to consider a quatrain as genuine. He selected 16 MSS., conceived them into 18 units according to the arrangement or its want, the readings and the stock of quatrains, and placed them into 5 groups:—

Group A-1.—1: BNa.

„ A-2.—6: BNb., Ra., BDa., BNd(a). CALc. II., BNc.

„ A-3.—1: BNd(b).,

In his opinion "a quatrain is genuine if it is found:

- (1) in at least five texts of Group B or four in case of those rhyming in letters which are wholly or partially, unrepresented in BERa. and MA.,

and

- (2) in two texts of group A-2 plus BNa., or BNd(b). or Rc.; or in one text of group A-2 plus two texts out of BNa., BNd(b).; and Rc. or four texts of group A-2."

In brief he considers a quatrain as genuine if it is found in five or four texts of group B and three or four other texts. Out of 1213 quatrains which he found in the above texts he obtained 121 quatrains which satisfied his conditions, so he says: "By so doing we obtain a collection of 121 quatrains. Of course it is possible and even likely that there are genuine quatrains among those not included in this collection, but a line must be drawn somewhere, and I do not think it safe to go below the indicated minimum. I consider as decidedly spurious all quatrains which occur only in one of our texts, even if they are found in the collection of Nicolas, Whinfield and the Lucknow edition and other modern printed or lithographed texts."

Out of 121 selected by Dr. Christensen we find that 33 per cent. or 40 quatrains given below are vagrants.

The poet and the place of vagrancy in each case is indicated in the concordance of the respective quatrain.: Thus we find that this "mechanical" test as Dr. Christensen terms it, excludes some genuine quatrains but admits a good number of vagrants as genuine.

Dr. C. H. Rempis: Another test is evolved by Dr. C. H. Rempis in his work "Omar Chajjām und Seine Vierzeiler." [Tubingen, 1935]. He assigns marks to each quatrain as it appears in MSS. of various dates.

- | | | |
|----|---|-----------------|
| 1. | 1st century after 'Omar's demise (1122-1220). | 4 marks. |
| 2. | 2nd do (1221-1315). | 3 " |
| 3. | 3rd do (1316-1410). | 2 " |
| 4. | 4th do (1411-1505). | 1 " |
| 5. | 5th do (1506-1600). | $\frac{1}{2}$ " |

After adding the marks each quatrain thus obtains, he takes as genuine a quatrain with $3\frac{1}{2}$ marks or more. Translation of 255 quatrains selected by him appears in the above work. We find that he has relaxed this test in the case of the following 47 quatrains, evidently because he considers them 'Omarian in spirit.

Of the above Nos. 133, 239 and 248 appear in a single MS. and must therefore be treated as "unknown." We further find that the following 94 quatrains or 37 per cent. of this selection are vagrants.

The total number of quatrains which satisfy the above test has been stated to be 704 instead of 255 which had been selected for translation [p. 84 Beiträge zur Khayyām Forschung]. I find that out of these 704 quatrains no less than 257 or 37 per cent. are vagrants. It is thus clear that these tests neither eliminate the vagrants nor reduce their percentage—at best they are arbitrary tests to consider even the vagrants as genuine.

The number of vagrants goes on increasing as we examine the Bayādēs, Anthologies and modern editions of other poets. Zhukovski found 82, Dr. Christensen added 26 more bringing the total to 108. Sayyid Sulaimān Nadwi and other scholars noticed some more. Dr. Rempis in his Beiträge zur Khayyām Forschung records 239 vagrants including those found by previous scholars. I have marked 521 vagrants among the “known” and 235 among the “unknown” quatrains. Others may doubtless find more!

One reason why the ‘Omarian quatrains were mixed with those of other poets is that, being considered par excellence, they were taken as objects of parodies, echoes and replies by subsequent poets. The poet ‘Ālī Rūmī d. 1008 H. (1593), has given (MS. Az.) 53 ‘Omarian quatrains and thereunder parodies composed by him. In the Diwāns of other poets also we may at times find a ‘Omarian quatrain and thereunder its parody by the poet. Thus kulliāt Khāqānī [MSS. SMHL.

No. 55 and 73] has the famous 'Omārian quatrain 292: IV. 45:

Bīngar zi jīhān chi tarf barbastam hēch,
and thereunder Khāqānī's parody:

Hēch ast wajūd u zīndagānī hama' hēch.

Such parodies are liable to be treated as cases of vagrancy. For instance Dr. Rempis in his Beiträge zur Khayyām Forschung (p. 132, item 2) treats as vagrant in Sarmad the 'Omārian quatrain 11: IX. 2:

Bāz ā bāz ā har ānchi hastī bāz ā. .

But Sarmad's quatrain (No. 13, Delhi Edition 1901) runs and is thus a parody of the 'Omārian quatrain. There are thus chances that among the so-called vagrants, which have been reported by scholars, we may, on closer examination, find some parodies or variations of 'Omārian quatrains and not actual vagrants. I have noted in the concordances some instances of parodies and variations of 'Omārian quatrains found in anthologies and Tadhkirās ascribed to other poets by abbreviations: par.==parody, var.==variation.

Bāz ā bāz ā zi fikhri bātil bāz ā.

XIX.

THE SOURCES OF THE QUATRAINS AND THEIR ANALYSIS.

The Hyderabad Edition (Hw.) of 1893 by Muḥammad Faiyyād ud Dīn contains 1030 quatrains, while Dr. Christensen selected in 1927, out of 1213 quatrains he counts in 16 MSS., only, 121 quatrains. After all the number of quatrains in an edition depends upon the editor's sources and choice. As to the sources of the quatrains, we find that there are more MSS. of 'Omarian Quatrains than enlisted in the catalogues of libraries. Ambrose George Potter in his 'Omariana, a Bibliography of 'Omar's Quatrains (London, 1929), has recorded over a hundred items of MSS. and editions. Since then many MSS. were unearthed. Thus in India, I found 26 MSS. in Hyderabad, 3 in Rampur, 2 in Patna, 1 in Lucknow, 1 in Aligarh and 2 in Habibgunj. Several others were found in Stambul by Dr. Rempis who in his book 'Omar Chajjām und Seine Vierzeiler (1935) records 183 items of MSS. and editions. Even these are not all.

In order to ascertain the stock' of well-known 'Omarian quatrains and prepare a double alphabetical index, I examined the important editions.

The published editions of 'Omarian quatrains, which I could acquire, are described in the Bibliographical Appendix III.

The following struck me as independent publications which could be taken as the basis for preparing the nucleus of an Index.

- | | | | |
|-------|-----|--------------------------------------|-----------|
| 1867. | N. | Nicolas, Paris. | 464 qns. |
| 1883. | W. | Whinfield, London. | 500 qns. |
| 1893. | Hw. | Faiyyād ud Dīn, Hyderabad, Dn. | 1030 qns. |
| 1907. | A. | Imād ud Dīn, Gujratī, Amritsar. | 913 qns. |
| 1924. | L. | Lucknow, Nawal Kishore, 7th edition. | 770 qns. |
| 1924. | J. | Jeodat Bey, Stambul. | 576 qns. |
| 1928. | Ra. | Fredic Rosen. | 330 qns. |
| | Rb. | Do | 63 qns. |
| | Rc. | Do | 13 qns. |

1460. BDa. Fac-simile by Haron Allen. 158 qns.

1732. LE. Fac-simile in Life's Echoes. 91 qns.

The quatrains in other editions are included in one or other of the above editions.

Thus the 2nd Lucknow Nawal Kishore edition (1878) of 762 qns. is included in the fifth and later editions. The following are included in the Lucknow Nawal Kishore 7th edition of 770 qns. (marked L): Bombay editions (1890) 755 qns., (save one qn.), (1906) 745 qns., (1928) 736 qns., (1935) 756 qns., Delhi edition (1924) 764 qns., and Lahore edition (1922) 766 qns. The Allahabad edition (1925) 908 qns. follows Amritsar edition (marked A.) (1907) 913 qns. The recent Tehrān editions, viz., Mūsā Khwāwar (1932) 368 qns., Khiyābān Nāsharia (1933) 368 qns., Sa'adat-i Akhwān (1933) 412 qns., Nuzhat-i Sharq (1933), 443 qns. may be considered as abridgements of the text edited by Nicolas (marked N.) (1867) 464 qns. Mūsā Khwāwar adds three new "unknown" qns. one of which is retained in the Allahabad edition by Mahesh Pershad (1933) 366 qns. The Stambul edition by Hussain Dānish (1922) 396 qns., the Damascus edition by Sayyid Aḥmad Ṣāfi Naḥafi (1931) 351 qns. and the Tehrān edition by Ṣādiq Hidāyat (1934) 143 qns. are short selections by the editors.

The quatrains in the above publications were indexed as "Known" quatrains in which class came such quatrains as are witnessed by two or more texts or cited as 'Omārian by a known authority. When the MSS. were taken up for concordance with the indexed quatrains, such quatrains which were recorded in a single MS. were marked with 'x' and taken to the index of "Unknown" quatrains. Both these indexes had to be made elastic. A quatrain at first taken as "unknown" when found later in a second MS. was interpolated into the index of "Known" quatrains.

Statement I (pp. 365-366) gives the analysis of the texts (MSS. and editions) taken up for concordance. These texts have been placed serially in chronological order.

Col. 2 shows the Hijri year as per colophon and in its absence, as can be inferred from the owner's seal or the dates of other books with which the MS. was bound.

Col. 3 gives the Christian year (inferred according to the handwriting when the MS. bore no date).

Col. 4 indicates the notation of MS. adopted in the concordances.

Col. 5 shows the total number of quatrains in the text.

Col. 6 shows the number of repetitions of the same quatrain in the text, either word for word or with slight alterations. In order to obtain a correct idea of the stock of independent quatrains in a text it is necessary to discount such repetitions.

Col. 7 enters the number of "Known" quatrains which have already appeared in an older text.

Col. 8 records the number of quatrains uttered by each text which appear in one or other of later texts.

Col. 9 gives the number of quatrains which are not witnessed by any other text.

Col. 10 indicates the class of the MS.:

D. Single alphabetical or Dīwān,

F. Double alphabetical or Fihrist,

S. Selections or Safīnā made by choice of compiler which do not come into either of the above classes.

The "Known" quatrains fall in rhyming letters as follows:

a. 39, b. 14, t. 295, j. 2, ch. 3, ḥ. 2, kh. 2, d. 833, r. 58, z. 40, s. 13, sh. 58, 'a. 1, f. 2, q. 2, l. 21, m. 147, n. 74, w. 27, h. 65, y. 172: Total 1360.

The "Unknown" quatrains fall in rhyming letters as follows:—

a. 50, b. 8, t. 159, ḥ. 1, kh. 1, d. 241, r. 37, z. 15, s. 11, sh. 13, q. 1, k. 4, g. 4, l. 17, m. 83, n. 64, w. 18, h. 33, y. 93: Total 853.

The index numbers of "Known" and "Unknown" quatrains according to dates when they are first recorded in the texts of statement No. I are given in the statements No. II and III pp. 367-376 and pp. 377-383 respectively.

Col. 2 gives the Christian year of the MS. which first records the quatrains.

Col. 3 the notation of the MS. which utters the quatrain.

Col. 4 the total number of quatrains uttered by each MS. as found in 8 and 9 of statement I in the case of "Known" and "Unknown" quatrains.

Col. 5 gives the index numbers of the "Known" quatrains in statement II and of "Unknown" quatrains in statement III. Quatrains prefixed with letter "v" have been found vagrant in one poet, and those prefixed with letter "w" in more than one poet.

The progressive total of the stock of independent quatrains runs as follows in the various centuries in the texts examined:

	"Known"	"Unknown"
By the end of 786 H. (1384)	751	3
„ 892 H. (1487)	947	114
„ 994 H. (1586)	1236	527
„ 1100 H. (1688)	1281	619
„ 1200 H. (1785)	1319	811
„ (1933)	1358	853
The present edition	1360	853

Sundry 'Cmārian quatrains have been, however, found quoted earlier than the texts in which we find them actually recorded. The following are a few instances.

125: V. 16: Tarkīb—quoted in Ḥāḥan Gushai (1260) found texted in BDa. (1460).

153: V. 15: Dārinda—quoted in Mirṣād ul 'Ibād (1233) found texted in Hy. (1384).

181: II. 1: Dourē ki—quoted in Mirṣād ul 'Ibād (1233) found texted in Rc. (1341).

276: V. 22: Har dharra'—quoted in Tārīkh-i guzīda' (1330) found texted in J. (1926).

302: VII. 135: Ān rā—quoted in Kalīla Damna' (1145) found texted in J. (1926).

882-a: XII. 33: Ai dil—quoted in Qābūs Nāma' (1083) found texted in BMb. (1624).

Similarly the following two quatrains have been texted in this edition.

669: X. 164: Sēr āmadam—quoted in Firdowāt Tawārīkh

1046-a: XII. 47: Gar 'ilm—quoted in Kashkōl Bahāi.

The number of quatrains in a MS. depends firstly upon the discretion of the scribe who intended perhaps to have a certain number only and secondly upon the condition whole or part in which the MS. has now reached us.

Thus MSS. marked S. in statement I are selections of a limited number. The present condition of the MS. when fragment or abridged has been noted there. There are three ways by which we may conceive relationship between the MSS.:

- (a) the arrangement or order in which quatrains appear in the MSS.
- (b) the readings of important quatrains.
- (c) the rare quatrains found in only a few MSS.

Consideration of arrangement has prima facie made the classes, the Alphabetical (D.) the Double Alphabetical (F.) and neither of these, i.e., Selections (S.).

Class D. includes:—

MSS.: Hy., Se., BNd., Pa., MA., Rb., BMa., Wbcd., BDb., BNL., Hk., BMb., BERa., Hl., BMc., Hm., He., Hi., HGb., Hn., Hh., Hr., BMf., LE., Hv., Hc., Bb., Cb., BERb., RPe., Ia., Ib., BNn., ALI., Hp., CALc.

Editions: Hw., A. & L.

Class F. includes:—

MSS.: BDa., Hb., Ba., Pb., Hg., Hf. and Ho.

Editions: N., W. & J.

Class S. includes:—

MSS.: Si., Rc., TK., Ka., Kb., BNf., Wa., Sa., Sb., Ha., Sd., BNh., U., Sc., BERf., BNa., Ra., BNi., Sf., Hz., BNbi., BNbii., BNC., BMd., Hga., LN., Wd., Sg., BNC., Hj., BNk., Ht., Hu., RPa., Hx., Hs., Pc. and Hd.

Edition: Khiyābān-i 'Irfān.

Among MSS. of class D. firstly there are those which contain the quatrain 898: XI. 59 Āi Sōkhta'ī at the end, these MSS. may be considered as older in origin, the earliest of which is Hy. (1384). Secondly there are those which contain the above quatrain with the story of 'Omar's ghost appearing to his mother in the commencement. The earliest of these is Se. (1472).

MS. Hy., the earliest in class D. was first copied by 'Abd ul lāh bin 'Alī al Bussāmī on 1st Dhu'l Q'adā 786 H. (1384), and copied therefrom on 18 Dhilhajj 1171 H. by Ibn Muḥammad Ḥussain Muḥammad Rabī' al Tabrīzī. The first owner of this MS. Rai Vikālatrām Aṣif Jāhī (seal 1199 H.) was Superintendent of the Ports in the service of H.H. the Nizām ul Mulk Bahadur. This collection is 80 years earlier than BDa., which according to the date, Ṣafar 865 H. (1460) is the earliest extant text of class F. MSS. Hb., Pb. and Ba. which bear no date and according to handwriting may be placed in the 10th century Hijrat must have been however compiled two centuries earlier, i.e., before 800 H. because the verses in the rhyme dal have been given in these MSS. separately for dal and dhal [see p. 68 Beiträge of Dr. Rempis]. MSS. Pb. and Ba. are now only fragments and hence have been pooled in statement I with Hb. which also contains a small lacuna.

The earliest MS. of class S. is Si. an anthology named Nuzhat ul Majālis dated 25 Shawwāl 731 H. (1331). Some quatrains from this have been translated into German by Dr. C. H. Rempis in his Omar Chajjam und Seine Vierzeiler (1936).

MSS. Ha., Sd., BNh. and Sc. are of Tabrīzī type, where the compiler desired to arrange the quatrains subsectionally. As noticed above excepting in Sd. the division of subjects is not marked. MSS. Hz., BMd., HGa. and LN. record 'Omarian quatrains in the interspaces of the odes of Ḥāfiz.

MS. Pc. arranges the quatrains alphabetically by their beginning lines. MS. Hd. marks the quatrains into 28 subjects.

It is out of place here to enter into details of the relations of various MSS.

A few observations on this question based on the sequence of some well-known quatrains will be found in Beiträge sur Khayyām Forschung by Dr. Rempis. Of course MSS. in class D. and F. are connected inter se. The MS. in class S. may be conceived into various groups.

The old date of a MS. attaches some importance to it, but "every thing is not good because it is merely old," so says Kālīdās. The short selections are not comprehensive, but merely because of being short, they cannot be passed as careful. We expect that a text should be sufficiently comprehensive and careful. Comprehensiveness can be measured by the number of "Known" quatrains it contains and the carefulness by the absence of the "Unknown" quatrains. Judging by this standard the following may be passed as careful compilations because they contain less than 1 per cent. of Unknown quatrains. MSS.: Hy., Ka., BDa., Ha., Sd., BNh., U., Ra., BERf., Pa., MA., Rb., BNb., Hz., Hb., Pb., Ba., BNk., BNl., Hg., Hk., BMb., Hl., BMC., Hc., Hf., Hh., HGb., Hn., Bb., Ia., Ib., CALc., ALI., Ho., Hd., Bc. and editions Hw., L. and J.

The MSS. wherein the proportion of "Unknown" quatrains exceeds 5 per cent. may be considered as not having been carefully copied, and we may suspect that the scribe has perhaps admitted as 'Omarian quatrains of other poets. These are for example, MSS.: Si., Kb., Sb., Sc., BNa., BMa., BNc., HGa., LN., Hj., BNj., RPb., Hx., BERa., Hi., HS., BMf. and RPe.

From statement I it is evident that MSS. which record poems of more than one poet contain a large proportion of "Unknown" Quatrains:

Anthology Si.	..	8/31	•	26 per cent.
Bayāḍ Kb.	..	35/80		40 "
Anthology BNc.	..	32/75		43 "
„ BNj.	..	32/60		53 "
„ RPb.	..	59/127		45 "
Hāfiẓ Type HGa.	..	91/410		22 "
„ LN.	..	109/413		25 "

The reason is obvious. A Bayāḍ, generally the first step to an anthology, contains gems from many poets. Like stars in the sky, these gems adorn the pages of a Bayāḍ, the lines running in all directions. The quatrains of several poets appear in one page. Even when separate pages are allotted to each poet, the quatrains of one poet may run on the margin of quatrains of other poets. The scribe of the Bayāḍ mentions the authorship in one place, for the first quatrain, and indicates it by words signifying "ibid." or ditto. Such words are generally written in a different ink, gold, crimson or blue. The omission of these details and the careless jumbling of quatrains of various poets on the same page causes confusion to the future scribe of a Bayāḍ or an anthology, who by guess ascribes quatrains of one poet to another. When he is unable to hazard a guess he throws such quatrains into a special chapter named "Lā Adrī" or "Lā 'Ālam." In this chapter he may add odd quatrains which he has heard but not seen in any MS. "Lā Adrī" has been aptly noticed in Tadhkira' Hussaini 1163 H. (1749) as follows:—

"Great Protectors of Gems of Thought Mullā Lā Adrī and Mullā Lā 'Ālam sons of Mullā Farāmōsh, the son of Mullā Sahwī, reside in the Province of Nowhere. Few Bayādes fail to record their verses. Many scholars declare their verses to be composed by some authors, and some poems really composed by other poets are ascribed by scholars to these Mullās. The date of their demise is yet to be proclaimed by the Resurrection Trumpet!"

Such mistakes are liable to occur even now.

(i) The Anthology Berlin OR. (2) 246 (BERb.) was described to contain 380 'Omārian quatrains on fols. 794b to 808b. On examination of the photographs, I find only 196 'Omārian quatrains on fols. 794b to 802b, and 184 qns. by Sahābī on fols. 803a to 808b. The omission in the head-line of fol. 803a of Sahābī's name led to the inclusion of subsequent 184 quatrains under 'Omārian authorship.

(ii) In the Anthology BN. Suppl. Persian 823 (BNb.) the scribe gives the head-line Rūbā'iyāt-i 'Omar Khayyām on fol. 93b and writes 349 quatrains up to fol. 113a. On fol. 114b he gives a second head-line Rubā'iyat-i Ṭayyib (Fine quatrains) and writes 154 more quatrains to fol. 124a which contains also his colophon: "Finished the quatrains in the middle of Jamādī Thānī 934." The incorrect interpretation of the head-line "Fine quatrains" on fol. 114b led to the exclusion of the subsequent 154 quatrains from the 'Omārian authorship in the description given in the catalogue. In statement I, I have shown these two parts as BNbi. and BNbiī.

Similar head-lines may have led the previous scribes to mix these Rubā'iyāt-i Ṭayyib "Fine quatrains" with those of Afḍal Kāshī or other poets. The fact that some 'Omārian quatrains were being mixed with those of other poets seems to have dawned as early as 867 H. (1462), when Yār Aḥmad Tabrizī compiled his Dah Faṣl (Ha.). Such quatrains were called in his days Mouqūfāt or "Public gifts" [see § xi d].

Tadhkirās or Biographies of Authors based on Anthologies and Bayādes contain naturally many vagrants. Thus Dāghastānī Wālā d. 1161 H. (1748) in his Riyāḍ us Sho'arā points out instances of vagrants found by him in other Tadhkirās.

XX.

QUATRAINS..

Instead of devising some rule of thumb—some 'sieve to shift pearls, which in no way discriminates the genuines from the cultured—it seems proper to adopt the more laborious, but less erring, æsthetic method of examining the sense of each quatrain. We have already gained some idea of 'Omarian Philosophy, and his inclination to mysticism from his prose tracts and Qita's reproduced in Section XIII, and also noticed instances of 'Omarian quatrains echoing, often in same words, the ideas found in Nāṣir Khusraw's poems (§ XI d), and in Panchatantra and Bhartrihari (§ XVII). We have also noticed Sanāī's appreciation in the mystic sense of 'Omarian "wine" quatrains. For inclusion in the text, I consider a quatrain as genuine when:—

- (a) it is in accord with 'Omarian philosophy as found in his prose Arabic and Persian Tracts or events of his life;
- (b) it is parallel in thought to
 - (i) Nāṣir Khusraw's poems,
 - (ii) Panchatantra and Hitōpdēsh,
 - (iii) Epigrams of Bhartrihari,
 - (iv) Nārad Bhakti Sūtra;
- (c) it is quoted or commented upon by later poets such as Sanāī;
- (d) its parodies or echoes are found in later poets.

As regards the vagrants in the texted quatrains which are examined in the next section, it is possible, that some quatrains, though 'Omarian in spirit, were composed by others. I think it justifiable to retain in the text such vagrants as are found recorded for 'Omar earlier than for other authors, or four rhymers which are cited for junior poets, and quatrains recorded 'Omarian in numerous manuscripts which are vagrants in some Anthologies and Tadhkirās only.

We are justified in doubting the genuineness of a quatrain recorded in a single MS. by a compiler of unknown scholarship, because such quatrain has not been accepted as 'Omarian by any other compiler of 'Omarian quatrains. I have thus excluded from the main text 853 such quatrains and given their 'first lines in the Index of "Unknown" quatrains with the MSS. wherein they are recorded and the vagrancies if any. I however include in the text and treat as genuine the following eleven quatrains, although they are cited by a single authority because they are either 'Omarian in spirit or accord with the events of his life:

87-a: II. 7, 276: V. 22, 302: VII. 135, 451: X. 75, 561: VII. 138, 669: X. 164, 681: I. 37, 716: I. 48, 785: VI. 6, 1046-a: XII. 47, 1051: VI. 21.

The "Unknown" quatrains comprise quatrains of other well-known poets and parodies and echoes of 'Omarian quatrains by unknown persons inadvertently included by the scribes.

The following are examples of parodies found in the "Unknown" quatrains:—

So long as the parody appears in a single text it falls into the category of "Unknown" and gets automatically excluded. But when other scribes include such parodies into the text they compile, it becomes "Known." The following are examples:—

Out of 1340 "Known" quatrains, 246 quatrains have been excluded from the text because they are either inferior and meaningless or parodies, echoes, replies, etc. These have been marked with a dagger (†) in the Index of Known Quatrains.

It may be of interest to the critical scholar to note how various MSS. are linked by these spurious quatrains.

The MSS. which adopt the variants have been mentioned in the concordances. These as well as the groups of manuscripts which include the spurious quatrains mentioned above, will be of interest to the critical scholar for determining the relations between various manuscripts.

Many MSS. contain copying errors. I avoid recording them and give in the text the best reading of each quatrain supported by the oldest MS. Deducting 246 spurious and 18 obvious variants from the total 1360 known quatrains there remains a balance of 1096 independent quatrains which are given as mentioned above in 12 chapters. The first 11 chapters arranged subsectionally include quatrains which have appeared in one or other of the published texts. Chapter XII includes 47 Miscellaneous quatrains which have remained so far in the MSS. alone. As they appear 'Omarian in spirit I thought it fit to rescue them from oblivion.

XXI.

THE VAGRANCIES EXAMINED.

The number of vagrants so far traced is as follows:—

	Texted quatrains.	†Spurious quatrains.	x' Unknown quatrains.
Total quatrains ..	1,114	246	853
Simple vagrants (V) ..	315	55	211
Complex vagrants (W) ..	135	16	24
Total vagrants ..	450	71	235
		Total ..	756

In dealing with the question of vagrancy it is necessary to know the date when the vagrant quatrain is recorded for 'Omar; this can be found from col. 2 of Stâtements II and III described in Section XIX above.

The names of authors to whom the vagrants are cited, as well as the anthologies, etc., which cite them are noted in the concordances of the quatrains. Statement IV exhibits the names of 143 authors (arranged according to Persian alphabet), and the Index numbers of the vagrant quatrains which are cited to each of them. It will be noticed that in this statement 1001 items, instead of 756, are distributed among the 143 authors because the complex vagrants are shown under each author to whom they are cited. In order that a complex vagrant may be reckoned once only it is prefixed with letter (W) under the author to whom it is cited at the earliest date and shown in a bracket () under the authors to whom it is cited on a later date.

Most of these 143 authors are known in name only. The dates of their demise, in some cases unknown, in some uncertain, are given so far as could be ascertained.

As regards the vagrants among the "Unknown" and the "Spurious" quatrains, the places of vagrancies have been indicated in the Indexes of the Quatrains, so that the critical reader, if so minded, may carry his researches further. The particulars of vagrancies of the texted quatrains are given under the concordances of the quatrains which have been, as mentioned above, arranged subsectionally. As a help to the general reader, 450 vagrants among the texted quatrains have been enlisted in the order of their Index Numbers in Statement No. V. In this list the date of the earliest source recording the quatrain as 'Omārian and the date of the anthology which cites it vagrant for another author are given side by side. The names of the authors have been mentioned by their well-known Takhalluṣ (nom de plume) and sometimes by abbreviations such as KI=Kamāl Isma'il, Afdal=Afdal Kāshī. The places of vagrancies have been indicated in square brackets after the names of the authors. The index number of complex vagrant is prefixed with letter (W) and is shown with the author and place which cites for him first.

The places of vagrancies fall mainly into three categories:—

- (a) Dīwāns and works going in the name of the authors
- (b) Anthologies
- (c) Histories and Biographies.

These, to summarise the result of Statement V, have contributed to vagrancy as follows:—

(a) Dīwāns and compilations in the names of authors.

With regard to the text of Afḍal Kāshī by Sa'id Nafīsī, I find that out of 483 qns. included in that compilation only 7 from Al Mufīd, 2 from Ḥāvidān Nāma' and 6 from Afḍal Kāshī's letters total 15 have an early authority. The remaining quatrains are cited to Afḍal in Anthologies, Tadhkiras and Modern MSS. When the date of the MSS. is not discernible I have assumed the date of the publication of the text as the date of vagrancy.

The quatrains cited in [M. 'I] Mirṣād ul 'Ibād are not necessarily composed by Najmud Dīn Rāzī Dāyā who only quotes them. The fact that 'Omarian quatrains appear in this work proves their oldness. The same remark applies to 'Omarian quatrains appearing in Mukhtār Nāma' which as its name implies is a selection by 'Aṭṭār. At any rate the whole lot as found in the Kulliat of 'Aṭṭār published by Nawal-kishore Press cannot be considered as a composition by Aṭṭār.

We cannot rely absolutely upon the Anthologies and Tadhkiras and modern Diwāns of poets because we find that they have cited such quatrains to authors, which long before the advent of those authors are recorded 'Omarian in earlier MSS. The following are examples:—

Recorded 'Omarian in Hy. (1384) and subsequent MSS.

Thus quatrains cited to other poets in the anthology Si. (1331) and Tadhkiras by 'Awfi and others are recorded as 'Omarian in the early MS. such as Hy. (1384) and supported by scores of later MSS. Such quatrains must be considered as 'Omarian.

Moreover the early MSS. of the Diwāns of well-known poets do not record the 'Omarian Vagrants ascribed to them in later Anthologies and Tadhkiras. This fact as mentioned above in Section xvii has been brought to light by Dr. Rosen with regard to Rūmī and Ḥāfiẓ. I too did not find 'Omarian Vagrants in the Dīwāns of the following poets.

Ṭālib Āmulī: HSL. MS. No. 395 (1680).

Ibn-i Yamīn: HSL. MS. 923.

Athīr Akhiskatī: SMHL. MS. 87. 810 H. (1407).

Awḥad Kirmānī: HSL. MS. 1043 d. (1438).

Ḥāfiẓ: HSL. MS. 508 (1415). SMHL. MS. 87 (1407).

Arzaqī: HSL. 943. wr. 1279 H. .

Saifud Din Isfarangī: HSL. 839.

Īḳāī d. 948 H. (1541): SMHL. No. 170.

Khāqānī: HSL. MS. No. 35 (16th Century).

Sahābī d. 1009 H. (1601): OUL. 52/112.

Salmān Sāwojī: HSL. 1198. wr. 855 H. (1451). SMHS.
MS. 87. wr. 810 H. (1407).

Adīb-i Šābir: HSL. MS. No. 936.

It is evident from the list of vagrants that, leaving out of consideration the quatrains quoted in Miršād ul 'Ibād and Mukhtār nāma' major portions are recorded for 'Omar in regular MSS. long before they are cited for other poets. There are only the few quatrains marked with a starlet (*) which are cited for other poets earlier than for 'Omar. Out of these the following may not be passed as 'Omarian on further consideration.

Obscene: 47: X. 117 Āmad Ramaḍān.

Replies to 'Omarian qns: 347: X. 113 a reply to 525:
X. 112;

and 901: X. 140, a reply to 925a: X. 139.

Found in earlier Dīwāns of Ḥāfiẓ: 403. III. 19, and
938: VIII. 32.

With less MSS. authority: 244-a XII. 13, 458: XI. 30,
594: IV. 4, 616: VIII. 117,
716: I. 48, 758: X. 55.

But whether these quatrains were really composed by the other poets to whom they are cited is still a moot point with which we are not here concerned.

§ XXII. CONCLUSION.

In conclusion I beg to draw the attention of the reader to a few quatrains which indicate 'Omar's bent of mind.

'Omar was a true believer of Islām, thus of God he says:

He is, and nought but Him exists, I know,
 This truth is what creation's book will show;
 When heart acquired perception with His Light,
 Atheistic darkness changed to faithfully glow.

He addresses the Ever-Present Being with great reverence and intense love.

Thou hidest oft that none could see Thy face,
 And oft assumest forms in time and space;
 This glory Thou displayest for Thy self,
 The seer, show, and sight, Thy holy grace.

No heart is here but saddens for Thy sake,
 No sight is here but maddens for Thy sake;
 Thou carest not for either great or small—
 No thought is here but gladdens for Thy sake.

i. 27

Time and Space and the world they make have engaged the attention of men through all ages. Their speculations have brought forth a host of secular sciences. 'Omar's reflections on this subject are neither scientific nor metaphysical. He calls the Charkh-i Falak, the Wheel of Time as a Fanūs-i Khiyālī, an Imaginary Lantern.

Methinks this Wheel at which we gape and stare,
 Is chinese lantern—like we buy at fair;
 The lamp is Sun, and paper-shade the world,
 And we the pictures whirling unaware.

Science fails to solve the mystery of the cosmos.

The Skies rotate, I cannot guess the cause;
 And all I feel is grief, which in me gnaws;
 Surveying all my life, I find myself
 The same unknowing dunce that once I was!

This whirl of time, it simply causes pains,
 As for my heart, my evil ways are banes;
 Ah! worldly lore that winds in labyrinths,
 Ah! wisdom-forging newer iron chains.

II. 15

Time is only a tyrant causing universal change and trouble.

My grief prolongs, I find it nev'r allays,
 Your lot is swinging now in higher sways,
 Rely ye not on Time, for under veil,
 A thousand tricks he juggles as he plays.

II. 16

Ye mount on steeds and brandish steels in fight,
 With all your boasts, in trenches soon alight;
 The tyrant Time will never spare a life,
 He breaks the Dukes by day and Knights by night.

II. 17

As Spheres are rolling woes alone increase,
 They land us just to sink in deeper seas;
 If souls unborn would only know our plight,
 And how we pine, their coming-in will cease.

II. 24

it. 'Omar is at war with the Sphere and wishes to annihilate

Had I but on the skies divine control,
 I'd kick this bluish ball beyond the goal;
 And forthwith furnish better worlds and times,
 Where love will cling to every freeman's soul.

II. 41

But the final solution is that the tyrant Sphere has no real existence, hence we avoid all trouble by being content.

Aye hear me please, my old and dearest friend!
 Think naught of world—it hath no root or end;
 Sit quiet on thy balcony content
 To view how Wheel would play its turn-and-bend.

II. 43

Desire no gain from world, with bliss you trade;
 In good or bad of Times you need not wade;
 Remain sedate, so that the whirling Wheel—
 Would snap itself and blow up days it made.

II. 44

III 'Omar was not blind to the joys which the Spring and New Year festivals brought in youth. The Carpe diem quatrains which were sung probably at the garden parties of Malik Shāh, although lyrical, are essentially pessimistic, and capable of interpretation in the material as well as mystic sense.

Tomorrow's hours are not in our store!
 Tomorrow's cares would make us only sore.
 Why waste a single breath if you be sane?
 For balance of this life you cannot score.

, III. 52

'Omar warns the youth to keep aloof from evil company.

From mean and snappish sots, bereft of sense,
 Aloof you stay, and thus avoid offence;
 At song or talk they wrangle, even fight,
 Excuse your self and seek your exit thence.

III. 59

Thought of Death freed 'Omar from cares of world's affairs. Prince or pauper must all die, what avails the worldly wealth?

Your age is hundred, perhaps more in tale,
 They lift you from this Inn, a helpless bale;
 Be Pharaoh or a pauper with no pail,
 They sell in lots at final clearance sale.

, IV. 7

This rosy garden soon will run to waste,
 And cotton seeds will vie with pearls so chaste;
 Rejoice, this mortar-mill of rolling world
 Will grind our name and fame to finest paste.

IV. 10

It is folly to fight for any domain.

I saw a quail amidst the battlefield,
 It nestled safe beneath a broken shield;
 It spake to royal skulls in great disdain:
 "Where is the pomp ye wield, what is the yield?"

IV. 28

Man cannot realise his ambitions in his short life.

My deeds have brought no gain to please my heart,
 In working weal, my efforts play no part;
 And so I sit and ever weep and moan,
 For late I came but soon I must depart.

IV. 39

Hence he should not waste his life in vain pursuits, but ply his path to reach the Lord.

Depart we must. Why then we crawl or creep?

And slide in quest of vain such abyss deep?

They would not leave us here to rest in peace,

Why then we cease to ply our path, and sleep?

IV. 47

Happy is he who realises his death when still alive, and free is one who is not born.

Two vents may free us from this den of gloom:

We either bear the pangs, or lie in tomb;

Thus glad is he who dies at every breath,

And free that cometh not from mother's womb.

IV. 55

In the beautiful allegory of Clay and Cup 'Omar deals with the philosophical and ethical aspects of Man's body. Man cannot claim as his own the body he impersonates, every atom of his body may be the home of other beings.

Before thou peepest, men and maids untold

Had decked this earth as priceless gems in gold;

Hie quickly, turn as dust in Master's feet,

Thy dust encases thousand lives, behold!

V. 8

The clay of his body may be used for any other purpose (without his previous consent!).

Rejoice! for earth material will remain,

And sky its starry jewels still retain;

The bricks to which thy carcass may be shaped,

Will form the mansion for a gallant swain.

V. 10

He has no choice as to the form to which the clay is shaped.

So when my clay the potters knead and mould,

A hundred wonderous apes they might unfold;

But now I can't be fairer than I seem,

They cast me not as you or I had told.

V. 14

Man cannot take pride on his pedigree in the chain of evolution.

As here in Potters' factories I stand,

I find them moulding clay to wonder-land;

I see what purblind eyes would fail to see,

My father's clay in every potter's hand.

V. 24

The qualities which man acquires cling to him and are not lost, although the matter which composed his body may assume other forms.

That substance which in self a life can cheer,
It may as beast or now as herb appear;
Think not what exists once can ever die—
For attributes to thy own self adhere.

V. 18

While warning the rustic potter against the disrespect to the clay of royal persons 'Omar satires the vanity of worldly power.

Beware, O potter! Listen what I say:
How long you kick and mangle human clay?
And whirl on wheel the Czars' and Kaisars' skulls,
And never fear how they would take it.—They!

V. 25

A man of clay should be meek, humble and kind to his fellow-beings.

In frolic once on stone I dashed a pot,
Alas! such wanton freaks come from a sot;
The pot then told me as if in a trance:
"Like thee I was, like me now find thy lot."

V. 31

The pot and potter, the buyer and seller, and so on, are only names for usage, every object on Earth is earth.

I looked at night in Potter's shop, methought
That pots conferred and some solution sought;
And each enquired of me: "Tell who on earth
Is pot, or potter, who that sold, or bought?"

V. 33

Wonderful is the Divine magic which created human skulls which reveal the world and are full of fancies.

The Potter who the pans of heads has wrought,
Has placed in pans his art and all his thought;
On us he placed a pan which waters world—
A pan inverted, still with fancies fraught.

V. 17

Man should acquire true Knowledge before his dust returns to dust.

Why plan the days and months for work or game?

A day or hundred years in world are same;

Fill in our pans in full before we find,

The pans as empty pots which rustics frame.

V. 36

Worldly desires cause misery: by resignation in God man attains peace of mind.

I wish one way, He wills the other way,

So my desires will surely lead astray;

Since what He wills is wholly for my weal,

Then my desires in woes alone will pay.

VI. 2

O mind! the world is but a mocking sight,

You fancy some delights, and fret in fright;

Resign your self to Him, and pine for Him,

You cannot alter what is black on white.

VI. 11

An honest man, who plies his solemn beat,

Greets all he meets as coming from His seat;

And what we get is right a Royal treat,

And world is blameless, going as is meet.

VI. 18

Ethics are shaped to attain the desired ideal. The materialist ideal of being "Superman" has led many to contemplation and conquest of matter and material world, to suppression and even destruction of Man. 'Omar exhorts Man to realise his soul and not wade in world.

O you who tour to see the World at play,

But ponder not that there's the gloomy day;

A breath you are, reflect and seek your Soul,

For see how Time is sweeping all away.

VII. 3

You came to conquer, Oh! you came to rule!

Then rule your Self and waste no days O fool!

From naught of past you merge in future naught,

So now know your course, then choose your school.

VII. 4

The object of life is to seek the Grace of God.

The man who has in him a grain of wit,

With folded hands is never wont to sit;

He either plies to gain the grace of God,

Or keeps his heart in bliss, and thus is quit.

VII. 8

To receive the Divine Grace man must purify himself. The eye, the ear and the tongue are the most powerful organs which pollute the mind by contact with the world. Man should curb these.

Keep watch on Self—it may deceive, you know,
In world's affairs say neither yes nor no.
To keep your eye and tongue and ears in place
You pawn them all at Master's feet,—and go.

VII. 15

Keep aloof from sensual pleasures.

Why seek for pleasures? Life is windy gale,
Each grain of sand has tons of kings in bale;
This solid-seeming world and life we lead
Are fancies, dreams and spells which fade and fail.

VII. 30

Be content under all passing circumstances.

A fiend or nymph, and friend or foe—will pass;
Disease or health, and weal or woe—will pass;
Rejoice in what awaits for thee to-day—
And even this as cometh so—will pass.

VII. 32

Mind should be kept free from any thoughts of the past or the future.

Let not the future wear you out with care,
Nor let the present vanquish you or scare;
Extort from evil earth your royal share,
Before the world has packed up all her ware.

VII. 34

This whirling dome ye see an evil gnome.
The friends have passed and world's an empty home;
Be sole with soul awhile, forget the past,
And future too. In Ever-Present roam.

VII. 47

Be happy even with pain and poverty and free from greed and lust.

Prepare yourself for sores, this is the balm,
Wail not for pains and so obtain a calm;
And thank the Lord for poverty bestowed,
At last with grace you carry off the palm.

VII. 49

Why should you be a slave of Greed, for sale
Or permit lust to kick you pan and pail?
Set heart ablaze, and sing a flowing song,
And be not lost as dust in wind and gale.

VII. 71

Fail not to discharge your duties. Avoid doing forbidden acts.

Such wrecks you wrought and fie! you bear no shame
For failing duties, playing forbid game!
Suppose the world and all its wealth your own,
You have to quit it all, aye all the same!

VII. 80

Do not hurt.

If you enjoy, as you now seem to own,
To tease a tranquil heart and make it groan,
Bemoan then all your life for loss of wits,
And reap the grief for folly you had sown.

VII. 89

Do not slander.

If you desire to have the best of time,
And that your word be heard through all the clime,
Then slander none, see Lord in every soul,
And sing his Name, acquire a name sublime.

VII. 95

Relieve distress of others.

" When grief unceasing hovers on your mind,
Or all affairs to ruin have inclined,
You should release from distress other hearts,
For thereby surely you will solace find.

VII. 98

Serve saintly souls.

Be meek, that saintly hearts may accept thee,
And serve His presence, by Him chosen be;
One quickened heart excels a hundred shrines,
Why seekest shrines? In heart abideth He.

VII. 106

Be mute, covet not.

Lily and cypress these have won our praise,
But for this fame what are their means and ways?
With hundred hands the cypress would not seize,
Ten tongues the lily keeps, but silent stays.

VII. 113

Avoid renown and show.

He keeps a happy heart who shuns renown,
And shuns' alike the felt or sack or gown;
As Phoenix he will soar to Highest plane,
He won't in worldly ruins hoot and frown.

VII. 117

Go without pride.

O ye who survey world, the phantom fair,
Should know it springs from air to darker air;
Since life is hemmed by nought on either side,
Thus find that ye are nought amid nowhere.

VII. 140

Man should free himself from contamination with the material world.

We come from water, earth and fire and air,
And then to forest dangers we repair;
We suffer when we keep this dusty cloak,
But when we doff it we are Fairest Fair.

VII. 142

Freed from the impurities of greed, lust, pride, envy, jealousy, hatred, fear, hope and the like, soul of Man bears the Divine ensign.

I am the purpose of His work Divine,
The light which causes wisdom's eyes to shine;
The world's a ring which Master's finger holds,
And I the gem embossed with His ensign.

VII. 172

The real Being is the Son of Man,
A truth not held in every human pan;
Yea! drink this wine, 'twill cure your giddy thoughts,
And Lord in His creation you may scan.

VII. 181

Seek the company of sages.

You mix with sages pure and know their styles,
And run away from worthless fools for miles;
Yea drink the poison which a sage would give,
But shun the mead from fools, 'tis full of guiles.

VII. 190

Kharābāt, otherwise called Dār-i-Fanā is the open assembly of Ṣufīs where one is cleansed from his baser self and craves for Divine knowledge and love.

I speak to Thee in Tavern, what I feel,
 In shrines without Thee Lord! I would not kneel;
 Thou art the First Creator, Thou the Last,
 Aye! burn me please, or aye! Thy Grace reveal.

VIII. 1

One cannot enter the Kharābāt with pomp and pride.

I went to Tavern-door as some divine,
 With flowing gown and cowl and girdled fine;
 The Warden scanned my face, and with disgust,
 He threw my baggage out, and washed the shrine.

VIII. 2

Here he pines for Divine love.

The heart which maddens not with Master's spell
 And pineth not for Him, is bloody fell.
 The day you neither think of Lord nor Word
 A worser day you may not find in Hell.

VIII. 8

He craves for Mai Ma'rifat, potion of Divine knowledge.

O Guide! love findeth Thee and Holy Grace,
 Some forget this and fall in sin's embrace;
 Unless we know Thee we are out of count,
 For man was made to know Thee face to face.

VIII. 51

Drunk with Divine knowledge he forgets the Creation and loses his baser self.

Let whole creation drown itself in sea,
 Entranced I sleep—I count it not a flea;
 "Last night they pawned my soul at Tavern here,
 The Master said "Lo what a trust is he!"

VIII. 135

He eagerly solicits admission into the Mai Khāna' Master's Shrine.

How long with eucharists and unctions, Sire?
 Fix me in Master's Shrine till I retire.
 The day I lie beneath the Master's Shrine
 Is my Ascension-day, I most desire.

VIII. 136

And awaits sedately until the Grace calls him into the Shrine.

Khayyām! adore thy wine, remain sedate,
 Or sit with faces fine, remain sedate;
 As in the end the world will shrink to nought,
 So nought is being Thine remain sedate.

VIII. 138

After he is purged from the baser self he is admitted into the Mai Khāna', the shrine of Divine Love.

The keeper's call at dawn I heard "Awake!
Thou wreck of Tavern pining for our sake—
Our grace will fill thee full with Bread of Life
Before our slender thread of life should break!"

IX. 1

The Divine Name is the "Wine" here.

In Mystic Shrine, the Name is styled as Wine,
To love and be in trance I most incline;
I am the soul of world in Holy shrine,
The world is body for my soul Divine.

IX. 3

With Word the Master frees him from all thought or cares.

They brought me first from Tavern, stark and still,
To Mystic Shrine, and then a cup they fill;
With wine in hand I call for broiled meat:—
To serve me meet—my heart they first would kill.

IX. 6

The experience here is transcendental, unspeakable.

To be and not to be, are at my call,
I know when Time intends a rise or fall;
In spite of this, I loath my learned lore,
For He transcends the mystic trances all.

IX. 25

Love is the key to the Secret Realms. God in all Love made man to love Him.

Eternal Love had drawn me first on board,
He taught me first to love. On love I pored.
He made my chip of heart a brazen key—
Which prizes open gems from Secret Hoard.

IX. 36

A lover has to ply his own path. Love is not the means to reach an object, but the object-end itself without an end.

Tho' every man has hidden wealth in store,
He knoweth not what brings him less or more;
And every path has leaders except Love,
For there we singly sail and reach no shore.

IX. 39

Love is without fear of a punishment or hope of a reward.

Affection, kindness make a human heart,
In mosque or temple one may work his part;
The man enlisted in the corps of love
Is freed from Hell, to Heaven will not start.

IX. 41

True lover expects no favour.

Now love alloyed with lust is selling cheap,
Not flaming fire, but ashes all in heap!
Thro' days and months and years, a lover true
Has neither rest, nor calm, nor food, nor sleep.

IX. 47

At last the lover reaches the stage where he is nought, and all is Lord.

Walk ye to place where duals cannot be,
The twain ye see, by plying farther flee;
Ye may not be the Lord, but if ye try,
Ye reach where ye are nought and all is He.

IX. 55

His Word is cure for all troubles.

Do taste His Word, He is thy bliss of soul,
Thy pining heart and life He would console;
When grief on right and left 'as tempest blows,
His Word's thy Noah's Arc to reach thy goal.

IX. 101

Love settles all feuds.

How long you Zealot! talk of coming day?
I'm sick of common cant and pious play;
Yea love Him, He and Love are not apart:
And every feud His love will wipe away.

IX. 121

Love comes through the grace of mystics.

If you are wise, then go with simple heart
To mystics' doors, for they His love impart;
Love comes of grace, that trance is not for fools,
In trance no senseless sot can have a part.

IX. 142

Mind cannot reach His feet—He is so high,
The knot He tied, my heart cannot untie;
They say that eyes cannot behold His face,
He is my eye! and who can see the eye?

IX. 174

Now Man's the Chalice, there the Soul is Wine,
 And heart with lute is singing songs divine;
 Khayyām! The man of clay is Chinese lamp,
 A flimsy film, through which His light can shine.

IX. 186

The Personal Quatrains collected in Chapter X, a few of which have been noticed in § xii above, throw a good deal of light on 'Omar's life. Some of these quatrains are piquant satires directed by 'Omar against his contemporaries, some are objections to their doctrines, and some replies to adverse critics. The polemic quatrains are of interest only when the controversy is still fresh but become cryptic, with remoteness of time, when the interest in the controversy is lost.

The following however are a clear exposition of his philosophy, viz., the purification of the Soul from the baser self.

As Self would melt, Existence I attain,
 With soaring pride I sink to lower plane;
 And more than this with wine of Existence,
 The more I wake, more drunken I remain.

X. 58

I fling this Self away, and joys I greet,
 I soared from dismal depths to Master's seat;
 Till cleansed at last from all my carnal grease,
 I cling as golden dust to Master's feet.

X. 63

'Omar craves for Divine Grace thus:

My sins, O Lord! if more than hundred crores,
 Have dashed my youth and life on rocky shores
 Since I depend completely on Thy grace,
 Hence I repent, and sin again, of course.

XI. 3

We all are dolls by spell Thou cast on clay,
 A hundred phantasies Thou made us play;
 How could I ever play a better part
 Than what Thou hast assigned me for the day?

XI. 11

My service will not add to Thy domain,
 And by my sins no loss Thou wilt sustain;
 Forgive and do receive me Lord! Thou art
 So quick with giving bliss, but slow with bane.

XI. 36

Is there a sinless man on earth below?
 And how can we live here and sinless go?
 I sin and fail, but can Thy kindness fail?
 I'm evil, could Thy Grace be even so?

XI. 37

Thou, gracious Lord! are graceful in Thy grace,
 Why then Thy bliss is barred on sinner's face?
 If bliss is sold for virtue, 'sorry trade—
 For gracious grace my sins have made a case!

XI. 39

For sins, O Khayyām! why should you bewail?
 This grief can bring no gain in bag or bale;
 For mercy will not greet the spotless swell,
 It graces sinful paupers.—Do not quail.

XI. 58

The Lord is Gracious and Merciful.

CHAPTER I.

PRAISE OF LORD AND PROPHET.

• حمد و نعت و توحید •

745:—Hc.403, Hp.481, Hw.671.

جز هست خدا نیست یقین میدانم ۷۴۵ از دفتر کائنات این می خوانم
چون دیده دل بنور حق بینا شد شد ظلمت کفر محو در ایمانم

HE IS, and nought but Him exists, I know,
This truth is what creation's book will show;
When heart acquired perception with His Light,
Atheistic darkness changed to faithfully glow.

The Chief of Being's secrets that Thou art,
Thy traits depict to view the Being's chart;
Veiled in Thy Greatness from the creatures here
Presidest Being Thou in open Mart.

چون آتشِ سودائے توجزد و نداشت ۱۳۲ مسکینِ تنِ من امیدِ بهبود نداشت
در جستن و صل تو بسے کو شیدم چون بخت نبود کوششم سود نداشت

Aloof from Thee, my life thus ends in smoke,
Without a ray of hope, my heart is broke.
I tried my best to get a glimpse of Thee,
But luck has brushed me off at single stroke.

O thirsty lover! lift thy pot and go,
Through lawns to fount where crystal waters flow;
These lovely faces—wheel is turning so—
A hundred times as pots and pans will show.

آنها که ز معبود خبر یافته اند ۳۲۳ از جمله کائنات رخ تافته اند
در یوزه همیکنم ز مردان نظری مردان همه از قرب نظر یافته اند

Those men to whom the Master's tidings reach,
Withdraw from world, and at His door beseech;
And when they see the Master through the door,
They get their sight, go nigh, and lose their speech.

آنها که درآمدند و در جوش شدند ۳۲۲ آشفته ناز و طرب و نوش شدند
خوردند پیاله را و مدهوش شدند در خاک ابد جمله هم آغوش شدند

Some strove as friends and mates from time of birth,
They had their balls and dances full of mirth,
They drank their potions, and were deadly drunk,
So slept at last in bosom of the earth.

آنها که خلاصه جهان ایشانند ۳۲۱ بر اوج فلک بر اقی همت رانند
در معرفت ذات تو مانند فلک سرگشته و سرنگون و سرگردانند

Some saints, the pick of world and all therein,
Have mounted skies and see all things within;
But then in knowing Thee, like starry spheres,
They roll their heads, and turn away, and spin.

مائم درین گنبدِ دیرینہ اساس ۶۴۴ جوئندہ رخنہ چو مور اندر طاس
آگاہ نہ از منزل و از بیم و هراس^a سرگشته و چشم بسته چون گاؤِ خراس

Like ants in bowl, within this Ancient Dome,
To seek an exit round and round we roam;
Like oxen yoked to mill, in dread despair,
We whirl for ever, never see our home.

XII. 29

بادل گفتم کہ ای دلِ کافر کیش ۶۵۳^a از مرگِ بیندیش و صلاح آوریش
دل بامنِ مستمندِ حیران می گفت روزِ مردم کہ زادم از مادرِ خویش

I censured thus my heart! "Thou heathen knave!
Now think of Death, and never misbehave."
I felt so stupefied with heart's retort:
"When I was born I died and found my grave."

XII. 30

704 (a):—BNa.60, BERf.280, BNb.404, Hj.101, Pc.142, CR.1055.

آتش زنہ و سوخته و سنگ ہم ۷۰۴^a کے درگردد چو سوخته دارد نم
نزدیکی و دوریت بلائیت عظیم دوری ز تو کافری و نزدیکی ہم

With tinder, flint and steel I strike to mark,
But humid tinder never caught a spark;
Tho' nigh Thou art, Thy distance is so dire!
I'm dark when far, when nigh get blinded stark.

XII. 31

748 (b):—Si. Rempis 247, Sb.92, BERf.163, BMb.392, CR.1072.

خودشید بگل نهفت می نتوانم ^{۸۴۸} اسرارِ زمانه گفت می نتوانم
 درِ که ز دریا می خرد یافته ایم ^b از بیم شکست سفت می نتوانم

I cannot hide the Sun for dust I raise!
 And cannot speak the secrets of the days.
 The pearl, which I have brought from wisdom deep,
 If strung may lose the splendour of its rays!

XII. 32

822 (a):—Qabus Namah. BMb.431, Pc.31, CR.1089.

ای دل حذر از مستی و مخموری کن ^{۸۲۲} و ز همدستی رطل گران دوری کن
 از بادِ شفا خیزد و از مستی رنج ^a تو حذرِ شفا مکن ز رنجوری کن

O heart from drinking bouts you should refrain,
 From heavy drunkards further far remain;
 Wine acts as cure, but drinking does you harm,
 So do not shun a cure but shun the pain.

XII. 33

847 (a):—BNb.459, RPb.64, RPa.318, Hd.65. Vag: Afdal [Hv.].

در ملکِ خدا تصرف آغاز مکن ^{۸۴۷} چشمِ بدِ خود بعیبِ کس باز مکن
 سرِ دلِ هر بنده خدا میداند ^a در خود نگر و فضولی آغاز مکن

Start not in Lord's Domain to criticise,
 But close to faults of folk thy evil eyes;
 Lord knows the hidden parts of every heart,
 So judge thy self, refrain from idle lies.

XII. 34

851 (a):—Si.21, BMb.435, Pc.373, CR.1100.

رقم که درین منزلِ پیداد بدن ^{۸۵۱} در دست نخواهدم بجز بادِ بدن
 آنرا باید بمرگِ من شاد بدن ^a کز دستِ اجل تواند آزاد بدن

I passed, for halting in this robbers' fair,
 I go nothing in hand excepting air;
 So when I die the worthy wight should gloat,
 Whose life the Master Death would deign to spare!

XII. 35

878 (a):—BNj.45, BMb.462, Hc.346, Pc.192, CR.1113.

بیرون ز تحیرِ ای پسر چیست بگو ۸۷۸
شادان روزِ دروکنے زیست بگو^a کو روزِ دگر بدرِ نگرِ نیست بگو

What thing is there that's not a wonder here?
And who that knows how events may appear?
And who has spent in world a day in cheer?
And who on next has never shed a tear?

XII. 36

ای باقی محض بافنائے که نه ۸۹۹
ای ذاتِ تو از جا و جهت مستغنی^a آخر تو بکائی و بکائی که نه

O Absolute! what nought Thou hast not wrought?
No place hast Thou, what world hast Thou not brought?
Thy Being's not defined by Time and Space,
Where art Thou sought, and where Thou not besought?

XII. 37

902 (a):—BMb.492, Pc.168, CR.1120.

ای هر نفسِ صد گنه از ما دیده ۹۰۲
ای من بتر از هر که بعالم بترست^a وی لطفِ تو از من بتر آمرزیده

O Thou that see my sins per breath a gross,
Thou keepest hidden so that no one knows;
Tho' worse I go than what in world is worst,
Thy Grace on worse than me Thy grace bestows.

XII. 38

903 (b):—Kb. Hr.404. Vag: Rumi [Hv.].

بازیچه قدرتِ خدائیم همه ۹۰۳
بایکدگر این زیادتی جستن چه^b آخر نه ز یک درِ سرائیم همه

Puppets to Mighty Might we came at call,
He is the Donor we are beggars all;
What means this strife and struggle we maintain?
From single door we soon must quit the Hall.

XII. 39

دلخستہ چرخ لاجوردیم هم^a آخر برویم و در نوردیم هم

Like pawns in chess, or scouts on sable land,
Sometimes alone sometimes in pairs we stand;
Thus drilled by day and night to left and right,
We march and vanish as would Time command.

XII. 40

924 (b):—BNb.493, Hd.435. Vag: (1) Nasir Khusraw [p. 509]. (2) Afdal [400].

ما ذات نہادہ در صفاتیم هم ۹۲۴ عینِ خرد و سخرہ ذاتیم هم
تا در صفتیم در مائیم هم^a چون رفت صفتِ عینِ حیاتیم هم

The Essence Prime are we which traits encase,
The Wisdom conjures self in juggling ways;
Encased in traits we fall in fatal ways,
With traits apart Eternal Life displays.

XII. 41

از شاخِ وجودا گر برے داشتیم ۹۴۱ هم رشتہ خویش را سرے داشتیم
نا چنبد ز تنگناے زندانِ وجود^a ای کاش سوے عدم درے داشتیم

Could I from twig of life a fruit attain,
I might unravel this my tangled skein;
How long I grope thro' maze of Life's confines,
O fain the door of Nirwana I gain.

XII. 42

942 (a):—Pb.524, Ba.474, Hb.609, Hg.407.

از کوے خرابات برآمد ماهے ۹۴۲ بر کنگرہ عرش بزد خرگاهے
ناگاہ زِ خرگاه برآمد آہ^a کاین عالم بیوفا نیرزد کاهے

A moon from Tavern lane came out I saw,
The halo spread to skies, I gazed in awe;
From Ass's stall I heard a grating: "Ah!
This faithless world in worth is not a straw."

XII. 43

943 (a):—BNb.399, Pb.517, Ba.467, Hb.604. Var: Afdal [Hj.] [406].

از معدن خویش اگر جدا افتادی ۹۴۳ آخر بنگر که خود بکا افتادی
درخانه خود خدای را کم کردی^a زان از ره خانه خدا افتادی

If from your home you fell so far away,
Then see for once your self and where you stay;
You Lost the Godhead in your house alone,
Hence from the path of God you go astray.

XII. 44

دردیده بجای آب نم بایستی ۱۰۱۸ یا با غم او صبر بهم بایستی
یا عمر باندازه غم بایستی^a یا مایه غم چو عمر کم بایستی

Would that my eyes were wet but not in flow,
Or when he chastens patience would bestow,
Or life prolonged as grief would greater grow,
Or grief were less when life is sinking low.

XII. 45

در عالم اگر ترا بود دست رسی ۱۰۲۰ هان تا زنی تو جز به نیکی نفس
بیش از من و تو یازمودند بسی^a دنیا نکند بغیر ازار کس

If in this world you have some means at call,
Then do not breathe but go relieving all;
Many have found before us great and small,
That world affords us nought but hurt and gall.

XII. 46

گر علم لدنی همه از بر داری ۱۰۴۶ با این چه کنی که نفس کافر داری
سر را بر زمین چه می نهی بهر نماز^a آنرا بر زمین بنه که در سر داری

Thou hast in rote I grant the psychic lore,
But can it cure at all Thy darkened core?
What boots at prayer time thy pate on ground?
Lay under ground what pate has kept in store.
